PROGRESS IS being made in what used to be the Planetarium parking lot and around the Old Well. Tractors, derricks and plain old shovels are rapidly making the parking lot into a bigger parking lot, with a garden in the middle; while over in front of South Building a formal garden is being laid out.

Dr. Trueblood Will Talk Here Friday At 7:30

Dr. D. Elton Trueblood, the U. S. Information Agency's newly appointed Chief of Religious Policy and professor of philosophy at Earlham College, Indiana, will be at the University tomorrow and Saturday for a two-day visiting and speaking engagement.

Well-known as a religious leader, teacher and author, Dr. Trueblood's appearance here is being sponsored by the University Sermons Committee of the YMCA and YWCA, which sponsored Dr. Ralph Sockman last month.

The principal address by the noted religious leader will be delivered in Hill Hall Friday night at 7:30 o'clock when he will speak on "Our Heritage of Freedom." A reception will follow in Graham Memorial at 8:30 p.m. The public is invited.

Dr. Trueblood will discuss "The religious Basis of Vocation" at a luncheon for students, faculty and invited guests to be held Saturday at 1 p. m. in the South Room of Lenoir Hall.

Mrs. Pauline Trueblood, wife of the speaker, and Mrs. Bernard Boyd, Chapel Hill, will lead a discussion on "The Spiritual Values in Marriage" in the Y-Cabinet Room for all University women students on Friday at 4 p.m. This discussion is the first in a series on "Preparations for Marriage" sponsored by the Campus Affairs Committee of the YWCA.

A dinner for the YMCA and YWCA cabinets and invited guests with the Truebloods as guests will be held in Lenoir Hall Friday evening at 6 p. m.

Kuralt, Peacock Meet Tonight In Open Debate

The two candidates for editor of The Daily Tar Heel—doubly-endorsed Charles Kuralt and independent Tom Peacock—will have their first open debate tonight at the Monogram Club meeting at 7:15.

The pair agreed on at least one "issue" yesterday—they are both wholeheartedly in favor of re-organizing the once-powerful University Veterans Association. Both promised editorial support for such an organization.

Peacock Says Kuralt's Man Horton 'Lied'

Independent Daily Tar Heel editorial candidate Tom Peacock yesterday called one of his opponent's campaign managers a liar.

"Phin Horton has lied," Peacock said. "The co-manager for Charles Kuralt, he continued, "said in a prepared statement that I said any stand of the editor which contradicted the University administration endangered the freedom of The Daily Tar Heel. This is not true.

"I said 'any irresponsible, unwarranted, and malicious stand' of The DTH endangered its freedom, and cited the anti-athletic handling of Dean Weaver's recent speech as an example."

Peacock also had an answer for a statement made by Kuralt on Wednesday. Kuralt said the real issues of the campaign are "the literacy and experience and qualifications of the candidates."

Peacock: "I am at least as literate as my opponent. I am undeniably more experienced and more qualified, since my opponent does not even have a year's experience on the paper he wishes to edit."

Phi Approves Hawaiian Bill For Statehood

The Phi Assembly, at its meeting Tuesday night, approved by a vote of 10 to 2, a bill under which Hawaii would be admitted into the Union as a state. A similar bill is now being considered by Congress.

In debate on the bill, Representative Ham Horton, one of the opponents of the bill, argued that Hawaii is "manifestly deficient" in certain qualifications for statehood. The Carolina law student compared admitting a new state with choosing a wife, pointing out that since both will be around a long time, the decision to add either must be carefully considered.

Proponents of the bill countered by saying that American-Asiatic relations would be greatly enhanced by Hawaiian statehood, and that at the present there are no good reasons for not admitting Hawaii.

In other action, the Phi tabled a bill which advocated that captured U.S. military personnel not be held responsible for confessions extorted under Communist torture. This issue is presently in the limelight with Marine Colonel Frank Schwable undergoing court-martial on charges that he confessed to germ warfare during the Korean war.

An amendment was introduced by Representative Wade Matthews to extend statehood to Alaska, but the proposal was defeated by a slim margin.

Fashion Show Set Tomorrow At High School

The first Panhellenic Fashion Show goes on the boards tomorrow night at 8:30 in the Chapel Hill High School auditorium.

The show, entitled "Around the Clock," will feature the latest spring fashions for young women from Jean's of Raleigh, and for men from Milton's Clothing Cupboard.

Twenty-one models have been selected to represent their sororities and fraternities in the show.

The entire proceeds from "Around the Clock" will be donated to the Community Chest of Chapel Hill by the sponsor of the show, the Panhellenic Council. Admission charge is 50 cents.

Mrs. Marian Fitz-Simmons, wife of Foster Fitz-Simmons, associate director of the Carolina Playmakers, has been chosen to narrate the program.

Rollie Tillman will be at the piano, and Miss Merle Norman, Chapel Hill beautician, will be in charge of makeup. Mrs. Kay Kyser will assist in production.

CPU Panel Will Appear On Raleigh TV Tonight

The Carolina Political Union will make its third appearance on TV tonight when a panel of four students will discuss the topic, "States' Rights versus Federal Rights." The program will be staged at 10:30 p.m. on Station WNAO-TV in Raleigh.

'Third Herd's' Jazz Concert Is 'Real Gone'

Herman's Hot Licks, Dolly Houston Songs Bring Down House

By Jerry Reece

If "old man" Woody Herman had wanted to start a fan club yesterday afternoon he could have had about 1,150 Carolina students in Memorial Hall as charter members.

The "Third Herd" along with their boss opened up late but hot and stayed that way for two solid hours of "big band jazz."

At five minutes after four Woody stepped out on the stage of the Hall, which was rapidly filling, and said, "about seven of my boys in one of the cars have been stopped by a North Carolina state patrolman. As soon as we can scrape up bail money we will get started." And about ten minutes later they did.

The concert opened with one of Woody's old favorites "Woodchoppers' Ball" with the old master rising to new heights on his "red hot licorice stick."

The band didn't even get through the first chorus before the audience was lifting the roof with waves of applause. They were still applauding at 6:15 when the final curtain closed.

Back stage at intermission there were a lot of students standing around talking to Woody and "his boys." Woody reminisced a little about his trip to Carolina in the winter of 1950 for a German's dance. "The Third Herd had just been formed then," he said.

Several Carolina males were crowded around the band's cute vocalist Dolly Houston getting autographs and just talking. Earlier she had stopped the show with her renditions of "Love Come Back to Me" and "Happiness Is Just a Thing Called Joe."

When asked about plans for the future, Woody said that the group was scheduled to play for a dance in Norfolk tonight and then go to the University of Maryland for a jazz concert similar to the one here yesterday. The "Herd" leaves for a five-week European tour April 1.

Woody's aggregation is made up of fifteen pieces: four saxes, five trumpets, three trombones, piano, bass, and drums. The majority of the "boys" are just college-age and several of them played with the famous Stan Kenton group.

The jazz concert was presented through the auspices of Graham Memorial Student Union.

'Large Issues Involved'—Branch

Baptist Probers Meet All Day; Statement Seen This Morning

GREENSBORO, March 17 —(AP)—The formal statement promised following today's meeting here of an investigative committee of the Baptist State Convention studying "liberalism" among Baptist Student Union leaders failed to materialize when the day-long session broke up in late afternoon.

Dr. Perry Crouch, pastor of Asheville's First Baptist Church and chairman of the committee, declined any comment on the meeting and said he hoped to have a statement readied by sometime tomorrow morning. The Rev. Douglas Branch, president of the State Convention and present in an ex-officio capacity, also declined comment but expressed regret for the delay in making a public statement of the committee's actions. "There are," he said, "large issues involved."

The committee met in the First Baptist Church here and the proceedings, according to members' comments, extended considerably longer than anticipated.

Duke Poly Science Prof Slates Talk At Library

Dr. Taylor Cole, Duke professor of political science, will speak on "The Italian Political Situation" at an open meeting of Pi Sigma Alpha at 8:30 tonight in the Library assembly room.

Gorham Criticizes Policy Of Book-Ex

By Louis Kraa

President Bob Gorham yesterday said that "it was not right" for the Campus Stores to make a profit on the resale of used books.

Gorham, in a report on the student-faculty Campus Stores Committee, strongly criticized the present policy of the stores. He said that he will make a request before the committee that the Book Exchange operate used books sales on a non-profit basis.

They Book Exchange currently pays half of the original price to students for used books, and then it makes 50 percent profit on the resale of each used book, according to Gorham.

President Gorham said the operating margin of the Book Exchange last year was 14 percent. "This means the Book Ex makes 36 percent profit when they resell a once used book. And that's too much."

The student chief executive also said he will urge the Campus Stores Committee to turn profits from dormitory vending machines back to dorms. At present, the profits go into a scholarship fund along with other Campus Store profits.

The Gorham recommendations will be made to a committee that was established by Trustee order to "advise" the management of the stores. The committee consists of both faculty and student members, and meets any time two members request it to do so.

In last week's meetings, the committee passed two resolutions proposed by President Gorham. One resolution urged that the management of the campus stores "prepare a statement setting forth the price policy and price policies" of the store.

Another resolution passed asked for "closer co-operation" between faculty and the Book Exchange in regard to changing new text books.

Lt. Governor Luther Hodges, graduate of the class of 1919, will speak tonight on "The Role of Young People in State Government." The address will take place in the courtroom of Manning Hall at 8 o'clock. The program will be sponsored jointly by the University's Law School and the Young Democrats Club, and is under the direction of Al House and Don Erb.

Both organizations have extended invitations to the public to attend.

A dinner honoring Hodges will precede the meeting and reservations may be made through Al House, Bob Windsor, Ken Youngblood and Bob Byrd at the Law School; Russ Jordan, Business School; Bill Edwards, Cobb Dorm; Jules Rosseau, Grimes Dorm, or Charles Dean, ATO House.

Hodges was formerly a University Trustee and was awarded an honorary LL.D. by his alma mater in 1946.

Dog, Man's Best Friend, Is Threat To Grid Team

The coming of Spring has long been fabled for its effects on human beings. Now, it seems, not only men but dogs, too, are strangely influenced by the balmy breezes.

One Chapel Hill dog in particular has taken to biting football players and town citizens.

Sonny Ridenhour, halfback from Winston-Salem, was bitten Monday while strolling across campus. The dog has also bitten two Chapel Hillians.

The dog is described as being short, reddish-brown, and with a long, bushy tail.

Coach Barclay could not be reached for comment on this new threat to Carolina's pigskin fortunes.

Prexy Upholds UP Resolution On Restriction

"I am definitely opposed to any form of postponed rushing for freshmen," declared President Bob Gorham yesterday.

Referring to a resolution due to come up before the student Legislature tonight, Gorham said he doesn't "think the Legislature should dictate to the Inter-Fraternity Council concerning rushing."

The resolution, introduced by Bill Sanders (UP) provides for the student lawmaking body to go on record as not favoring restrictions on freshman fraternity rushing. In other words, it supports the present system and opposes so-called delayed rushing.

There seemed to be some question yesterday among legislators whether the resolution opposing delayed rushing would pass. The Student Party, holding the present legislative majority, went on record early last fall as favoring delayed rushing.

Leonard New Tarnation Editor After Brooks Resigns Position

Reuben Leonard, junior from Greensboro, has been appointed to succeed Miss Jackie Brooks as editor of the Tarnation, campus humor magazine.

Leonard has previously served as production manager and was made managing editor following the resignation of Rollie Tillman Stanley Shaw; freshman from Asheville, has been appointed managing editor.

Miss Brooks, upon resigning, said: "We feel that the magazine has made great strides since its return in September, 1952. This could not have come about without the cooperation and help of the students, administration and merchants of Chapel Hill.

"Our new staff intends to carry on with what has already been started and make the last two issues of the Tarnation the best ever."

The next issue of the magazine is scheduled to appear in the middle of April.

The Tarnation staff yesterday issued an invitation to anyone who wishes to work on the magazine. Prospective staffers and those who have manuscripts or drawings should go to the Tarnation office Friday afternoon, the staff said.

Tarnation offices are in the basement of Graham Memorial.

Tarnation is the University's unofficial humor magazine and derives its financial support solely from subscriptions and advertising. Circulation this year has been about 3,000.

on the Political Front

with Louis Kraa

Friends, Voters & Monogram Clubbers

The first debate between candidates is tonight at a Monogram Club meeting. Daily Tar Heel editorial candidates Charles Kuralt and Tom Peacock will swap stands on the issues at 7:30.

From the looks of things, it seems that the DTH editorship race will be one of the most lively. For some days now, both Peacock and Kuralt have been firing away at each other in written statements. Tonight they'll face each other. The voters on election day will be the referees in this three-week political match.

Uh, Uh—Don't Touch That Second Hand

The University Party broke two records the other night during nominations.

The UP nominated three major officers—president, secretary, and treasurer—by acclamation. That was the first time since 1936 that three major nominations were made by acclamation.

Another record, set by the UP last year when nominating Bob Gorham, was also busted. It took the UP over 30 seconds to nominate Gorham last year, while Tom Creasy was nominated in a mere 20 seconds. Thus, the UP broke its own speed record.

UP Chairman Jack Stevens explained the rapidity as an "indication of the complete recognition by the party of the unmatched qualities of our candidates." We'd chalk it up to a big back room and unity among party leaders.

An Old Tune With New Words

The first poster of the spring political season went up yesterday. Tom Peacock, independent DTH editorial candidate, has a big one over the Y soda fountain.

"Beat The Politicians" Peacock's poster says. We only hope that all campaigning this spring is of the sort that this won't be the student body's feelings about campus politics in general.
