Di To Debate Limited Review Of Judiciary

A bill introduced by Larry McElroy, calling for limited power of judicial review, will be debated by the Dialectic Senate tonight at 8 o'clock in the Di Hall.

Since the Supreme Court is the highest court in the land, exercises the power of judicial review, and has declared Congressional enactments unconstitutional, the Di resolves that Constitutional amendments be submitted to the various states.

The amendments call for the Supreme Court's having the power to invalidate any law or treaty of the country or any state, which may be repassed in the form of a bill and presented to the President.

Baptist Schism Smoothed Over

A schism in the Chapel Hill Baptist Church was smoothed over just before its centennial celebration got underway, when the Board of Deacons of the church drew up a statement of policy Saturday night.

In reading the statement at the beginning of the centennial program Sunday morning, L. J. Phipps, chairman of the board, said, "A group of the younger deacons asked me to call a meeting so that we could sit down and resolve our differences."

Students, probably about 2,500 of them, will go to the polls today to vote in spring elections.

If the Elections Board's anticipated figures are right, half the campus will vote—more than in any other campus election.

Candidates made the last rounds yesterday evening, knocking on dorm doors and tacking up final posters. But for the most part the campaigning was over.

Two major offices have already been filled because no one opposed the contenders for them. Jackie Parks and Cornell Wright will be co-editors of the Yackety-Yack, and Jim Fountain will be head cheerleader for the second straight year.

Miss Parks and Wright were picked by both campus political parties. Fountain was chosen by the cheerleader selection board.

Almost 200 students will tend polls throughout the campus. The Elections Board put out a call for ballot counters to count the ballots. Coeds, according to the board, will get late permission until midnight if they count votes. The tallying is going to take place in Roland Parker Lounges at Graham Memorial.

Besides picking office-holders, students will have an opportunity to approve or turn down constitutional amendments to revise the Student Entertainment Committee and to change the Graham Memorial Board of Directors.

Under the proposed amendments, the student Legislature would pick what campus office holders would be GM Board members, and the chancellor would appoint faculty members to the board. The SEC amendment would provide for a new committee composed of the director of Graham Memorial, faculty members from the Music and Dramatic Arts Departments, and seven students appointed by the student body president.

Those running for campus offices are:

President of the student body—Tom Creasy (UP) and Don Geiger (SP); Vice-President—Martin Jordan (UP) and Mac Morris (SP); Secretary—Jane Edwards (UP) and Jerry Snider (SP); Treasurer—Don Fowler (SP) and Reuben Leonard (UP).

Head Cheerleader—Jim Fountain.

Editor of The Daily Tar Heel—Charles Kuralt (SP-UP) and Tom Peacock (Ind.); Co-editors of The Yackety-Yack—Jackie Parks and Cornell Wright (SP-UP); National Students Association Coordinator—Chal Schley (SP-UP).

Student Council: At-large seats—Bill Calvert, Ned Hardinson, Walton Joyner, Frank Ramos, and Charlie Wolf; six-month seat—Skip Nelson; Women's seats—Henrietta Bell, Eleanor Saunders, Jackie Steed and Cynthia Ward.

Carolina Debate Team Wins 12-Team Tourney

Carolina's varsity debate squad climaxed a successful season by sweeping the Southeastern Invitational Debate Tournament held at Emory University last weekend.

The affirmative team of Beverly Webb, Greensboro, and Wade Matthews, Winston-Salem, and the negative team of Ken Myers, Coral Gables, Fla., and Al Levine, Rockingham, both won all their debates for a 12-0 score for the team. Georgia Tech placed second with a 11-1 record, losing only to Webb and Matthews.

Twelve schools were represented at the tournament from the states of Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Virginia. Schools represented included the University of Tennessee, Emory University, Georgia Tech, Georgetown, and Florida State.

Beverly Webb, president of the squad, placed second in the individual speaking record for the tournament.

This was the last tournament of the year for the squad, which has previously competed in tournaments at the University of South Carolina, New York University, University of Virginia, Florida State University, and Lenoir-Rhyne College.

Spring Here? Weatherman Will Not Say

The weatherman at the Raleigh-Durham Airport wouldn't say yesterday whether spring was really here to stay or not, but he did at least predict no change for the colder in the immediate future.

He said he wouldn't advise anyone to pack away their sweaters and heavy clothing for a while yet, although he said that the present mild spring weather would hang around through Wednesday.

Temperatures in the upper 70's may be expected for today and Wednesday, he said, and Wednesday's high may reach 80.

Southerly winds laden with moisture are moving in from the Gulf region and will gradually flow over the state today, producing thunderstorms, especially in western counties. Thunderstorms are likely in all localities throughout the state on Wednesday.

Leonard Says Tarnation Mag Coming Soon

The next issue of Tarnation will appear on campus April 20, the first day after the return from spring vacation, said new editor Reuben Leonard yesterday.

Leonard stated that the "jokes are more risqué, the stories shorter, and the cartoons spicier" in the forthcoming issue. He also mentioned that a new comic strip has been added, printed under the pseudonym, "Puperman."

Jerry McMahon's "Slob" will adorn the cover, as always. The "Slob" is reported up to even worse antics than usual. Editor Leonard said that two pages of ghoulie and vampire jokes would also be found lurking in the new issue.

Leonard said that there were still several important positions on the magazine staff open to interested students.

Elections Board Needs Ballot Counters Today

All students interested in counting ballots in today's election are asked to come to the Roland Parker lounges at 7 o'clock tonight.

Refreshments will be served. Coeds will be given late permission.

Armstrong Will Play Germans

'Satchmo' To Present Concert, Dance Music For Spring Germans

Louis "Satchmo" Armstrong with his six-piece combo and vocalist will play for the Spring Germans May 7 and 8.

Armstrong will play for the traditional concert from 4 until 6 p.m. Saturday in Memorial Hall, and for the formal dance Saturday night from 8 until 12.

Jim Schenk, president of the Germans Club, said yesterday that the final arrangements for Armstrong's appearance have been completed.

"The German Club has been attempting to arrange to have Armstrong for a German dance for three years now, and we are extremely pleased to be able to bring him to Chapel Hill at long last," he said.

Armstrong, who was elected to the Downbeat Hall of Fame in 1952, has recently returned from a concert tour in and around Tokyo, Japan. He is currently playing at Basin Street in New York City.

House Clears Up Statement On Geologists

Chancellor House yesterday cleared up an incorrect statement by The Daily Tar Heel in its story on the Trustee Visiting Committee on Saturday, March 27.

The story read, "... as in the geology department, there is not a trained geologist."

The Chancellor, assuring that there were several trained geologists in the University, corrected the story, saying, "We had not been able to find a geologist to head the department. The department ought to have a trained geologist as its chairman."

Candidates Must Turn In Expense Accounts Today

Any candidates in the Spring election who have not yet turned in their expense accounts must do so today and pay a $1 fine by 6 p.m. or be disqualified.

Accounts may be turned in at the Student Government Office in Graham Memorial.

Whale Warns Against Man's Dehumanizing

By Richard Thiele
"The life of Man is solitary, brutish, and short," said Dr. John Selden Whale, distinguished English author and theologian, who lectured last night in Carroll Hall.

The noted theologian went on to say that Man "doesn't need moral exultation, but that his desperate need is worship." He also stated that "as a man is alienated from God, he is alienated from his neighbor, and, finally, from his soul."

"Man is obliged," Dr. Whale further stated, "to be born separately, and he must die separately. One's personal freedom must man sovereignty over one's self."

The eminent lecturer warned against the dehumanization of Man by the modern industrial age. He stated that as "man is standardized by modern industry, he is depersonalized, which results in depersonalization of his community."

Dr. Whale, who is well-known throughout the world for having written several books and papers on Christian theology, inspired his audience with his frank and extremely interesting lecture, which was sponsored by the University's Department of Religion.

Politicians Get Program Time

Both campus political parties last night took to the air over "Our Best To You," popular disc-jockey show, to open up a new campaign medium.

The Student Party portion was narrated by Jim Fountain, head cheerleader.

The University Party part was handled by the show's emcee, Jimmy Capps.

As far as could be determined, this was the first time such type campaigning was used in a campus election.

on the Political Front with Louis Kraar

It's All Over But The Pouting
Another campaigning season is over today. It's election day. And at the close of this political whirlwind, we, like most of the students who vote today, are a little tired of it all and a great deal confused.

We've heard propaganda, campaign promises, slogans and war-cries from both sides. For the most part, it's been interesting and clean.

Of course, there's always the smear that's whispered through Cobb and echoes on through McIver. But, fortunately for campus politics and students, little of this occurs. When the sordid side of politics shows up, and occasionally it does, we have to charge it up to mistakes and human weaknesses.

Politics Are Great
In these daily pieces, we've tried to shatter the myth that politics and politicians are dirty. They're not.

It's only when a voter has two sides put before him—even if both sides disturb his studying—that he makes wise choices. The politician is the one who puts his program before a voter, gives students a choice.

This choice is what makes Chapel Hill better than Moscow, in our opinion. And it's the politicians who do the offering and who have to do the job when the election is over.

The Wise Ones
Students, like most other citizens, generally aren't well-informed. And many who are what may be called well-informed are not wise.

We haven't decided just what makes a voter, or anyone else, wise. But we have a strong notion that the wise student is one who makes it his business to find out both sides, decides on his choice without pressure, and then votes.

Thus, here we are on election day with few conclusions, no predictions, lots of tattered posters, and a headache. But we're going to vote.
