Quarterly Gives Prof Evaluations

An article by Thaddeus Seymour, entitled "The 1954 Faculty Evaluation," and "The Lost Beach," prize-winning short story by Louise Hardeman, are featured in the spring issue of the Carolina Quarterly which is out today.

Seymour's article is a discussion of the value of faculty evaluation as it could be applied to instruction.

An extensive account of the evaluation article, including the names of the Big Ten, will appear in The Daily Tar Heel tomorrow.

tion at Carolina and as it was attempted in the undergraduate poll conducted in March by student government.

The article includes a tabulated listing of the poll's results, showing the relative standing of 33 departments as to level of instruction and value of courses and a list of the 10 most highly-graded professors.

None of this information has been released before. Seymour is a graduate student in English, and was an adviser to President Bob Gorham and the committee which planned and executed the evaluation.

Miss Hardeman's story was chosen by judges Paul Green and James Street as the winner of the annual Quarterly Fiction Contest, and was highly praised for its close, smooth style and subtle poetry. It was written for Prof. Hugh Holman's creative writing class.

This issue will also include an article by Hamilton Horton Jr. entitled "American Freedom and Faith." It deals with the conflict between freedom and order as it threatens modern Americans. Two other short stories are by Carolina students.

Vin Cassidy, a graduate student in history, is author of "Operation Ah-Choo," and "A Quantity Unknown" was written by J. A. C. Dunn, who was recently selected as next year's editor of the Quarterly.

Poetry by Allen Donovan, J. R. Brownfield, William Rivera, and Chris Bjerknes is also included. The two-color lineoleum block illustrations, similar to those in the winter issue, are being used again. This time the artist is Jane Bolmeier.

Local Women Donate 8,593 Hospital Hours

Women residents of Chapel Hill rolled up a big total of hours of volunteer service rendered North Carolina Memorial Hospital during the year ending May 1.

Of the 8,593 hours given, one auxiliary member, Mrs. R. O. E. Davis, spent 1,394 hours in the sewing room of the hospital. This is the equivalent of 70 percent of a 40-hour week and Mrs. Davis was presented with a scroll at the annual meeting of the auxiliary in recognition of this unusual service.

Under the presidency of Mrs. Collier Cobb Jr., the auxiliary during the year just ended served over 2,000 hours in the Hospitality Shop, that being under the chairmanship of Mrs. St. Pierre DuBose; over 1,000 hours at the information desk, under the chairmanship of Mrs. R. J. M. Hobbs; about 350 hours in library service, chaired by Miss Cornelia Love; over 300 hours in seven months in the admissions office, chaired by Mrs. Ethel Fore, and additional hundreds of hours in other areas.

Delta sorority. She is from Norton, Va.

Dean Katherine Carmichael presented the cup after a short speech in which she said, "There are many honors that a person can receive on this campus, there are many of true leadership this is certainly one of the highest."

At this first annual SUAB banquet, the purpose of which is to recognize past workers and introduce new committee chairmen, Miss Horne's introductory speech summed up the relationship of SUAB to the campus. She gave certificates of outstanding service to past committee chairmen, and the vice-presidents.

Certificates were presented to Kit Wallace, student activity; Ann Bell, vice-president; Ellen Wood, office committee; Carolyn Hartford, publicity; Ann Forsyth and Sandra Max, recreation; Nancy Davis, reception; Ann Turlington, calendar; Lou Sherman, dance committee; Dave Reid, forum committee and vice-president, and Jack Markam, film, Earl Stevens, faculty adviser, also received recognition for service to SUAB.

The Rev. Harry E. Smith, minister to students at the Presbyterian Church, gave the invocation.

The 57 guests were entertained by ventriloquist Bill Fetzer, and his "helper," Jerry McGee.

Local, Twice-Weekly Newspaper Will Begin Publication On Thursday

Phillips Russell To Be Editor; Hamlin, Giduz, Pollander Associates; Two From DTH Included

C. PHILLIPS RUSSELL a new job

Two University faculty members, a former managing editor of The Daily Tar Heel, and a Chapel Hill printshop owner will begin publication this Thursday of the Chapel Hill News Leader, a new town newspaper.

The paper will appear twice weekly, on Monday and Thursday afternoons.

C. Phillips Russell, professor of creative writing and a member of the Journalism School, will be editor of the News Leader, as well as president of the corporation. L. M. Pollander, also on the journalism faculty, will be advertising manager and vice-president. Roland Giduz will head the paper's news department. He also is secretary of the corporation. Giduz was managing editor of The Daily Tar Heel in 1946-47.

Alding Giduz in the news department will be Ken Sanford and Rolfe Neill, presently on The Daily Tar Heel. Both will begin work at the end of school. Sanford, from Enka, was managing editor of The Daily Tar Heel this year, while Neill, from Columbus, Ga., was editor until this spring. He now holds the position of managing editor.

Edwin J. Hamlin of Hillsboro, treasurer and business manager of the new organization, is at present the editor and publisher of The News of Orange County and The Alamance News.

The News Leader will be home-delivered for its first few issues.

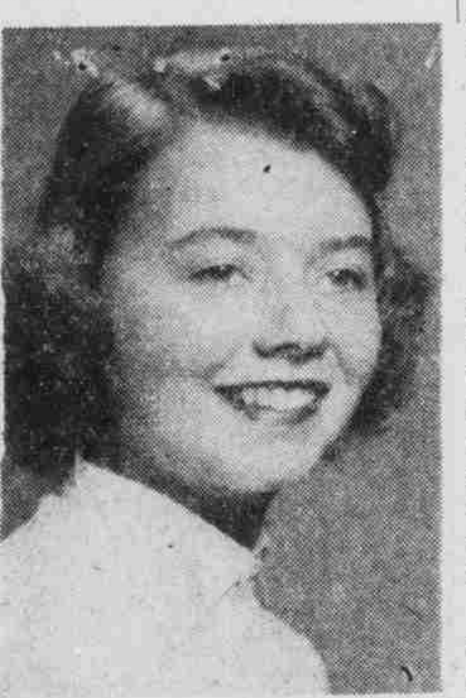

Russell, a longtime resident of Chapel Hill, has been on the journalism faculty for the past 23 years. He is a graduate of the University, and past editor of The Daily Tar Heel. He will continue to teach here next year.

Pollander has been on the advertising staff of The Raleigh Times, Richmond Times-Dispatch, and the Durham Herald-Sun papers. Since 1946 he has been director of advertising in the School of Journalism.

A life-long Chapel Hillian, Giduz is a graduate of Carolina and Columbia University. For two and one-half years he served as Chapel Hill correspondent of the Durham Morning Herald and The Durham Sun papers, and since January of 1953 he has been assistant editor of The Chapel Hill Weekly.

Coed Carol Webster Wins KD's First Jane Craige Gray Award

Regina Carol Webster, junior from Ridgewood, N. J., was presented the first Jane Craige Gray Award in ceremonies held in Graham Memorial last night.

CAROL WEBSTER the first award

The award was established by the Beta Chi chapter of Kappa Delta sorority in memory of the late wife of Gordon Gray, president of the Consolidated University. Mrs. Gray was initiated into the chapter as an alumna in 1950.

Miss Webster was selected from women students of the junior class for "best exemplifying high scholarship, leadership, and character."

Chancellor Robert B. House presided at the ceremony and read the citation. Bernard Gray, age seven, youngest son of President and Mrs. Gray, presented a silver card tray to Miss Webster. A plaque bearing the name of the winner also was presented and will be kept permanently in the Kappa Delta sorority house.

Following the ceremony Miss Webster was honored at a reception held in the main lounge of Graham Memorial. Mrs. Kay Kyser, Mrs. John Lamont, and Mrs. W. D. Carmichael Jr., all Kappa Delta alumnae, aided with the arrangements and serving.

Miss Webster is a business major who came to UNC from St. Lawrence University. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi social sorority, chairman of the national and International Affairs Committee of the YWCA, member of the Valkyries, highest women's honor society; clerk of the Woman's Student Council, co-chairman of the Student Union Activities Board dance committee, and is on the YWCA service committee.

Rain Halts Weekend's Activities

Cold, day-long rains yesterday forced cancellation of three outdoor events scheduled here, and the weatherman said those headed for out-of-town weekend activities would find the weather uncooperative.

The University Club's annual carnival, slated for last night on Navy Field, was postponed until Tuesday night at 7:45 at the same location.

The opening night of "Dark of the Moon" was cancelled by the Playmakers. It will give its first performance, weather permitting, tonight in the Forest Theatre. Tickets to the production are good for any night, and the play will show for three nights, the schedule now standing at Saturday, Sunday, and Monday. If rain should further interfere, "Dark of the Moon" will be advanced an appropriate number of days.

The Barefoot Ball, the mid-spring Hogan's Lake affair by the Chapel Hill Cotillion Club, planned for today, was postponed until next Friday or Saturday.

The Sigma Chi Derby had been planned for Thursday but rain put it off until Monday afternoon at 2:30.

No sun at all is expected today at the beaches or mountains. Little is forecast for tomorrow. The temperatures will be in the 70's and the weatherman advised against swimming plans. Sunday is expected to be a little warmer but mostly cloudy.

The coastal area from Wrightsville to Myrtle was hit Thursday night by hurricane winds of 60 to 65 miles-an-hour.

Woman's Club Has Mrs. Rush As President

Mrs. Charles E. Rush was elected president of the Woman's Club of the University at a luncheon meeting held this week at the Carolina Inn.

Mrs. Rush succeeds Mrs. Robert H. Wettach. Other officers elected were Mrs. William P. Richardson, vice-president; Mrs. Henry Brandis Jr., secretary, and Mrs. George Harper, treasurer.

During the business session, Mrs. Wettach gave a summary report on the club's activities for the past year. Announcement was made of the presentation of a monetary gift to the Peter Garvin Library at Glenwood School as a memorial to the late Mrs. Gordon Gray. The group stood in silent tribute to Mrs. Gray.

Mrs. Wettach reported a current membership of 316, showing a gain during the year.

Woman's College Hostess Today At Annual CUSC Day

Students from Woman's College, Carolina, and State College will gather at Greensboro today and tonight for an annual Consolidated University Day, complete with "getting acquainted" activities and various recreational facilities.

Events for today include a meeting of official delegates at 2:30 this afternoon, "getting acquainted" from 3 until 5:30, a variety show from 7:15 until 8:15, and an informal dance in Elliot Hall at 8:30.

Ways Offered To Up State's Capita Income

Ways and means of lifting North Carolina from its status as the 45th state in per capita income were discussed and analyzed here last night by two economists and a sociologist.

Dr. Frank A. Hanna and Dr. B. U. Ratchford of the Duke University Department of Economics and Business Administration, and Dr. S. H. Hobbs Jr., professor of rural sociology at UNC, were members of a panel on this subject at last night's opening session of the fifth annual North Carolina Editorial Writers Conference.

Dr. Hobbs spoke primarily on ways of increasing North Carolina's income, emphasizing the importance of preserving the income the state now has and developing new sources of wealth. He suggests the state should produce and process sufficient food to feed its people and produce a surplus, better management of forest land and forest products, utilization of land resources in the tidewater region, and increasing development of marine resources.

He said the food and feed deficit of this highly agricultural state runs to better than one billion dollars a year, that the state's annual growth of timber is about one-sixth of its potential, that 100,000 truck farms could be developed if the tidewater land were drained and conditioned for agriculture, the state is capable of producing at least 25 million bushels of oysters per year, yet at present is producing around five percent of that amount.

Dr. Ratchford analyzed factors affecting income in any region—population and efficiency or productivity of workers.

Terry's Books Given Library; Was Graduate

Some 4,000 books, the private library of the late John Skall Terry, were received this week by the Library of the University.

This collection of books will be known as the "John Skall Terry Memorial Collection." It was presented to the Library by Terry's heirs, Miss Bessie Terry and Charles G. Terry of Rockingham, and Harvey S. Terry of Whiteville.

Professor Terry graduated from the University in 1918 and was a member of the faculty of New York University at the time of his death last June. His library, which consists mostly of books relating to English, literature, and creative writing, is well known in the literary field.

Professor Terry and Thomas Wolfe were personal friends and much of Terry's writings are about the famous North Carolina novelist.

Contralto Sets Recital In Hill This Tuesday

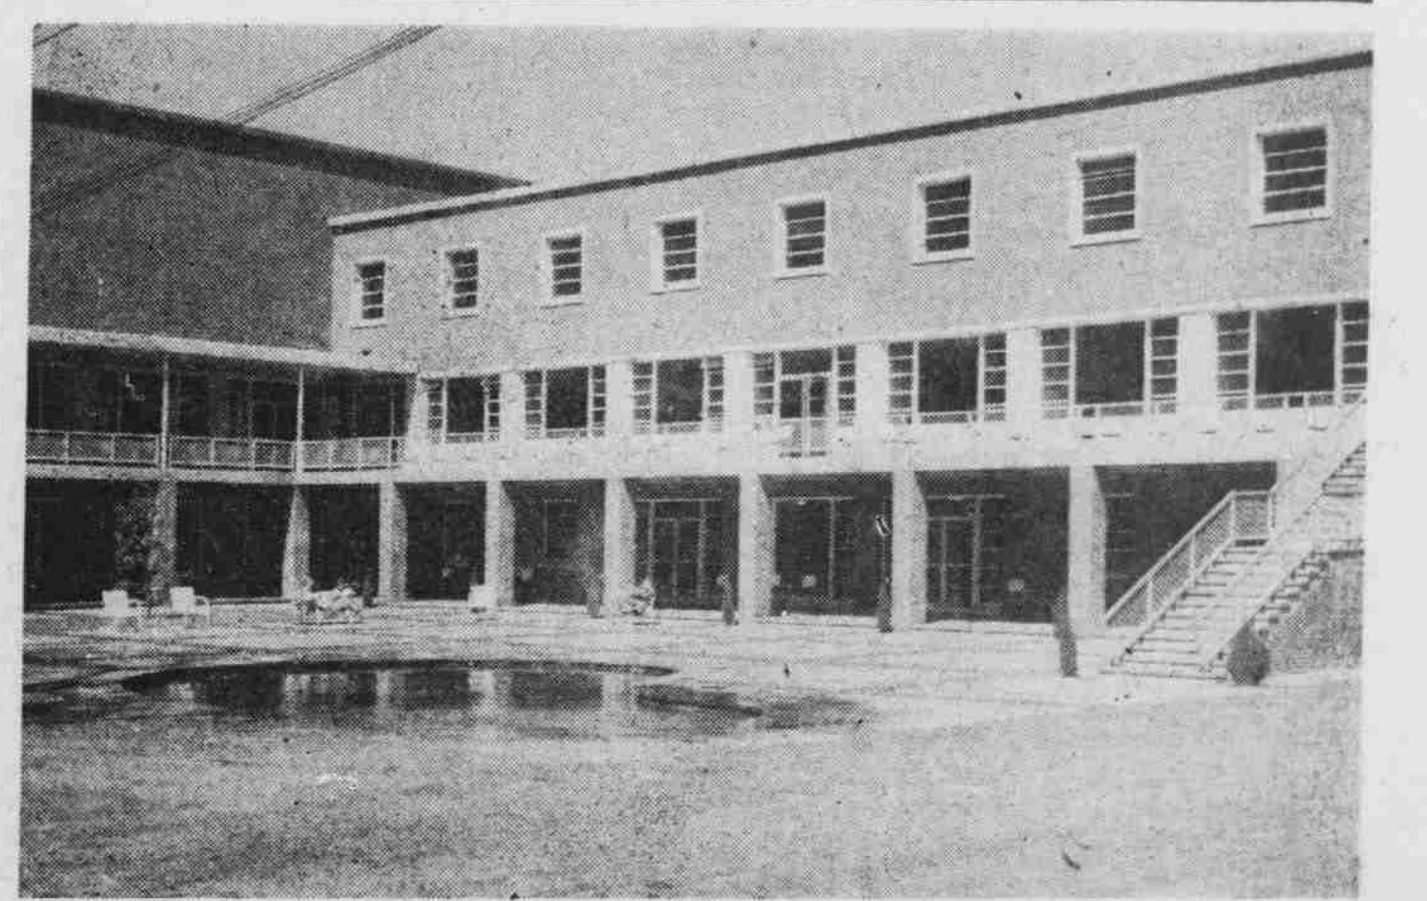

Mary MacKenzie of Croton-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., contralto, will give a recital in Hill Hall Tuesday at 8 o'clock. She will be accompanied by Prof. Wilton Mason of the Music Department.

Miss MacKenzie, a scholarship student at the Juilliard School of Music, was selected by the Metropolitan Opera Company to appear on its radio program, "Met Audition of the Air" in 1953. On March 1, this year, Miss MacKenzie made her New York debut as winner of the Hebrew Association Young Artist Award. She also won the New York Singing Teacher's Award in 1953 and has been an active member of the Juilliard Opera Theatre.

Four Coeds, Three Men Picked June Marshals

Charlie Yarborough, president of the rising senior class, has announced the selection of seven commencement marshals to serve at the June graduation exercises.

The marshals named include four coeds and three men. They are Carroll Butts, Patsy Daniels, Dorothy Pigel, Nancy Whisnant, Bill Calvert, Tom Creasy, and Rollie Tillman.
