

Powledge Picked M.E.; Peacock, Sports Editor

FRED POWLEDGE
... into The Slot

Fred Powledge and Tom Peacock were named managing editor and sports editor, respectively, of The Daily Tar Heel yesterday by Editor Charles Kuralt.

Powledge, a sophomore from Raleigh, has worked for the campus newspaper since September of last year, when he enrolled in the University. Since then, he has taken the duties of general writer, and dormitory and political reporter.

The new managing editor worked last summer for Pulitzer Prize-winner Horace Carter, a Carolina graduate and former Daily Tar Heel editor. Powledge was editor of one of Carter's newspapers, The Loris (S.C.) Sentinel, a weekly.

Peacock, who was sports editor of The Daily Tar Heel for most of last year, returned to the newspaper's staff after a spring leave of absence. The senior is a native of Arlington, Va., and a veteran of many years' newspaper experience.

Peacock's duties include supervising the sports page of The Daily Tar Heel and writing a sports column, "Tar Heel Sports." Powledge will be responsible for the news pages of the newspaper, and for a general supervision of The Daily Tar Heel.

Dooley Named New BA Chief

Arch Richard Dooley is the new Dean of the School of Business Administration, Chancellor Robert B. House announced this summer.

Dean Dooley has served as Assistant Dean for two years and has been a member of the faculty since 1950.

He will assume the duties of his office in September, 1955. Meanwhile, during the coming year, he will serve on the faculty of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration.

He had committed himself to the Harvard appointment before being offered the deanship at Chapel Hill.

During the period between now and September, 1955, when Dean Dooley returns to Chapel Hill, Richard J. M. Hobbs, professor of business administration, will be acting dean.

Dean Dooley will succeed Thomas H. Carroll, who resigned from the University recently to accept an appointment as vice president of the Ford Foundation.

During the past year Dean Dooley has also served as chairman of Graduate Studies in Business Administration. A native of Oklahoma City, Okla., he is a graduate of Yale University and of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration. His teaching activities have been in the area of production and industrial management.

Kraar To Fill Executive Post In NSA Group

Louis Kraar, Charlotte, associate editor of The Daily Tar Heel, has been named a member of the interim executive committee of an independent national group composed of 24 college editors from all parts of the country to consider the problem of censorship in the student press.

Kraar

Announcement of Kraar's appointment to the 10-member national executive committee, which represents wide geographic distribution of college weeklies and dailies, was made at the meeting of the Seventh National Student Association Congress held recently at Iowa State College.

Called the National Association for a Free College Press, the new group hopes to provide a mechanism for investigation of alleged breaches of editorial freedom in the college press, and for reporting its finding throughout the country.

Kraar held several positions with The Daily Tar Heel before his promotion to associate editor, being managing editor last year. He has also served on the staff of the Atlanta Journal-Constitution and worked with the Chapel Hill News Leader this summer.

According to procedure set up by the newly-formed association, action on an alleged violation of press freedom would be initiated when an editor of the campus paper involved notified the executive committee chairman.

The chairman would then contact the executive committee member nearest the paper to establish an investigation group including a member of the national advisory board and several other college editors in the area.

The new group's stated belief is that the censoring agency, whether it be student government, university administration or some outside group directly influencing the administration, would be highly sensitive to the prospect of having its censoring activity reported throughout the country with resultant national publicity.

Weaver Spells Out Drinking Policy

Higher University Fees Considered

President Gray Against Raise

Fred Weaver Gets Position Of Student Affairs Dean

RALEIGH—The possibility of future raises on the costs of University tuition and dormitory rent loomed over returning students' pocketbooks yesterday after administrative officials finished a session with the State's Advisory Budget Commission.

The question of a fee raise came Wednesday when LeRoy Martin, a commission member, asked State College Chancellor Carey Bostian what would be the effect on his student body of an increase in tuition, room rent or other fees. Chancellor Bostian said that an increase would "deprive many youths of an opportunity to obtain technical training."

President Gordon Gray expressed the hope that "it will not be necessary to raise costs to the students." It is a North Carolina tradition, he said, to provide higher education which is as near as possible tuition free.

And Chancellor E. K. Graham of Woman's College said that a tuition raise at his institution would be "perfectly disastrous," adding that it would be difficult to show this in figures.

Consolidated University Vice President W. D. Carmichael, brought open the question of increased dorm rent when he told the commission that he would ask them to join him in requesting the legislature to pass an act which would allow the University to build dormitories with loans which could be repaid from rentals.

Presently, room rentals to students cover, in most cases, only operational costs. However, Carmichael said the rents could be raised to cover the cost of construction, too, without "undue hardship" on the students.

President Gray asked for an increase in his general administration budget from $79,207 this year to $129,263 the first year of the next biennium and $188,255 the second year.

Included in the administration (See BUDGET, P. 4)

Fred H. Weaver, Dean of Students since 1943, became Dean of Student Affairs on July 1. The announcement was made last summer by President Gordon Gray and Chancellor Robert B. House.

The change in title is a part off a change in the administrative structure of the University whereby a number off closely related administrative functions will be organized into one division, the Division of Student Affairs.

The Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees has approved the formation of this Division and the recommendations of President Gray and Chancellor House to make Weaver the administrative officer in charge.

The Division of Student Affairs will comprise the following offices and activities. Admissions; Records and Registration; Student Financial Aid, including scholarships; Student Activities, including the Student Union, the YMCA and the YWCA; Student Health Service; Testing Service; Counseling; Placement Service; The Office of Dean of Women, and Housing.

As Dean of Student Affairs, Chancellor House said, Weaver will be responsible to the chancellor for the development and conduct of a program of student affairs designed to strengthen the educational benefits to the students deriving from their experiences outside the classroom. He will be responsible for formulating policies and programs of student welfare and for direction of the activities enumerated above.

The Chancellor pointed out that the organizational changes in the area of student affairs are in accordance with a plan to organize the administrative structure of the University at Chapel Hill into five general areas with a single administrative officer at the head of each under the Chancellor.

These are academic affairs, student affairs, business affairs, development and health affairs. This pattern of organization, he said, has been widely adopted in institutions of higher education in this country.

The drinking statement differs from the old visiting agreement in two respects. There is no distinction between coeds and "imports", or non-coeds. And there are specific hours during which visiting may occur.

Weaver also pointed out that there is a chance that resident housemothers will be required of fraternity houses in the near future. The Administrative Board of Student Affairs and other faculty members recommended the housemother requirement to the chancellor last spring.

"The University disapproves drinking by students and it looks to student government to support this policy so far as possible," Weaver said.

"The fact that the regulation has not been rigidly enforced does not mean that the University can disregard it or approve a plan which is conflicting with it.

"University representatives participating in the discussions last spring did not elect to request the Trustees to withdraw or modify this rule. Student government may at any time renew to the President. Also, every year students are given the opportunity to appear before the Visiting Committee of the Board of Trustees. They are free to petition for withdrawal or modification of the rule at that time," Weaver added.

The controversy over drinking—specifically drinking in fraternity houses with coeds—started last spring when the president of the student body, then Bob Graham, declared that as of April 1, drinking in fraternity houses would be approved.

The Administration reacted to the statement by canceling all coed visiting in the houses, and a series of discussions were begun between student, faculty and administration representatives. No specific action was taken by the student - faculty - administration group, although the administration and faculty members made suggestions to the chancellor—including the housemother one.

Just how long it will be before fraternities will be required to have resident housemothers is not known, but it is understood that this was suggested as a long-range move. The housemother requirement in the past has raised serious financial questions in fraternity circles.

The campus calendar of coming events for the '54-'55 school year is completed and will be available free of charge during open house at Graham Memorial Saturday.

The calendar is a wallet sized booklet listing time, and place for cultural, political, and other programs scheduled for the year. There is also space for individual dates and a list of campus organizations and their presidents.

3 Hostesses Announced For Women's Dorm

Three new hostesses for coed housing at the University of North Carolina have been announced by Dr. Katherine Carmichael, Dean of Women.

They are Mrs. Charles Baldwin Seward Sr., a native of Petersburg, Va., who transferred from the Beta Theta Pi Fraternity here to Carr Dormitory for women; Mrs. Norwood Bizzell, who transferred from the Chi Phi Fraternity to be housemother for the Chi Omega Sorority, and Mrs. Leslie Babcock of New Bern, widow of Colonel Leslie Babcock, who will be at the Pi Beta Phi Sorority house.

Mrs. Seward is replacing Mrs. Florence Highsmith at Carr Dormitory for women this year. She was librarian at the Marion Public Library in Marion, Va., for several years before coming to Chapel Hill in 1949. Mrs. Seward has two daughters, a son and six grandchildren.

A native of Goldsboro, Mrs. Bizzell will serve as housemother at the Chi Omega Sorority house succeeding Mrs. Eugenia Lockhart Bizzell. She came to Chapel Hill four years ago and since that time has been housemother to the Chi Phi Fraternity.

Mrs. Leslie E. Babcock of New Bern, widow of Colonel Leslie Babcock, has been appointed housemother of Pi Beta Phi sorority succeeding Mrs. Charles Snow. Mrs. Babcock, with her husband, has lived in many areas of the United States and abroad. She has two sons.

Hostesses in the other women's residences are Mrs. Bessie Buchanan, Spencer; Mrs. J. C. Clamp, Alderman; Mrs. Florence Cook, Melver; Mrs. Sedalia Gold, Smith; Mrs. Victor Humphreys, Kenan; Mrs. Eleanor C. Carter, Delta Delta Delta Sorority; Mrs. Daphne Maxwell, Alpha Delta Pi Sorority; Mrs. Ernest Graham, Kappa Delta Sorority, and Mrs. L. C. Patee, Alpha Gamma Delta Sorority.

Mrs. Roberta Brower will continue as hostess in the dormitory of the School of Nursing. She will have jurisdiction over students who are nurses, medical technicians, dental hygienists and certain graduate students.

Staff Meeting Today

The Daily Tar Heel staff will meet this afternoon at 4 in the newsroom, second floor, Graham Memorial. Students interested in any phase of work on The Daily Tar Heel should be present, as well as old-timers on the staff, according to an announcement by Editor Charles Kuralt.

Melon Festival Drew Big Gate

The annual Chapel Hill Watermelon Festival highlighted local activities for the month of June.

The Festival, held June 25 under the Davie Poplar, drew a crowd of more than 1,000 townspeople, summer-school students and faculty members.

Climaxing the affair was the crowning of the Festival Queen, Miss Barbara Stone and her king, assistant Tar Heel football coach Marvin Bass.

Administration members and faculty alike let down their academic hair and came in sports shirts. Chancellor Robert B. House picked up his baby granddaughter and square danced with her as Bob Cole's Country Boys ground out hillbilly music from atop a huge wooden platform erected in front of Alumni Building.

High spot of the evening came when a musical combo of faculty and administration members took the platform. Chancellor House played harmonica, Roy Armstrong, director of admissions, played an ocarina, Roy Holsten, acting dean of students, banged on drums, Ernest L. Mackie, dean of awards, strummed a mandolin, Guy Johnson alternated between the triangle and cymbals and Guy Phillips, head of the summer school, joined in on the maracas.

At one point in the program many of the hundreds of youngsters present jumped on the wooden stage and gathered about Graham Memorial Director Jim Wallace, who was performing on the piano. They kept advancing toward him until he finally had to stop playing. Wallace stood up and looking at the kids, exclaimed, "My name is Wallace, not Hans Christian Anderson."

A young lady from India, Purabi Bose, did a native dance, lending a cosmopolitan touch to the folksy gathering. A little boy ran to his mother saying, "Isn't that gypsy a nice dancer?" And the mother explained to her young son about a far-off land called India.

After it was all over, and the kids were on the way home and the students were on the way to the Y court for a square dance, one couple who were obviously newcomers to Chapel Hill were heard talking:

"What kind of poplar tree is a Davie Poplar? I never heard of that kind of wood," the man said.

Chapel Hill High Senior Sets New Swim Mark

Penny Martin, senior at Chapel Hill High, set a meet record in the Southern Peach AAU Swimming Meet last June 20 at La Grange, Ga.

Her winning time over a large field of entrants in the 220-yard junior national back stroke event was three minutes, six and two-tenths seconds. She and Vicki Greulach and several University students represented the Chapel Hill Swimming Club at the meet, held at the Callaway Mills pool.

Penny also placed second in the 100-yard back stroke, and third in the 200-yard freestyle.

Woodhouse To Direct College

Carolina's "Man in the White Suit," Prof. Edward James Woodhouse, who decided to "retire" last spring after 28 years on the UNC faculty, started out after a new horizon last month.

The 70-year-old educator and former mayor of Northampton, Mass. (1924-25), packed up his books, family and memories of Chapel Hill and moved them all to Conway, S. C. to start and direct a new junior college—the Coastal Carolina College—in the county seat of Harry County, center of rich South Carolina tobacco lands.

The loved professor became a part of Chapel Hill in 1925, the same year he gave up his mayorship of the Massachusetts city. Since then, he has become a vital—and often outspoken—part of Chapel Hill.

In May, when the University Young Democrat Club sponsored a "Joe Must Go" parade and rally, the venerable Prof. Woodhouse lashed out at the junior senator from Wisconsin, declaring that ted Stutes, his state and made the McCarty had "disgraced the United States a laughing stock in the ears of the world."

Prof. Woodhouse—dressed in one of his familiar white linen suits—said he felt "pleased, embarrassed, humbled and proud at the same time" when, on the first of June, a handsome por-
