Backfield Aces Hurt Against Virginia Tech

By Bernie Weiss

N. C. State's slim chances of breaking its seven-year losing streak to Carolina this Saturday took a drop today when it was announced that Don Langston and Eddie West, the two top men in the State backfield, would see little or no action in the game.

Both men were injured last Saturday when State dropped its opener to Virginia Tech, 30-21.

Langston, the No. 1 fullback and team captain, had averaged five yards per try on five carries when he was removed from the contest early in the first quarter. He injured his knee in a pile-up, and it is assumed that he will be out of action for two or three weeks.

West, operating at quarterback, sustained a severe hip displacement later in the game. According to State officials, West will not practice at all this week, but if he is feeling well enough by Saturday he may see limited duty.

Starting in place of Langston at full will be sophomore Harrison MacKeever, just off the last season's freshman squad where he was rated the best backfield prospect. West's probable replacement is Billy Franklin, also up from the frosh.

Tar Heel fans will remember well Langston's performance against Carolina in '33. The six-foot, one-inch, 18-pound senior was State's biggest ground-gainer. He picked up 58 yards in 11 tries, and also scored the only Wolfpack touchdown as Carolina won, 29-7. Meanwhile, Carolina, readying for Saturday's Kenan Stadium tussle, drilled at Navy Field today briefly, then moved into the stadium to work on defense behind locked gates.

Ken Keller, injured slightly in Friday's scrimmage against Fort Eustis, did not participate, but will be ready for the game.

The game is scheduled for two o'clock.

GIANTS ARE IN

BROOKLYN, Sept. 20—The New York Giants buried Brooklyn tonight and danced a jig on the grave to celebrate the clinching of the National League pennant in the park where they are loved least—Ebbets Field. Sal Maglie presided with a five-hitter while his mates whooped it up with a 7-1 victory.

Returning Lettermen And Promising Sophs Boost Cross-Country Hopes

Seven returning lettermen and sophomore Jim Beatty will carry the fortunes of the Carolina cross-country team this season, according to Coach Dale Ransom.

John Barden, the Tar Heel's No. 1 man last season, will be back for more action; teamed with Beatty, the top frosh runner last fall, the pair should give the Carolina squad the best one-two punch in several years. Both Barden and Beatty set several records last year.

Letteman Boyd Newman is the ACC out-door half-mile champion. Other returning veterans are Hugh Hester, Geoge McGee and Edward Vogel. Besides Beatty, last year's freshmen team will furnish eight good runners for the cross-country jaunt.

The Tar Heels have been going through their daily paces on the Fetzer Field layout and after the first few workouts Ransom believes that he has a vastly improved team. "However," the veteran mentor emphasized, "the competition should improve a great deal too."

The 27-man varsity squad opens the season with North Carolina State on November 2. The frosh will also run against State the same day. Ransom has issued an invitation to all distance runners to come out for the team.

Albert Marx, the team's No. 4 runner last year, does not plan to complete and Ransom is quick to point out that his loss will be a hard blow to the team.

Tony Houghton and Don Wright will co-captain the squad. Houghton copped second place in the Atlantic Coast Conference out-door two-mile run in the spring. Glenn Nanney, who placed fifth in the same race, will be competing for the first time in the cross-country races.
