Miss Bobbie Lee Moretz:

UNC Miss Named 1954 CU Queen

A pretty, 5'7" UNC dramatic arts major walked out on the Kenan Stadium turf yesterday and was named Consolidated University Day Queen for 1954.

The winner, Miss Bobbie Lee Moretz, from Elizabethton, Tenn., was named CU Day Queen by Judges Thad Eure Sr., N. C. Secretary-of-State, and Mr. and Mrs. Kay Kyser of Chapel Hill. The UNC girl was crowned at half-time during the Carolina-State game yesterday.

to go into professional dramatics after graduation, is a transfer from Stephens College in Columbia, Mo. The blue-eyed, brown-haired coed was escorted by Bill Chapman, UNC student.

She received a $10 gift certificate from Robbins clothing store in Chapel Hill, a bouquet of roses from University Florist and a loving cup.

Miss Moretz did not know she was the winner of the contest yesterday.

Debate Squad Will Meet

The University Debate Squad will hold its first meeting of the year tomorrow afternoon.

President Bev Webb of Greensboro announced yesterday that the squad's first meeting would be for purposes of explaining debating at Carolina and of outlining the group's plans for the coming year.

Webb said the team's debate topic for this year is: "Resolved: That the United States should give diplomatic recognition to the communist government of China."

Webb said the members of the squad will begin study of the resolution at future meetings, at which times group discussions will be held on various aspects of the question.

Yack

Sophomores and law students will have their Yackety-Yack pictures taken tomorrow through Friday, between the hours of 1 and 3 p.m., according to annual Co-Editors Jackie Park and Cornell Wright. Pictures will be taken in the basement of Graham Memorial.

UNC Rolls Over State Caissons, 20 To 6; Win Is Carolina's Eighth Over Wolfpack

Kenan Pines Kinda Quiet At State Game

By JERRY REECE

It was ice-cream instead of beer and "big oranges" instead of bourbon as Carolina and State both opened their 1954 football seasons in Kenan Stadium yesterday afternoon.

Everyone was there from Bushy and Rameses to the familiar Jones Pork Sausage airplane; it was the familiar CU Day setting with the "Cow College Cousins" cheering their heads off and the WC coeds just demurely watching and waiting, and even Deacon Andy Griffith was there but at times the only partially-filled stands seemed bored with it all.

It may have been the conspicuous lack of imbibing of alcohol or the unseasonable warm weather, or it may have just been that everyone knew what was going to happen (they were almost surprised). But whatever it was it was really quiet and Head Cheerleader Jimmy Fountain almost had apoplexy trying to coax a few weak cheers out of the Carolina rooters.

Polly, the Chi Psi parrot, not in her usual voice for the day, nevertheless was able to let out a few squawks when Head Cheerleader Jim Fountain gave her an open mike.

Polly is well over 20 years old and is famous for her witty back-room epithets.

Although there were 28 busloads of them, not a whisper could be heard when Jim asked for the WC girls to give forth with a yell.

Talk about cows—Did you see that State player who went out of bounds and hopped over the fence?

Maybe it was just a cold shudder instead of a "We don't give a damn for . . ." when the announcer told the stadium about the Blue Devils' 52-0 win over Penn. It's a long, long time until November, anyway.

'Hayde, hidee, goshalmitee" was the newest of yells that Cheerleader Fountain and his talented cohorts offered for the day.

Deacon Griffin was one of the brighter spots of the afternoon with his familiar but always humorous "What It Was, Was Football" and he got more student response than both teams together.

The card stunts seemed way above average but you couldn't have told it by watching for reaction on the State side of the field (toward which the stunts were aimed).

And in case you are wondering who those characters in the weird headgear and costumes were, they were new initiates of the "13 Club."

Carry Fight To The Governor?

Council Against Fee Raise

The Consolidated University Student Council yesterday adopted unanimously a resolution against a raise in tuition in the University's three branches.

A projected tuition raise was hinted last week during meetings of the State Advisory Budget Commission, which makes recommendations to the State Legislature. Some legislators are said to feel higher tuition is the only answer for increasing University financial needs.

But the representatives of State, WC and UNC student bodies yesterday protested the idea vigorously. Indications in the meeting were that the Consolidated Council is prepared to carry the fight directly to the governor and the General Assembly if necessary to prevent the tuition hike.

CUSC members also agreed on a resolution calling new dormitories the foremost permanent improvement need of the three schools and urging the General Assembly to give them top priority when funds are handed out in January. In other actions, the group es-

Newman, Gravitte, Klochack Rack Up Tar Heel Tallies

North Carolina's Tar Heels, coming through with an insurance touchdown in the last two minutes of play, yesterday beat N. C. State, 20-6, in the opening game of the season in Kenan Stadium.

More than 22,000 fans watched Carolina make it eight straight over the Wolfpack from Raleigh.

Barclay Calls Carolina's Win 'Team Victory'

By LARRY SAUNDERS

"It was a team victory. We made a lot of mistakes but we're gonna do better." The speaker was head coach George Barclay, whose Carolina football team had just won its opening game from N. C. State.

The Tar Heel dressing room was not a beehive of activity. Players sat on the benches, quietly, some talking over plays, some saying nothing. Barclay and line coach Marvin Bass walked around the room congratulating their ball players on a hard-fought game.

State's Coach Earle Edwards Down Fighting

By BOB DILLARD

"If we had made those two yards in the third quarter, we might still be playing." These were the words of a beaten, but not disgraced coach. Coach Earle Edwards' Wolfpack lost yesterday afternoon in Kenan Stadium, but to the eye of someone looking at the faces of the Wolfpack team after the game, they had not been humbled; they went down fighting.

There was no one sitting in the dressing room with his head in his hands, yet there was no one laughing. The room wasn't still, but then there was no horseplay. The team entered the room, went to their lockers and began to undress.

"We weren't up for this game any more than usual for the second game of the season. We hadn't talked about it much at all. Were we Al?"

Al D'Angelo: "No." "We enjoyed the game," said Coach Edwards. "We had a chance right up to the end." Another coach: "We're proud of you boys. We made some mistakes, but so did they. We'll get them next time."

Quarterback Marshall Newman, who started and piloted the Tar Heels throughout most of the game, tallied in the second quarter to give Coach George Barclay's charges the lead. Connie Gravitte followed with another score in the third period and Don Klochack hit pay-dirt in the final quarter for the three N. C. touchdowns.

State guard Mike Nardone accounted for all of the Wolfpack's scoring when he intercepted a pass and hustled 25 yards to the promised land midway the third period.

Both teams gained an equal number of first downs, 14, and Carolina outtrushed State by only 28 yards. It was through the air where the Tar Heels bested State statistically. The winners completed eight of 15 passes for 116 yards while the Wolves, who lost their eighth straight contest over a two-year span, were able to connect on only five of 14 aerials for a passing yardage of 17.

Carolina employed three quarterbacks . . . Newman, Long and Len Bullock. Bullock's appearance was brief, playing only about four minutes in the final period, but he quickly proved himself when he maneuvered the last UNC touchdown from 38 yards out in seven plays. Klochack bulled his way over on a hand-off from three yards out for the score. Barclay stated after the game that he was well pleased with all three quarterbacks.

Newman Big Ground-Gainer

Newman was Carolina's big ground-gainer. The blond-haired junior carried 12 times for a total of 76 yards, averaging 5.8 yards per carry. Gravitte had an average of 4.9. In the air, Newman tried 13 passes, connecting on six for a total of 99 yards and one touchdown.

Newman also tossed one touchdown pass for State. In the third
