University Painter Undoes Weekend's Doings

While UNC Beat State, State Vandalized UNC

A group of cousins from "Cow College" (N. C. State to frosh), evidently foreseeing ultimate defeat at the hands of the Tar Heels in Kenan Stadium on Saturday afternoon evidently left their mark on the UNC campus the night before. Three noticeable acts of vandalism were reported; if there were others, they went unnoticed. "Silent Sam," the confederate monument next to Graham Memorial, was splashed with black paint and a beer bottle was attached to his rifle sling. Then, to top the evening off, the initials "N-C-S" were burned into the grass on the lawn of the planetarium building. Director of Operations J. S. Bennett, who is in charge of grounds, declined to comment on the incident.

Only Two Arrests
In spite of the fact that 22,000 people attended the Carolina-State football game, only two students were arrested Saturday night. One student was arrested for drunken driving while the other made the grave error of parking in front of a fire hydrant. (The Chapel Hill Police were happy to note that there was not one student picked up at the football game for drunkenness, and they also reported that they did not see any student intoxicated.)

No Action Yet On IFC-DTH Disagreement

The Inter-Fraternity Council met last night but did not consider again the question of whether to allow The Daily Tar Heel to cover its meetings. The reason for the Council's failure to consider the question again last night was the sparse attendance at the meeting, according to Ed McCurry, IFC vice president. The IFC voted last week to keep its meetings secret. Since then it has been suggested that the Council might be willing to have a reporter at its regular meetings if it could retain the right of calling a secret executive session to consider matters which it did not want reported. McCurry indicated that the IFC will probably consider the matter at its meeting next Monday night.

Chess Meeting
The Chess Club will hold its first meeting of the year tonight at 8 o'clock in Roland Parker rooms 1 and 2 of Graham Memorial. Plans for tournaments and other activities will be discussed and a rapid transit tournament will be held for all those who would like to participate. There will also be instruction for beginners and interested advanced players. All are cordially invited.

The bottle, along with quite a quantity of black paint, appeared on Sam after last weekend's Carolina-State game. Pieter hastened to tell reporters that he didn't put the bottle up there.—R. B. ## SP Delays Committee Findings

By RUTH DALTON
A committee report was begun and then abruptly stopped when it was learned that a member of The Daily Tar Heel reporting staff was present at the meeting of the Student Party last night.

David Reid, vice chairman, who presided in the absence of Chairman Joel Fleishman, called on Charles Wolf for a report on the committee appointed at the SP meeting last week to investigate or formulate plans for introducing a bill in the Legislature which would prevent executive sessions from being closed to the press.

The committee was organized after the Daily Tar Heel was barred from an IFC meeting. Wolf started by commenting that members of the newspaper staff had come running to the SP last Monday night for the party to take action. At this point, Wolf asked if a member of The Daily Tar Heel staff were present, and upon receiving an affirmative answer, he stated that he had no report to make. After some discussion a motion was passed to give the committee another week in which to formulate its report.

Wolf also presented the program for the evening by giving his conception of the most pressing problems on the campus which the SP should try to remedy.

Among these were a means of improving or changing fraternity rushing, integration of student government, the introduction of a civil service system into student government and investigation of current social problems on campus.

Wolf also passed out copies of some 86 problems of varying importance which he thought that the party should consider during the year.

Chuck May was elected unanimously to fill the vacancy of Dorn Men's 5 in the Legislature.

Advisory Budget Commission Group Decides UNC's Biennial Fate Today

For Maryland Game:

Classless Saturday

The University Administration has granted an official holiday for Saturday, Oct. 16, so the student body may attend the UNC-Maryland game at College Park, Md.

Tom Creasy, president of the student body, said yesterday "Last May I submitted the petition for the caravan weekend to Chancellor House, and along with his favorable recommendation the petition was handed over to the schedule committee. One week later, on May 19, I received a letter from Dean C. H. Holman in which he said, 'It is the decision of the committee that a holiday should be granted for Oct. 1. No classes will be held on this day and it will be considered a football holiday. Please note that as a scheduled holiday the customary absence regulation effecting absences before and after a holiday will be in effect.'"

Creasy further stated "A caravan weekend is something we have all looked forward to for several years. I am happy it could be made possible this year. Head Cheerleader Jim Fountain has done a tremendous job getting the weekend organized. At present both Jim and University Club Chairman Bob Litaker are busy arranging transportation, hotel reservations and all the necessary details of the weekend."

CPU Discusses Integration's Effects

It has been hinted that the commission will consider also whether to recommend to the legislature a raise in tuition and dormitory fees.

Phi Inaugural Slated Tonight

The Assembly of the Philanthropic Literary Society will officially begin its one-hundred and fifty-sixth year with inaugural ceremonies tonight at 8 o'clock in the Phi Hall on the fourth floor of New East.

Dr. I. G. Greer, executive vice president of the Business Foundation here at the University, will deliver the inaugural address. Dr. Greer is widely known throughout the state. He was for many years a professor at Appalachian State Teachers College and superintendent of the Baptist Orphanage at Oxford. He came here to head an office set up to foster the growth of the School of Business Administration. Dr. Greer will speak on college citizenship. Mr. Claude Teague, business manager of the University, will introduce Dr. Greer.

Officers to be inaugurated this year are: Speaker, Lewis Brumfield, a junior from Yadkinville; Speaker Pro Tem, Richard Iobst, Danville, Va.; Parliamentarian, Wade Matthews, Winston-Salem; Sergeant-at-arms, Frank Warren, Clerk, Harry Whitlock, Baltimore, Md.; Carolina Forum Representative, Bill Porterfield, Goldsboro, and Treasurer, James Duvall.

The possibility of increased fees came up at a meeting of the commission two weeks ago during which Consolidated University Vice President W. D. Carmichael told commission members he would ask them to join him in requesting the legislature to pass an act allowing the University to build dormitories with loans to be repaid from rentals.

Commission member LeRoy Martin asked State College Chancellor Carey Bostian what would be the effect on his student body if fees were increased. Bostian answered that an increase would "deprive many youths of an opportunity to obtain technical training."

Since then Bostian, President Gordon Gray and Chancellor Edward K. Graham of Woman's College have come out against a raise in student fees.

John Larkins of Raleigh is commission chairman. The commission will meet with Umstead again today.

The legislature will convene Jan. 5 and consider the commission's recommendations. It usually follows the recommendations in making appropriations.

What the commission decides to recommend will not be made public until the legislature convenes.

Gray, Chancellor Robert B. House of Carolina, Graham and Bostian met with the commission earlier this month to ask appropriations for the 1955-7 biennium.

Gray asked for an increase in his general administration budget from $79,207 this year to $129,263 for the first year of the next biennium and $188,255 for the second year.

Gray also asked for $15,000 for the new office of business manager-treasurer and secretary.

House requested an increase in the maintenance budget for the University at Chapel Hill of $905,044 for 1955-56 and one of $867,738 for 1956-57.

The University at Chapel Hill requested $1,603,500 to build a new pharmacy building and remodel Howell Hall for occupancy by the School of Journalism.

Other requested appropriations for permanent improvements were an addition to, and remodeling of, Peabody Hall: $735,000; dormitory for men, including dining room and kitchen: $1,000,000, and an addition to the physics building: $760,000.

The Advisory Budget Commission makes its recommendations to the legislature each biennium to a book called "The Budget." The book lists expenditures for the last biennium, requests for the new biennium, and the commission's recommendations as to how much of the requested appropriations should be made.

The book includes similar data on all state departments, institutions and agencies to which appropriations are made.

IDC Prexy 'Very Pleased' with Weekend

"I am very pleased with the visiting in the dormitories over the week-end. All the reports that I have received are quite favorable," Manning Muntzing, president of the Interdormitory Council, said yesterday.

Muntzing had warned dorm residents prior to the week-end that students "must be on their toes" so that "we can expect visiting on other game days to follow."

As to how much the plan was used by students, Muntzing said "The few dorms that I observed were busily engaged with entertaining their guests."

The president of the IDC said "I feel that the advisors did a tremendous job of making every one feel at home. As soon as the officers are elected, they will assume this responsibility with the assistance of the advisors. I'm sure they will do an equally fine job. Not only have the advisors done a good job, but the entire roll of residents, I feel, have responded to the new privileges."

"Some dorms not having a TV set used record players or radios, belonging to the residents for the enjoyment of the guests. Such gestures as this and the residents' making a special effort to keep the social rooms clean show the fine way in which the residents in the dorms have responded to the visiting agreement."

Roy Holsten of the Office of Student Affairs said on Sept. 22 that the present agreement was for football season only and may or may not be the first step in a permanent plan.

Di Senate

The Dialectic Senate will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in Di Hall, third floor, New West. Bev Webb will introduce the bill of the evening, which provides that men should be allowed to consume alcoholic beverages at parties with coeds, as long as the coeds do not participate.

Lynn Chandler will preside in the absence of the President, Joel Fleishman. Guests are invited to attend and participate in the debate, with the regular five-minute limitation on speaking time.
