Spirited Tar Heels Seek Victory Today Over Georgia Bulldogs For Fitz Lutz

Klochak Probable Starter; Len Bullock To Call Signals

By BERNIE WEISS

Carolina's Tar Heels take the field today at Kenan Stadium against the University of Georgia not only looking for their second win of the year but also seeking a victory for Fitz Lutz, their close friend and trainer who passed away this week.

The game is scheduled for 2 o'clock.

Science Fair Subject Of Meet Here

The use of school science fairs to encourage students in scientific careers will be studied at a two-day Regional Science Fair Work Conference to be here next Friday and Saturday.

Around 100 science teachers from North Carolina and Virginia are expected to gather in Chapel Hill to study the science fair procedure which will be carried out in these states next spring.

Dr. Arthur Roe, UNC Chemistry Department chairman, and Dewey E. Large, field representative, Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies, are co-chairmen for the event, which has been arranged by the University, in cooperation with the N. C. Academy of Science and the Oak Ridge Institute.

The teachers attending will hear discussions of science fair organization and operation by authorities from industry and science. Panel discussions, work planning sessions and material studies will be included in the program, along with the main speakers.

Main speakers will include Dr. Edward R. Kane, Director of Research, Du Pont Laboratories in Kingston; Dr. Ralph T. Overman, Chairman, Oak Ridge Special Training Division; Keith C. Johnson, Science Supervisor, District of Columbia Public Schools; and Henry A. Shannon, Science and Mathematics Adviser, N. C. State Department of Public Instruction.

Conferees will register early Friday morning, before the opening session at 10 o'clock, when Dr. Roe and Large will speak briefly. Friday will be devoted mainly to science fair theory and objectives in general.

Saturday morning the teachers will assemble according to their home educational district, to begin specific plans for the science fairs to be held in April, 1955.

Large, formerly a school administrator in Sevier County, Tenn., described a science fair as "a collection of exhibits, each of which is designed to show a biological, chemical, physical or engineering principle; a laboratory or other procedure; an industrial development; or an educational and orderly collection which can be taken as fitting into the concept of any branch of applied science."

Dr. Roe, commenting on the science fair's long range goal, said: "Especially in the 13 southeastern states and Puerto Rico, where the Oak Ridge program of distributing information on nuclear fission and fusion is being established, institutions of higher education, industry, agriculture, research foundations, and government are feeling the vital need of more local men and women who have education and training in science."

Conference officials said that representatives from industry, communication media, state departments of education, and representatives from institutions of higher education are invited to attend, along with educational administrators, instructional supervisors, and science and mathematics teachers from public, private, and parochial schools.

It is said that Lutz' last words before he died of a heart attack Monday afternoon were that he wished he could be on hand for the Georgia game. Lutz, whose innovations in protective football equipment had gained national fame, was head trainer for Georgia in 1946 when the Bulldogs beat Carolina in the Sugar Bowl. Carolina would like nothing better than to capture the game for Lutz, and from the appearance of the Tar Heels at practice yesterday a victory seems likely.

Carolina is rated a one-touchdown favorite, principally because the game is being played on home territory. Georgia has a powerful but vastly under-rated passing attack which is liable to spring forth from any point on the field at any time, according to scouting reports.

Georgia arrived in town yesterday and is making headquarters in Durham, but the team was in Kenan Stadium in the early afternoon, dressed lightly and getting the feel of the turf.

The probable starting lineups:

Georgia	Pos.	Carolina
Wilkins	LE	Frye
Mosteller	LT	Jones
Spadafino	LG	Poti
Saye	C	Stavinski
Shae	RG	Koman
White	RT	Perdue
O'Malley	RE	Malone
Harper	QB	Bullock
Bell	LH	Parker
Madison	RH	Gravitt
Garrard	PB	Klochak

Following Georgia's workout, Carolina took the field for a brief and spirited drill, stressing pass defense and offense. Toward the end of the practice the team worked out their kick-off patterns when Don Klochak wasn't booting the ball into the end zone.

Klochak, incidentally, probably will start despite a slight brain concussion he sustained this week. The big 213-pounder operates out of the fullback position. The UNC defense is sixth best in the nation, but it will certainly get a test today. Jimmy Harper, quarterback pilot of the Bulldogs, has been hailed as the new successor to Zeke Bratkowski, Georgia's All-American of 1953. Harper, only a junior, is just reaching his prime.

Revised Lineup
Carolina's Barclay, who sports the No. 1 defensive team in the Atlantic Coast Conference, has revised his starting lineup for this game in an attempt to improve the offense. The offense is fair, too, but the team doesn't score as often as the opportunities present themselves.

At quarterback for the locals will be Len "Teedee" Bullock, a junior making his first starting appearance for Carolina. Bullock, perhaps the team's No. 1 passer, gained the spot this week as a replacement for Marshall Newman. The team will have a new right end in Doug Malone, a soph replacement for Dick Stanner, while George Stavinski, also a soph, will take the place of center Bill Kirkman.

John Jones, a Richmond, Va., soph, will be in the line-up at kickoff time in place of Jack Maulsby, injured last week against Tulane.

The remaining Carolina backs will be Connie Gravitt and Larry Parker at halves, with Klochak at full. Gravitt is first in the ACC individual rushing offense department with an average of 7.2 yards per carry.

If Klochak fails to start, his place will be taken by Larry McMullen, a 200-pound soph.

Long Feud
Carolina and Georgia have been feuding on the gridiron since 1895, and their battles include one Sugar Bowl tiff, UNC has won 11 of 22 games with the Bulldogs, two of the contest being ties. The teams met in the Sugar Bowl, January 1, 1946, Georgia winning that one, 20-10.

1,100 Scouts Here Today

Some 1,100 boy scouts of Central North Carolina Council, with headquarters in Albemarle, will spend the week-end at UNC, where they will attend the Carolina-Georgia football game and participate in other activities especially planned for their visit.

The scouts are members of patrols which qualified for the trip by winning blue ribbons at the recent council camporee.

In addition to the football game they will tour the campus and attend a special showing of "The Heavens Tonight" at the Morehead Planetarium. They will bunk in the Tin Can overnight, and attend church services in Chapel Hill before returning home Sunday.

Special Show At Planetarium

A special performance of the Morehead Planetarium show, "The Heavens Tonight," will be held immediately following the Carolina-Georgia football game Saturday, Anthony Jenzano, director, announced today.

The new show, which opened Tuesday offers an interesting and colorful presentation of solar phenomena visible in the heavens at this season of the year.

One feature of the show is eight constellations pictured in color, "telling" the story of their formation. Planetarium technicians have devised an amazing illusion for this phase of the presentation.

In addition to the special performance the regular daily show open to the public will be offered at 8:30 p. m. Sunday matinee are 2, 3, and 4 p. m.

Student Shot At NU

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 8.—A Northwestern University student was shot and seriously wounded last night by a policeman who said his gun fired accidentally when he lost his balance in a chase.

The victim, struck in the side, is Crayton E. Rowe, Jr., 23, a graduate student in the University's speech school. His home is at Charlotte, N. C. His condition was described as satisfactory today at Evanston Hospital.

Fred Wynn, acting chief of Evanston police, suspended the policeman, William Labbe, pending an investigation. Wynn gave this account:

Police received from the student health center at Northwestern papers showing that Rowe had taken a psychiatric examination preparatory to commitment to Evanston Hospital. Two detectives went to his hotel from a route investigation and learned he had moved to another address.

WC Jazz Group To Gather

Jazz fans will have a chance to get together tomorrow at Woman's College for a jazz discussion group and record session. Speaking to the group will be Richardson Preyer, a jazz record collector from Greensboro. Preyer has traveled to many parts of the world in his study of the different types of jazz and during his travels has assembled an extensive collection of jazz records.

The discussion group and record session will be held at 3 p. m. in the East Lounge of Elliot Hall. On Oct. 21 a jam session will open the annual Woman's College lecture-entertainment series for 1954-55. Robert G. Reiser, curator and librarian of the Institute of Jazz Studies, New York, and teacher of jazz history at Brooklyn College and the New School for Social Studies, will be featured with his quartette. With the quartette to demonstrate all varieties of jazz, Reiser will talk on jazz history from Dixieland to more sophisticated contemporary concepts.

IDC Slates Chess Tourney

The Interdormitory Council announced yesterday that the Interdormitory Chess tournament will open the fall activities slate for the men's residence halls. The tournaments will be held in each of the nineteen men's dorms starting Tuesday, October 12.

Manning Muntzing, IDC President, pointed out that the tourney would be directed by the members of the UNC Chess Club and local dorm intramural managers, under supervision of the IDC Social Committee.

Interested players must register with their own intramural manager on or before Monday. No player who has won an intercollegiate match will be permitted to participate. Pairings will be made on Tuesday and will be placed on the dorm bulletin boards. The winners in each dorm will receive an individual trophy. These residence champions will then be entitled to participate in the interdormitory championship.

Coach Rabb, intramural activities director, added that points will be awarded to both individuals and dormitories entering the tourney. Dorm points will be awarded for entrance, achievement (matches won), and standing. Players will earn points with entrance and each victory.

Seniors Hear Furniture Man Booklet Out On Peace Study

"Determination is the keyword for the college graduate seeking a job, determination to know himself and his job market." So spoke Mr. Finley White of Whitehall Furniture Co., Durham, to some 300 seniors at a Tuesday night meeting sponsored by the University's Placement Service.

Mr. White also stated that the big three aids in job hunting are: an informative application letter, a good personal history and an impressive interview.

J. M. Calloway, director of the placement service, announced before the meeting that several other companies will be represented during the course of the year and that seniors are advised to register for the interviews.

The UNC Extension Division has just published an extension bulletin on the subject "The Role of the United Nations in the Building of World Peace" for the use of high schools participating in the World Peace Study and Speaking Program of 1954-55.

Compiled by E. R. Rankin, Director of the program, the bulletin features excerpts from addresses by many national figures as well as endorsements by leading state officials.

All high schools in the state are invited to register for the program, now in its ninth year of existence, and a "World Peace" gold key will be presented to the winning speaker from each school.

Downie Fund Gives Dental School Grant

A $100 grant, to be known as the Blanche C. Downie Memorial Fund, was presented the University of North Carolina Dental Foundation by the North Carolina State Dental Hygienists Association here Sunday.

The grant is to be used to aid a deserving second year dental hygiene student at the University.

Dean John C. Brauer of the UNC School of Dentistry received the gift on behalf of the Dental Foundation, at a tea held Sunday afternoon in the Pine Room of Carolina Inn. The tea, given by the State Dental Hygienists, was held in honor of UNC students in dental hygiene and dental hygienists who recently passed the State Board examinations.

Also representing the Dental Foundation was Mrs. Henry O. Lineberger, Raleigh, chairman, Dental Foundation Committee, of the North Carolina Auxiliary.

Miss Emma Mills, Winston-Salem, president of the State Dental Hygienists, said the initiation of the Blanche C. Downie Fund commemorates "a life-long leader in the field of dental hygiene."

"Until her death in 1953, Miss Downie set a beautiful example for young dental hygienists to follow," Miss Mills said. "She taught them to accept responsibility and to do their best in the way of making contributions to dental hygiene."

A native of Hatboro, Pa., Miss Downie graduated from the School of Oral Hygiene in the University of Pennsylvania in 1923. She became a member of the teaching staff of that school the following year, a position which she held without interruption until her death.

During her outstanding career she served as president of the Philadelphia District Dental Hygienists' Association, the Pennsylvania State Dental Hygienists' Association; the American Dental Hygienists' Association and of the University of Pennsylvania Dental Hygienists' Alumnae Association.

In addition to Miss Mills, other officers of the North Carolina Dental Hygienists Association are Miss Margaret Jones, High Point, secretary; Miss Jean Blackwell, Tryon, membership chairman, and Miss Eleanor Forbes, Chapel Hill, program chairman.

Choral Club Is Meeting Every Monday Now

The Chapel Hill Choral Club, an organization which "cuts across social and occupational barriers to find singers," according to a club spokesman, held its first practice Monday night.

Sponsored by the University's Department of Music, the Choral Club's main interest is recreating choral masterpieces. Members are drawn from among the townspeople of Chapel Hill, from neighboring communities, and from the faculty, staff and students of the University.

In recent years the Choral Club has performed such selections as: Handel's "Messiah," Mendelssohn's "St. Paul," Haydn's "Creation," and Parker's "Hora Novissima." This year the club will continue presenting others in its series of selections.

Rehearsals are held every Monday night at 7:30, and all who are interested are earnestly invited to attend. Tryouts for the club are unnecessary, and all who take interest in music are assured of a good time.

YDC Trip

The University Young Democrats Club will go to Greensboro College this Tuesday to participate in a panel discussion there.

All YDC members are urged to attend this meeting. The group will meet at the Monogram Club at 5:30 for supper and will leave from there at 6:15 p. m.

Meyner Scores U. S. Political Indifference

WUNC-TV Inaugurates Press Confab

With the Democratic governor of New Jersey, the Hon. Robert Meyner seated in a deep chair in the Graham Memorial lounge and reminding the audience of earlier pictures of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt, the first WUNC-TV "Press Conference" took place last night.

A crowd of about 150 persons gathered curiously in the lounge to watch Charles Kuralt and Fred Powledge of the Daily Tar Heel interview the governor under the glare of klieg lights.

Governor Meyner had just arrived from Hill Hall, across the campus, where he gave the first Carolina Forum address of the year on "The Art and Science of Politics."

Against the background of GM's Persian carpets and a high picture of former University president E. K. Graham, Powledge and Kuralt questioned the rising Democrat, who says he "is proud to be called a politician" about current affairs.

Asked by Kuralt about segregation, the governor said "I didn't come to North Carolina to tell the people what to do." He thinks that's a problem for this state to work out. He has been pleased by strides to eradicate racial segregation problems in his own state of New Jersey, he said.

He was optimistic about Democratic Congressional chances in November—"almost certain that we'll take the lower house of Congress."

In response to other questions by the audience, the New Jersey statesman says he favors Point Four, Reciprocal Trade Agreements, and a New Jersey state medical school.

W. S. Jenkins Is Appointed To New Post

Dr. William S. Jenkins, Professor of Political Science, has been appointed Documents Consultant to the University Library.

Dr. Jenkins received his Ph.D. here in 1927, and a LL.B. in 1931. In 1943 he received a M.A. in Military Government from Columbia University. He has been a member of the Carolina faculty since 1930.

Dr. Jenkins was director of the 1941-1950 project, sponsored jointly by the Library of Congress and the University of North Carolina, which produced the great microfilm collection of early state records. The project has been widely acclaimed as one of the most prominent contributions to legal and historical research in the United States.

Person Show Runs 'Til 26th

"Recent Work By Young Americans" will comprise the art exhibition to be shown in Person Hall Art Gallery through Oct. 26.

The exhibition will consist of 30 works in oil, watercolor, crayon and pencil, noted for their individuality, vitality and experimental spirit.

Included among the young artists are Rudolf Baranik, Irving Driesberg, Conrad Marca-Relli, Ruth Hageman, Alfred Leslie, Kenzie Okada and Robert Parker. Fluctuating between the abstract and the representational, they untiringly seek to formulate and crystallize their own artistic modus.

Rev. V. Barron To Be Installed Tomorrow A.M.

Tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock in special services the Rev. Vance Barron will be installed as minister of the Chapel Hill Presbyterian Church.

All friends of the church, both in Chapel Hill and in other communities, are invited to attend the services. Following the installation there will be a reception for the Rev. and Mrs. Barron in the church parlor.

The laymen and ministers in Orange Presbytery who will take part in the services are the Rev. John Whitley, minister of the First Presbyterian Church of Leaksville, pastoral prayer, the Rev. Chalmers McCutchen, minister of the First Presbyterian Church of Sanford, charge to the congregation, Howard Holderness, elder of the First Presbyterian Church, Greensboro, charge to the congregation, the Rev. James A. Jones, minister of Myers Park Presbyterian Church, Charlotte, sermon, and the Rev. Roy E. Watts, minister of the First Presbyterian Church of High Point, who will officiate over the services as chairman of the installation commission.

The Rev. Mr. Barron, a native of Arkansas, comes to the Chapel Hill Presbyterian Church from the Second Presbyterian Church of Charleston of which he has been minister for the past four years. He and his family moved here last week, following acceptance of an official call extended to him by the congregation in September.

The church here has been without a regular minister since the resignation of the Rev. Charles M. Jones a year ago. The Rev. Robert J. McMullen, acting pastor during most of the interim, has recently retired from the active ministry.

IWC-IDC Set Picnic As First Activity

The Independent Women's Council will begin its yearly program with a picnic Tuesday on the side lawn of Melver. All independent women are cordially invited to attend and tickets for admission are being issued.

The IDC is also cooperating with the IWC in issuing tickets to about 150 men.

Ron Levin will provide entertainment along with a male barbershop quartet and a skit by the girls group.

The IWC is composed of representatives from all the women's dorms and Town Girls Association.

This year's council consists of: Marilyn Zager, pres.; Pal Langston, vice-pres.; Libby Whitfield, sec.-treas. Representatives: Jackie McCarthy, Joy Carter, and Jackie Stogner — Carr; Mary Jo Wright and Joanne Wilson — Alderman; Phyllis Shepherd, Carol Moore, and Joanne Krieger — McIver; Sandra Wax and Derlie James — Spencer; and Susan Fuchs — Smith.

N. J. Governor Hits Those Who 'Sneer'

Gov. Robert B. Meyner, Democrat of New Jersey, last night scored "the general cynicism and indifference of the American people toward politics and politicians."

He spoke here under the auspices of the Carolina Forum, non-partisan student organization, which brings to the campus prominent representatives of varying shades of political and economic opinion.

Governor Meyner, who was inaugurated last January for a four-year term and who is a former U. S. Senator, discussed politics as a career.

"These people who are forever griping about politicians are often the same persons who take no direct interest in public affairs — some of them don't even vote," he asserted.

"A good many business and professional men shun politics as though it were some kind of virus. They sneer at politicians. Yet these same people do not hesitate to seek political favors when it profits them to do so. Nor do they hesitate to ask politicians to do unethical things, from fixing parking tickets on up."

Governor Meyner added that "there is nothing whatever to prevent businessmen from going into politics; and I somehow feel they can do so with greater success if they will keep in mind that what is good for their business is not necessarily what is best for the country."

Admitting the possibility that some politicians fall in the classification of crooks and chiselers, Governor Meyner expressed his faith in the great majority of public servants as "honest, faithful and capable persons."

"A man in public life who is disloyal to his trust is far more likely to be exposed than a man in private industry, business or a learned profession. The public man is always under the watchful eye of the press."

Expressing his pride in being called a politician, the Governor defined creative politics as "testing new ideas in the light of the needs and aspirations of the people."

Quoting from an article in the New York Times last Sunday, he agreed that in politics it is sometimes necessary to compromise, provided essential principles are not violated.

"No man who is oversensitive to criticism should enter public life, for he is sure to get plenty of it. And no man who cannot face defeat should be a politician, because the people can throw him out of work—and often do."

Saying he was delighted to be in North Carolina, Governor Meyner paid tribute to former University President Frank P. Graham and to editor Jonathan Daniels.

North Carolina, he said, has been for some time in the forefront of Southern progress. "And its State University has won an illustrious place in the educational history of the nation and enjoys a great tradition in student government."

Dr. J. Carlyle Sitterson, professor of history, introduced Governor Meyner. Joel Fleischman, senior from Fayetteville, and Carolina Forum chairman, presided. The address was given in Hill Hall.

Preceding the address, the Carolina Forum gave a small dinner party at the Carolina Inn in honor of the Governor. A public reception in Graham Memorial followed the speech.

Governor Meyner said in his address that "there is also a kind of politics that specializes in resistance to change—in preservation." (See GOVERNOR, p. 3)
