Tar Heel-Deacon Fight Is Termed Reflection On The ACC; Chancellor Comments

GREENSBORO (AP)—"I've been in football for nearly 40 years and never saw anything like it," observed Jim Weaver, Atlantic Coast Conference commissioner, yesterday in commenting on the free-for-all between Wake Forest and the University of North Carolina football players Saturday at Chapel Hill.

"It's just one of those things you can't anticipate," he said, adding, "It's a reflection on the entire conference, not merely the schools involved."

Weaver, who saw the game, won by North Carolina, 14-7, said that any report of the four officials would have to come from the office of Wallace Wade, Southern Conference commissioner. The Southern's official booking office has been serving since the AAC's formation last year and will continue to do so through the coming basketball season. That was part of the agreement between the groups when they parted.

In Durham, Wade said that he had not received any report from the four officials or heard anything from either of the schools.

"All I know is what I've read in the papers," he declared. "However," he added, "officials make a routine report on each game to M. P. 'Footsie' Knight, office secretary the week after a game. Knight and I often discuss these reports. As yet, none has been received. Of course, we are in a peculiar situation regarding the Atlantic Coast Conference."

"Our office is concerned merely with the appointment and control of our officials in ACC games. If questions arise concerning players or representatives of ACC institutions that is a problem for the office of the ACC commissioners."

"From what I have read in appears that most of the trouble took place after the game when the officials no longer had control or responsibility."

George Barclay and T. P. "Chuck" Erickson, head football coach and athletic director, respectively, at the University of North Carolina, invited sports writers to Chapel Hill at any time to view movies of the game.

Simultaneously, Chancellor Robert B. House of the Chapel Hill institution asserted: "Athletic teams of the University of North Carolina have, we think, a national reputation for clean play and good sportsmanship. We have confidence that Coach Barclay and his staff adhere to these standards."

Weaver said he believed that as far as the players involved are concerned they will "forgive and forget, they don't carry such things. They probably could play again this week and have a fine game."

"North Carolina had done everything possible to prevent trouble. There were enough patrolmen and other help, it was unfortunate that the trouble flared up the very end of the game when many of the patrolmen had left the stadium to takeup their posts routing the traffic away from the game."

The conference may act to inflict stiff penalties through bylaw changes covering such outbreaks. Present regulations do not cover such a situation. The executive committee, meeting here yesterday, said it would propose such a regulation at the annual winter meeting here next month.

The meeting, originally scheduled Dec. 3, may be shifted to Dec. 10 to avoid conflict with the Dec. 4 South Carolina-Citadel football game.

The game Saturday had a wild finish, with North Carolina's end Will Frye and Wake Forest's Burt Harrison ejected. Wake Forest quarterback Nick Consoles lost three front teeth and suffered a bruised lip when elbowed by Frye. A free-for-all broke out as players went to the dressing rooms.

Dr. Harold W. Tribble, Wake Forest president, and Erickson saw athletic relationships between the schools endangered. North Carolina President Gordon Gray declined comment beyond, "I'm very sorry it happened."

Frye said he was carrying out a normal blocking assignment and had no intention of injuring Consoles.

Caldwell Monument Was Built For Man Devoted To Carolina

By BOB EBERLE

When the recent winds of Hurricane Hazel had finally subsided, and the students began to walk about observing the damage that particular storm had wrought, few paid any attention to the fact that a small marble monument in McCorkle Place had been knocked over by a falling tree.

To most of the students here this piece of stone has little meaning other than it is a monument to a man by the name of Joseph Caldwell, and that this man was the first president of the University, but behind the marble monument lies the story of a man who gave himself and his life to the establishment of this University back in the days when few cared whether this institution survived or not.

Joseph Caldwell was more than just the president of this University. He was an educator, mathematician, astronomer and above all a man with a great love for Carolina. Born in 1773, he came to the newly established University of North Carolina as a professor of mathematics in 1797, and because of his hard work and devotion to the University he became its first president in 1804. In 1812 he gave up the presidency but retained his seat as professor of mathematics, and continued to work toward the sound establishment of the University until in 1817 he again became UNC's president, and this position he kept until his death in 1835.

One of the most notable achievements while at Carolina was the erection of the first college observatory in America, and because of this and other noteworthy deeds he was offered a professorship at the University of South Carolina at a salary of $2,000 per year and the presidency in the near future. Though he was only earning $1,000 at the time he declined the offer and remained at this institution. In 1857 the marble monument was erected from funds collected by "The President of the United States, the Governor of North Carolina and other alumni." The monument erected "in grateful acknowledgment of their obligation to the first president of the University" now lies quietly on its side in McCorkle Place.

Yackety - Yack Proofs

Freshmen who have not yet picked up their Yackety-Yack proofs should do so today, said annual Co-Editors Cornell Wright and Jackie Park yesterday.

Proofs may be picked up in Graham Memorial basement between 1 and 6 p.m.

Zager, Dilorio, Jones, Fink And Townsend Are Chosen

Five Coeds were tapped into Valkyries in pre-dawn ceremonies early this morning.

Coeds chosen for this, the highest women's honorary on campus are Marlyn Zager, Ruth Jones, Kendrick Townsend, Babbie Dilorio and Susan Fink.

The legend of the Valkyries has its origin in Norwegian mythology. In the court of the warrior Chief Odin, were nine select maidens, called Valkyries, who were daughters of the gods, and mortals as well. Their chief duty was to select the warriors to be slain on the field of battle, and carry them to the hall of fame, Valhalla.

Organized in 1940

The Valkyries, the women's equivalent to the Golden Fleece, was organized on the University of North Carolina campus in its present form in 1940 for the recognition of outstanding character, scholarship, leadership and service to the University.

Miss Zager, Greensboro, is a senior, majoring in sociology. She is president of the Independent Women's Council and President of Smith Dormitory. She served as a student adviser during Orientation Week, was May Day publicity chairman, is a member of the Hillel Foundation.

Miss Jones, Charlotte, is a senior history major. She serves as chairman of the Women's Residence Council, and is a member of the student Legislature. She also served on the World University Service, and is a member of the YWCA.

Miss Townsend, from Lumberton, is a mathematics major. She is active in the YWCA, coordinator of the Women's Honor Council, treasurer of Chi Omega sorority, a student advisor, member of the summer session Honor Council and a member of the Canterbury Club.

SP Hears Cook & Nominates

By JACKIE GOODMAN

The Student Party in its meeting last night heard veteran SP leader Gene Cook and also closed its nominations for dorm men's districts, dorm women's district and freshmen class officers.

Gene Cook, past chairman of the Student Party, gave a short speech in which he referred indirectly to the columns of Louis Kraar, associate editor of The Daily Tar Heel, concerning a split in the Student Party. Cook said, "From what I have seen of the party, I have never seen it stronger than it is now. It is in the best position it has been in four years."

Cook also spoke about the bill of David Reid, SP vice chairman, to liberalize punishment in first offense cheating cases. A bill resembling Reid's bill was introduced by Cook last year. "This bill is not a license for free cheating. It is an incentive for the council to walk where they have crawled. It is a new approach to an old problem," said Cook.

"Joel Fleishman has done a wonderful job as chairman," said Cook about the present SP chairman.

Y Discusses Women

Questions on the controversial subject of differences between American and other women will be answered at the YMCA-YWCA Supper Forum tonight.

Wool Howell, American ex-serviceman, Mike Furuhata from Japan and Alfred Descloux from Switzerland will try to give answers to such intriguing questions as: Do men from foreign countries dominate their women? Do men from the United States spoil their women? Is this a man's world?

Defending the fairer sex will be Bobbie Walker, Purabi Bose from India and Irmgard Roth from Germany.

The Supper Forum will start at 5:30 at Lenoir Hall, South Dining Room, and will end at 7 p.m.

Soph Dance Meeting

The committees working on the sophomore class dance to be held on Nov. 13 will meet this afternoon at 5:15 in the Garil Room of Graham Memorial to continue work on plans for the dance.

The committees and their chairmen are as follows: refreshments, Monica Justice; decorations, Jim Armstrong; publicity, Townsend Holt; tickets, Layton McCurdy, and sophomore hostesses, Anne Cannon.

University Party Meets

The University Party will meet tonight to nominate candidates for the Student Legislature from the Town Men and Women districts and the Women's Dorm district.

A week from tonight the UP will nominate candidates for Freshman and Junior class offices.

Both meetings will be held in the Roland Parker Lounge of Graham Memorial at 7:30 p.m.

A spokesman for the party said yesterday that all UP nominees must attend both meetings.

They Want Miss 'B'

"Miss 'B' in Belmont is missing from Old West."

The pretty majorette from Belmont High School, who bent many a male eye last year when she appeared in Kenan Stadium with a pair of black shorts and a black sweater with a "B" on it, was soon thereafter chosen mascot of Old West Dormitory.

When Miss "S" in Shelby High School's majorette corps drew a few whistles Saturday at the Wake Forest game, Managing Editor Fred Powledge remembered Miss "B" and made mention of the two girls' similarity in a story on the game.

Powledge said a picture of Miss "B" currently hung in Old West; and it did, for that matter, when he last visited the dormitory.

But yesterday, Old West President Raymond M. Taylor called The Daily Tar Heel and announced that the photograph—a semi-profile shot of Miss "B," in shorts, sweater, letter and all—was gone from Old West. Taylor said it disappeared sometime between the first of the semester and yesterday.

The boys at Old West want Miss "B" back very much.

Yack Names '55 Staffers

Jackie Park and Cornell Wright, editors of the Yackety Yack, have appointed their staff for the year.

Blake Hunter has been named managing editor. A member of the junior class, Hunter comes from Charlotte. He is a history major. Hunter is a member of Chi Phi.

Famed Actress Moorehead Sets Program

Agnes Moorehead, well known stage and radio actress, will appear at Duke University Friday night in Page Auditorium at 8:15.

Miss Moorehead will read "Some Like 'em Cold" by Ring Lardner, "Lavender With a Difference" by James Thurber, "Back to Methuselah" by George Bernard Shaw, "Remembrance of Things Past and Present" by Marcel Proust and "Sorry Wrong Number," which she made famous on the radio.

Coeds Will Vie For Yack Beauty Crown

The spotlight will shine Thursday night on over 50 of Carolina's loveliest coeds, from whom one will be chosen as Queen of the 1955 Yackety Yack Beauty Section.

Ten others will be selected as the Beauty Court.

The contest will begin at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall. There will be no admission charge, and Co-Beauty Editors of the Yack have invited all students to attend.

Jimmy Capps, popular disk jockey of WPTF's "Our Best To You," will emcee the show.

Judging will be done by E. J. Evans, mayor of Durham, Tom Waldman of WUNC-TV and Dr. J. P. Harland of the University faculty. Judging will be based on symmetry of features, carriage, poise, gracefulness, complexion, hair and figure.

Cameras from WUNC-TV will be set up in the auditorium and will televise the contest over a closed circuit. However, monitor sets will be placed throughout the hall so that the audience and contestants can watch the show "on TV" as well as live.

Co-Beauty Editors of the Yack Miss Nancy Whisnant and Jack Markham have announced that there will be a brief rehearsal for all contestants at 7:30 Wednesday night in Memorial Hall. All contestants are required to attend, or they will be disqualified from the contest.

Mrs. Kay Kyser (the former Georgia Carroll) will give the contestants pointers on stage presence at the rehearsal.

Sorority and women's dormitory housemothers will have seats reserved for them.

The girls who have been entered so far are: Misses Phoebe Aydtlett, Delores da Parma and Elizabeth Floyd, sponsored by Kappa Delta; Misses Mary Grady Burnette and Harriet Watson, sponsored by Pi Kappa Phi; Misses Margo Edwards, Tricia Permetter and Rita Schaefer, sponsored by Chi Psi; Sara Buie,

4 Western Teachers' Colleges Refuse Students Debate Rights

"Resolved, that the United States should extend diplomatic recognition to the Communist government of China." This was the topic of the debate which four Nebraska State Teachers' Colleges on Saturday refused their college students the right to discuss.

The topic was set up by the Speech Association of America for its member collegiate teams. The fact that half the time spent by the team in debate would be spent in arguing in the affirmative set off divided reactions among educators.

The presidents of Wayne, Peru, Chadron and Kearney Teachers' Colleges have announced that their students would not be allowed to debate the question. "I personally feel," said President Cushing of Kearney, "that back of it all is a bit of a desire on the part of somebody to interrupt a few thousand American college youths with what I consider to be a dangerous philosophy."

Manhattan College, a Roman Catholic school in New York, said it "has in the past always debated the national topic, but in this instance the topic is of such a nature that it is a cause for concern and it has been taken under advisement as to whether we'll use it."

President Mile Bail of the University of Omaha has recommended that his school drop the topic.

William Brenbaum, the director of student activities at the University of Chicago, declared, "I am sure that students taking the affirmative of the question are not furthering any Communist cause." The University of Chicago "encourages intelligent thinking on all issues" and therefore
