Tickets Ready Thursday For Hunter's Play

"Darkening Shore," the story of two men, one a Polish patriot and the other a military mercenary, caught in Communist Poland in an attempt to free a composer whose work is the symbol of freedom, will be the next production of The Carolina Playmakers.

The play, to be presented at the Playmakers Theatre Nov. 10 thru 14, is by Kermit Hunter, member of the UNC English department.

Hunter is the author of the North Carolina outdoor dramas, "Unto These Hills," at Cherokee and "Horn In The West," at Boone as well as "Forever This Land," given at Petersburg, Illinois. Because of his efforts in furthering the outdoor drama, Hunter has achieved nation-wide prominence. During the past summer, he replaced Brooks Atkinson by writing the lead story on the drama page of The New York Times.

"Darkening Shore" is Hunter's first attempt at a full length indoor play, although he has previously had one-act plays produced by the Playmakers. Because of this change to a more intimate medium, Hunter has had to vary many of his techniques of play-writing.

The play will be directed by Samuel Selden, chairman of the department of dramatic art. Mr. Selden last year directed the hit show, "Kiss Me, Kate." He has previously worked with Hunter as advisor to "Unto These Hills," and "Horn In The West," and as director of "Forever This Land."

Works Of Six Artists To Be On Display

A brief survey of the work and the formative ideas of six artist teachers in America will be shown at Person Hall Art Gallery from November 9 through N. V. 30.

Represented in this exhibition are Mololy Nagy, Albers, Hofman, Ozenfant, Hayter and Zerbe, whose work and teachings have exercised far-reaching influence in present-day American art.

Characteristic examples have been chosen from each master's work, and the paintings, drawings and prints included are accompanied by statements and commentaries provided by the artist himself or selected from published sources.

For Three-Day Encampment:

500 Boy Scouts Coming

The complete program for the annual Explorer Vocational Conference, to be held here Thursday, Friday and Saturday, was announced here yesterday by William D. Campbell, Southern Pines, national camping chairman of the Boy Scouts of America and president of the Oconeechee Council.

More than 500 Explorer Scouts aged from 14 to 18 and their leaders will participate in the three-day program.

One of the special events conducted by the Special Events Committee of the Oconeechee Council, the Conference is designed to give young men of this and neighboring councils a first-hand experience in seeing the facilities of the State University and learning about vocational opportunities.

Roy Armstrong, Director of Admissions and former president of the Oconeechee Council, will talk at the opening session Thursday night, after which the Scouts will attend a Sports Carnival in Wollen Gymnasium.

Friday morning will be highlighted by lecture demonstrations in varied fields, including medicine, law, engineering, physical education, business administration, recreation, education, ministry, chemistry, radio and television, forestry and conservation, agriculture, journalism, physics, natural sciences and archaeology. Scouts will attend the lecture of their choice.

Friday night the Explorers will join University students in the Homecoming celebration, including a pep rally and television show acts.

Saturday morning, the young men will be challenged to make the most of their future in another address by Professor Weaver Marr of Salem College, West Virginia. Other speakers will be Lt. R. B. Anderson, USAF, Raleigh, concerning possible military service, and Billy Sessoms, president of Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity.

An aptitude test designed to indicate for what field each scout would be best suited will complete the academic side of the program.

In addition, the Explorers will be guests of the University for the South Carolina-North Carolina football game Saturday afternoon, and will close their conference with a dance in the Naval Armory Saturday night.

Young ladies from Chapel Hill, Durham, Fayetteville, Sanford and Raleigh areas will be invited to the dance. Bob Noel, of Henderson is dance chairman.

Explorer Chairman is Chuck Schlapkohl of Fort Bragg. William S. Roth, Director of Exploring for the Oconeechee Council, is coordinator for these activities.

Her program will be the third in a concert series sponsored throughout the year by the UNC Department of Music.

Miss Deneke's recitals have taken her throughout Great Britain and the United States. She recently performed in Washington, D. C., sponsored by the local chapter of American Guild of Organists.

Miss Deneke, whose background is considered unique for a concert musician, worked as a nurse and secretary before devoting her full time to music.

Educated by private tutors, one of them a daughter of Robert Schumann, she holds an honorary M. A. from Oxford University, where she is librarian of the Musical Club and Union.

One of her close friends is Mendelssohn's grandson, who presented her with one of the most extensive collections of the composer's manuscripts and letters in existence.

Independent Deadline Set For Friday Night

The Elections Board announced yesterday that midnight Friday has been set as the deadline which independents must meet to file for candidacy in the fall elections.

Candidacy for office is open to any student, but the candidate must submit a petition signed by him or her and 25 qualified voters. Along with the petition, grade qualifications as certified by the office of the Dean of Students must be turned in. Graham Rights, Election Board chairman, will receive petitions at 28 Steele or at the Student Government office.

Those offices which will be filled in the fall election are the freshman and junior class officers, Women's Council, (four junior seats), Student Council (three men's seats), Men's Council (two junior seats, one sophomore and one freshman seat) and Head Cheerleader.

Also to be elected are those who will fill the seats for each district in Student Legislature.

Ruffin Entertains Ruffin dormitory will entertain the girls from Smith with a coffee break from 9 to 10:30 tonight.

The boys will go to the Smith championship volleyball game at Woolen Gym at 8 p. m., and cheer for the girls. After the game, they will escort the girls to Ruffin where a big party is planned.

Chairman of the social committee at Ruffin is Frank Plott. Other members of the committee are John Curtis, Ben Alexander and Dick Jones.

William Friday, above, assistant to the president of the Consolidated University, was elected president of the North Carolina Division, American Cancer Society at sessions held Sunday in Raleigh. Friday served as vice-president of the organization during the past year.

State Goes To Polls Today; Elections Party Set Tonight

Daily Tar Heel And GM Slate Election Party

Carolina students, faculty and townspeople, male and female, will be guests of Graham Memorial and The Daily Tar Heel tonight at an election party.

The party will start at 8 p. m. in the Rendezvous Room, and will feature election returns from the state and the nation, along with free hot dogs, soft drinks, coffee, sandwiches and coeds.

The Daily Tar Heel will post state election returns, gathered from its North Carolina Associated Press wires. National returns will come in via radio in the Rendezvous Room.

Gordon Forester, chairman of the Graham Memorial Activities Board, promised to have coeds on hand for the party, and urged students to bring their dates to the affair.

Forester said hot dogs would be ready for roasting in the Rendezvous Room's fireplace, and the drinks and food would be on the house.

A large blackboard will be used for posting returns as soon as they are received at various Associated Press points throughout the state.

Student Wives There will be a meeting of the Student Wives tonight at 8 o'clock at the Victory Village Nursery.

Clemson College Will Become Coeducational On January 31

CLEMSON, S. C., Nov. 1.—(AP)—The sight and sound of females will be commonplace on Clemson's campus after January 31.

That's the date, the beginning of the second semester, the state's A. and M. land grant college will go co-educational.

Though a limited number of women have been admitted to the college before as graduate and special students, this will be the first time they will be able to attend as regular undergraduate students.

A semi-military institution with a reserve officers training program, Clemson now has 2,600 enrollment.

In approving admission of undergraduate women, the college trustees pointed that "with the rapid industrialization of this region, there is an increasing demand for technically trained women."

"For this reason," they explained, "college officials did not feel justified in denying women the opportunity for college training in textiles, architecture, engineering, chemistry, agriculture and the many other scientific courses of the college."

Agarwala is visiting a number of college campuses in the South. His visit to the University will be the last in the South, before he leaves for the meetings in Europe. Persons interested in talking with Agarwala are invited to attend the meeting at 3 o'clock this afternoon, or to call the YMCA information office for an appointment.

Agarwala is Executive of World University Service in India, and has first-hand knowledge of the relief needs of students in his nation. He is also on the International Committee of World University Service, which is meeting in Geneva, Switzerland, on Nov. 18, 1954.

Sam Didn't Want Corruption

Prof Gordon Cleveland told his political science class this one the other day:

It seems there was a campus janitor, an old Negro who was undecided about a general election a few years ago.

After the election, the janitor (call him Sam) was passing the time of day with a professor, when the professor asked Sam how he voted.

"Well," said Sam, "I was walking down the street before the election when this Republican comes up to me and says, 'I'll give you $3 if you'll vote for my man.'"

"Well," continued Sam, "I took the man's money and went on down the street. And I met this Democrat and he said 'I'll give you $5 if you'll vote for my man.'"

Sam stopped talking, as if he'd finished his story.

"Well," asked the professor, "You voted Democratic, didn't you?"

"No, suh," replied Sam. "I voted for the Republican man."

"Why?" the professor wanted to know.

"Well, you see, suh," said Sam, "The Democrat he gave me $5. So I figured he was more corrupt than the Republican, and I didn't vote for him."

YDC Census Shows Demos Lead In Cobb

One hundred students responded to a political preference poll conducted in Cobb Dormitory last Friday. The poll, distributed by the UNC Young Democrats Club, showed that 51 preferred the Democrat Party while 26 preferred the Republican Party.

Of these students 15 were undecided as to party choice. There were 3 who detested political parties altogether and 5 who preferred a party outside the big two.

In order to strengthen their forces in Cobb dorm, the YDC members are staging a rally Thursday night at 10 o'clock. Bob Windsor, president of the UNC chapter and 6th District chairman, will be the speaker.

Dr. Frederick Named To Post In World Club

Dr. Werner P. Friederich, professor of German and comparative literature, here named Secretary-General of the newly-established International Federation of Comparative Literature at a meeting held recently at Oxford University, England.

His election to the position, was held in conjunction with a meeting of the International Federation of Modern Languages and Literatures, to which Dr. Friederich has been American representative since 1948.

Both Federations have their headquarters in Paris and enjoy the active support of UNESCO.

The first issue of the 1954-55 Tarnation will be delivered to subscribers this coming Friday.

There will be no sales, only those who have subscribed by Friday will be able to receive copies, said Editor Rueben Leonard, yesterday.

Subscriptions will be sold in Y-Court from 8 until noon tomorrow and Thursday, and in the afternoons in the Tarnation office in the basement of Graham Memorial.

This year's magazine is going to contain four extra pages, jumping from last year's 24 to this year's 28.

The new staff is as follows: Rueben Leonard, editor; Gene Blanton, business manager; Bill Ragsdale, managing editor; Stan Shaw, associate editor; Richard Pierce, exchange editor; Rita Schaefer, office manager; Hank Dryfoos and Harriet Watson, co-circulation managers.

The Federations' next meeting will take place in Venice, Italy, in 1956 under the honorary presidency of S. Madariago, T. S. Eliot and F. Baldensperger.

Dr. Friederich, the author of many books on comparative literature, is the founder of the Comparative Literature Section in the Modern Language Association of America and of the journal "Comparative Literature." He serves as editor of the UNC studies in Comparative Literature and of the Yearbook of Comparative and General Literature.
