Blanket Party's Taking On Bigger Proportions

Friday night's blanket party in Upper and Lower Quads, featuring Maestro Jimmy Capps and his radio show, "Our Best To You," should be one of the biggest events of the year, say members of the Inter-dormitory Council, sponsor of the party.

Touching off this homecoming weekend, the IDC is furnishing music, entertainment, dancing and refreshments after the pep rally in Upper and Lower Quads.

Capps, in an interview last night, said, "I knew in the beginning that there must be some reason why a show like this has never been attempted before, but I know now what the reasons were."

"It has been an enlightening period and rather a pleasure tackling each problem as it came up. I hope that doing the program will be as much as it has been planning it."

Among the entertainers to be presented Friday night by Capps on "Our Best To You" will be David Phipps, baritone.

Phipps, who has sung at Grail dances and studied under Joel Carter and Walter Golde, is no stranger to Chapel Hill. He has been called by critics the "Mario Lanza of Carolina" and is "definitely of metropolitan calibre."

On Friday night's show, he will sing "Bless Your Beautiful Hide" from the recent motion picture, "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers."

The old favorite, "So In Love," from the Broadway musical "Kiss Me, Kate," and the song Mario Lanza sang in "The Student Prince," "Serenade." He will also present the Eddie Fisher hit, "My Friend."

Phipps will be accompanied by Ronald Andrews, a senior here from Burlington. Phipps has done extensive concert work throughout North Carolina and was vocal soloist with the U. S. Air Force Band. Recently he appeared on WTVD, in Durham. Next year, he plans to continue his studies at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music. At the present, he is a laboratory technician for Liggett-Myers Tobacco Co., in Durham.

Other entertainers on the show will be Becky Lee, Miss Dunn of 1954, who will do pantomimes. Chee-Chee and Tom Davis, from Nashville, a brother and sister dance team, who will do interpretations of popular instrumentalists.

A trio from Peace College which will be composed of Betsy Ann Newsome, Raleigh; Caroline Hackney, Sanford, Fla., and Ruth Sidon, Lawrence, Mass., will sing. The girls have appeared before in Capps's show.

The University Band will also be present in full-dress uniform under the direction of Earl Slocum and Jim Fountain and the cheerleaders.

University Law Students Will Hold Festivities Next Saturday

"Law Day at the University of North Carolina will be held on Saturday, and I'm sure that everyone that attended the big day last year is looking forward to the happy occasion again," Bob Byrd, third-year law student from Morganton and president of the Law School Association said today.

Principally a student enterprise, the observance will be a time of celebration and participation in legal discussion and activities by members of the Law School Association and the Law Alumni Association, Byrd explained.

"The homecoming program is centered around the big game with our friends from south of the border, the University of South Carolina, followed by a reception in Manning Hall," Byrd said.

On Friday, at 7:30 p.m., the North Carolina Law Review Committee of the Law Alumni Association will hold a Law Review Editors' dinner with Paul A. Johnston, staff member of the UNC Institute of Government presiding. Some 500 alumni have been invited.

The third annual meeting of the Law Alumni Association will be held Saturday morning at 10 o'clock in the courtroom of Manning Hall, with T. A. Uzzell presiding.

A special section in Kenan Stadium has been reserved for alumni and Law Association members at the Saturday game. Association members will be identified by their special attire which will include different colored carnations. The student card section will salute the group during halftime.

Following the game a reception will be held in the main library of Manning Hall for the law affiliates and the Barrister's Ball for the same group will be held in the Washington Duke in Durham that night.

The Law School Association comprises the entire student body of the Law School. Its activities are carried on through a legislature composed of elected representatives, various committees appointed and an elected Law School Honor Court.

In addition to President Byrd, other officers of the Law School Association are Louis Bledsoe, chief justice of the Honor Council; J. Albert House, vice-president; Robert G. Windsor, secretary, and Jule A. Rousseau, treasurer.

Officers of the Alumni Association are T. A. Uzzell, president; Isaac D. Thorp, first vice-president; Luther T. Hartsell, second vice-president, and William B. Aycock, secretary-treasurer.

Thomas Arrives Tomorrow

Plans have been completed for the address here tomorrow night by Norman Thomas, Socialist Party leader, who will speak in Hill Hall at 8 o'clock.

The meeting is open to the public.

The speaker's subject is "America's Political Poverty." He has announced that he will discuss "the lack of basic thinking in politics and our instrumental poverty in the light of the election results."

Thomas is being sponsored by the Carolina Forum, non-partisan student organization, headed this year by Joel Fleishman, Fayetteville, which brings to the campus from time to time nationally known speakers representing varying shades of political and economic opinion.

The last speaker sponsored by the Forum was Governor Robert B. Meyner, who was here last month.

He will arrive tomorrow afternoon at 2:10 at Raleigh-Durham

Airport where he will be met by a UNC delegation, including representatives of the Forum, student government and Division of Student Affairs.

At 4 o'clock Mr. Thomas will meet with the faculty and graduate students of the History Department for an informal discussion in Morehead Faculty Lounge.

The speaker will be honored at a private dinner given by the Carolina Forum preceding his address, and at a reception afterward in Graham Memorial.

Thomas, who is national chairman of the Post-War World Council, has campaigned for the presidency of the United States six times on the Socialist ticket.

He has been the party's nominee for other offices, including mayor of New York City and governor of New York State.

Thomas is president of the Call Association, which publishes the Socialist Journal, "The Call," and has written numerous books and pamphlets on American's political condition of the present and future.

Pianist Margaret Deneke:

She Was Jack-Of-All-Trades For Missionary Schweitzer

By ARCHER NEAL

Miss Margaret Deneke, who presented a lecture-recital in Hill Hall last evening, is a charming English lady whose experiences have been quite varied and interesting. She has worked for the famed medical missionary, Dr. Albert Schweitzer, in his hospital in French Equatorial Africa, has studied with the youngest daughter of Robert Schumann, the composer, and is a close friend of Felix Mendelssohn's grandson.

Miss Deneke, on her sixth tour of the United States, presented a program of piano works by Mendelssohn, Schumann, Chopin, Tovey and Brahms in UNC's Hill Hall. Other engagements in the state call for recitals at Queens College and Davidson College, near Charlotte, both Presbyterian institutions.

For several months in 1932, the English musician worked as a nurse in Albert Schweitzer's hospital in Africa. The famed missionary asked her to come to Africa to help in building his new hospital on a 180-acre plot. She said she was sort of a jack-of-all-trades while there. In addition to her nursing duties, she was foreman of a 30-man working crew of natives. They built gardens, cleared the church yard of elephant grass and built streets. She obtained the permission of Dr. Schweitzer to put up a sign proclaiming one of the streets as Oxford Street, in honor of her English home, the famous university town. She has heard in recent years that the sign is still there.

Miss Deneke had no opportunity to study music with Schweitzer, for he had very little free time, and it was quite precious to him. She used to listen to him in the evenings as he played on his Gaveau

Prof Cites 'Challenge'

"Accomplishment of an orderly transition from segregation to integration in our public schools is a job calling for our best know-how in human engineering and presents a great challenge to educational statesmanship at both state and local levels."

This view was stressed by Dr. Gordon W. Blackwell, director of the Institute For Research in Social Science here, who addressed the Virginia Education Association in Richmond, last week.

Dr. Blackwell took the position that it is no longer a question of whether there shall be integration in the public schools of the South, but rather when and how it can best come about.

As relative in the situation, he pointed to the greatly expanding educational load to be faced by Southern States within the next decade and the extreme economic burden which it will place upon the region. "A bi-racial culture pro-

University Service Visitor Describes India's Problems

By J. D. McRORIE

Some of the students that go to the universities and colleges in India have to sleep on the streets for lack of housing. They go to class without text books for lack of financial assistance.

Tackling these and similar problems of the student in India was discussed by Virenda Agawala, executive of University Service in India, yesterday afternoon in the Cabinet Room of the Y Building.

Agawala came to the U. S. to attend the International University Meeting of the World University Service which recently adjourned in Oxford. Agawala came from Oxford to UNC to see the student welfare movement and to tell members here about the needs and problems of Asia.

In India only one per cent of the total population (355 millions) has the opportunity to get a university education. Three to four hundred thousand students there attend 30 universities and 1,000 colleges.

"We have a very limited number of technical institutions (agriculture and engineering for instance)," Agawala said, "In this way most of the students come from either arts, law or the social science schools."

"This small percentage of the population is going to be leaders of tomorrow and the destiny of India is in their hands; therefore, it becomes a responsibility to have such a dynamic program which will meet the economical needs of the students of India," Agawala continued.

The program of the World University Service (WUS) is divided under two heads: The long term and the short term.

Summer Storm, Light Snow Hit Chapel Hill

Weather around the Hill took a crazy twist yesterday, treating Carolina students and townspeople to (1) a summer thunderstorm, complete with lightning and rains; (2) a gentle flurry of snowflakes.

The thunder and lightning started late in the afternoon, but soon gave way to a blanket of chilly, dry air until approximately 10:15 last night, when a light snow started to fall.
