WUNC-TV Channel Four Will Begin Operations On Jan. 4, Says Schenkkan

Director Says 2,500,000 In Audience

WUNC-TV channel four, the state's first educational television station, will begin operations on Jan. 4, according to an announcement yesterday by Robert F. Schenkkan, director of television for the University of North Carolina. The opening, previously delayed by construction difficulties, will make available the educational services of the three branches of the University to some 2,500,000 people in the reception area, said Schenkkan.

The 100,000 watt station, with studios in Chapel Hill, the Woman's College at Greensboro and State College at Raleigh, is one of the very high frequency stations and will be picked up within a 10-mile radius.

Through already pledged cooperation of commercial stations, many of the programs will be available to the entire state, said Schenkkan.

Present plans call for full-time operations on weekdays with programs on the air from 3:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 6 to 10 at night on Saturday and Sunday.

NON-COMMERCIAL PROGRAMS

The station will carry only non-commercial programs which are planned to be entertaining as well as educational. Live productions as well as films will be seen over channel four.

Faculty members from the three schools will make appearances regularly over WUNC-TV. In addition, coverage is planned over the Piedmont area through the facilities of the station's mobile unit.

The station directors hope to have an equal distribution of agricultural, home economic and general educational programs for their viewers.

News programs are also planned.

Director Schenkkan said "the equipment is the very best obtainable and yet the cost was exceedingly reasonable. The staff, he added, "is as capable as any you will find in any part of the nation, including Washington."

The station will be the second of its kind in the South. Houston already has an educational television program.

The station will be the second working in its Swain Hall studios now. Kay Kyser, famed bandleader and long-time Chapel Hill resident, is listed on the station's staff.

Person Exhibit To Be Closed During Holiday

Person Hall Art Gallery, currently showing an exhibit of six artist-teachers in America, will be closed on Thanksgiving Day, but will be open from 2:30 to 5 p.m. Friday and next Sunday, and from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m. next Saturday.

The six artist-teachers in the exhibition, Moholy-Nagy, Albers, Hofmann, Ozenfant, Hayter and Zerbe, differ greatly in their individual work, but they share the tendency to discard academic rules and their influence in present-day American art has been described as far-reaching and effective.

The exhibition closes on Nov. 30. Except for Thanksgiving weekend, the gallery is open to the public from 9 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. on weekdays, 9 to 5 on Saturdays and 2 until 5 p.m. on Sundays.

Ol' Man Woody Herman 30 Year Clarinet Man

Woody Herman, who brings his award winning orchestra, the "Third Herd" here Dec. 6 for a two-hour concert, is often called the youngest old-timer in the music business.

Herman has been playing the clarinet professionally for over 30 years. He was born in 1913, was a vaudeville star when only nine, a star with a big name band when he was in his teens and made his first phonograph record when he was only 20. His latest band, which has been voted tops in the country by the readers of Metronome magazine, features 14 instrumentalists and a shapely girl vocalist. It has been hailed by Time, Parade and other magazines as the "band that brought back dancing." Their latest Capitol discs of "Muskrat Ramble," "Woodchopper's Mamba" and "Mexican Hat Trick" are among the top band records of the year.

Some of the most successful records of the Herman band have been made in a church.

The sides that Herman recorded for his own label, Mars, and for Columbia Records in New York were recorded in the East 30th Street Columbia Studios. The building was formerly the Adams Presbyterian Church and was sold when the congregation built a new one some years back. Sound engineers testing for the best acoustical conditions for new high fidelity records found that the stone church, with its massive construction, was a perfect sound chamber. Among the Herman discs to have been recorded there are "Perdido," "Four Others" and "Third Herd."

UNC Holds Back Last-Half Surges To Squelch Virginia Cavaliers, 26-14

Trustees' Visiting Committee Will Hear Students Tomorrow

The Visiting Committee of the Board of Trustees will make its annual visit to UNC tomorrow. During the day-long session the 12 member committee, headed by Victor S. Bryant of Durham, will hear progress reports and plans for the future from administrative heads, faculty members and students.

Arrangements for appointments with the University committee may be made with Charles M. Shaffer, assistant to the Chancellor, chairman of arrangements, 302 South Building.

The committee will spend Tuesday at North Carolina State College, where it will hold a series of conferences with the faculty and students. Members of the Visiting Committee, in addition to the chairman are: H. L. Riddle, Morganton; R. Floyd Crouse, Sparta; Hill Yarbrough, Lenoir; James H. Clark, Elizabethtown; R. L. Harris, Roxboro; William P. Saunders, Aberdeen; Mrs. Ed. M. Anderson, West Jefferson; John D. Larkins, Trenton; D. L. Ward, New Bern; Mrs. Rosa B. Parker, Albemarle, and P. E. Ferebee, Andrews.

SSL Honors UNC

By RUTH DALTON
RALEIGH — (The UNC-Shaw University joint bill implementing the Supreme Court's decision on segregation in the schools won an award as the best presented bill on the House floor for the 18th session of the State Student Legislature in the second plenary meeting yesterday afternoon.

The joint resolution, which outlined a plan for gradual integration in the schools, was presented by the Carolina and Shaw delegations Friday night in a debate lasting after midnight. The debate ended with the passing of the measure with only four members of the House voting negatively.

Duke University won the award in the Senate with its resolution on congressional treaties, which paradoxically failed in the House. Miss Sue Fink and Jim Turner were named by the Carolina delegation as their members on the Interim Council, governing body of the legislature when it is not in session, for next year.

Frances Burroughs of WC was elected president of Interim for the coming season, Hugh Young of East Carolina College was chosen vice president and Ann Willis, of State, secretary.

Some 11 bills were passed jointly in the plenary session by the House and Senate yesterday afternoon.

A minimum wage law proposal for the state from St. Augustine's College, a bill for redistricting the congressional districts in North Carolina from Lenoir Rhyne College. (See SSL, page 4.)

Klochak Scores Twice; Bullock Passes For Score; Keller Accounts For Touchdown

By FRED BABSON

SCOTT STADIUM, Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 20—A slightly muddy field was not enough to stop North Carolina's fleet backs, as they rapped off 346 yards rushing to overpower Virginia's Cavaliers, 26-14, here today before a sparse crowd of 15,000.

Bouncing back from the humiliating defeat at Notre Dame last week, the Tar Heels threatened to make a rout of it when they went ahead 20-0 midway in the second quarter. But Virginia found the scoring column on a freak pass interception which kept them in the ball game and seemed to give them cause to buckle down. Carolina completely dominated the first half, amassing 14 first downs to Virginia's one, and 219 yards rushing to ten for the Cavaliers.

Placement Service Now Has Scholarship Files

The Placement Service has expanded its service to include a current file on scholarships and fellowships for graduate study in the United States and foreign countries, according to an announcement yesterday by J. M. Galloway, director of placement. Galloway said large numbers of scholarships are offered each year by educational institutions, industries, fraternities and other organizations, by the U. S. and other governments and privately-endowed foundations. The University alone offers almost 500 scholarships and fellowships to qualified students each year, and about 90 for graduate study, the placement director said.

Qualifications for grants vary greatly, said Galloway. "One need not be Phi Beta Kappa, BMOG and model rolled into one to receive aid for post-graduate training, though in most cases good grades are important," he said. Awards range from $100 to $3,600, and fields of training are almost unlimited, Galloway added. PROGRAM ALSO VARIED

The director also said length of study program is varied. "The Spanish government, for instance, makes it possible for students to study in Spain for two summer months, whereas others offer two-year programs, such as the American Institute for Economic Research scholarships for training economic scientists," Galloway said.

Galloway said deadlines for application for most scholarships are January to May, though competitions for several, notably foreign awards, have already closed. Post-graduate programs, he said, are investigated early in the year. PLACEMENT SERVICE'S PLACE

The Placement Service, said Galloway, will act only as an information distribution point, and not a selection agency. However, he added, several members of the faculty here serve as selection and/or clearance committees for several outstanding scholarship organizations. The Placement Service is located in 204 Gardner Hall.

Big Don Klochak, Tar Heel fullback, dispelled rumors that his showing against South Carolina two weeks ago (when he gained 124 yards in 12 rushes) was a flash in the pan. Klochak bulled his way to 102 yards in nine tries today, scoring twice.

Len Bullock quarterbacked Carolina for 60 minutes and looked better than he has at any time previously. Bullock gained 70 yards in 21 carries, and gained 60 yards in the air, completing five of 11 passes, one for Carolina's first score early in the second period. Halfback Larry Parker was on the receiving end of the 13 yard flip.

The second Tar Heel tally was practically all Klochak. The 213-pounder from Fairhope, Pa., literally tore the Cavalier line to shreds in accounting for 56 yards of an 84 yard Carolina drive. The line-busting sophomore exploded up the middle from 29 yards out for the score.

Halfback Ken Keller accounted for the third UNC touchdown. Keller intercepted a Virginia aerial on the UVA. 27 yard line. Two plays later he scampereed around right end from the five yard line to tally.

Trailing 0-20, Virginia's future looked gloomy. But the Cavalier line rushed Len Bullock, who had faded back from his own 20 to pass, and Bullock was forced to throw hurriedly. Virginia end Charlie Modlin intercepted on the 29 yard line and went down the sideline untouched.

Wanting to remind the Virginia lads that Carolina was boss, the Tar Heels took the ensuing kickoff and rolled 74 yards in nine plays to score, with a little over a minute remaining the first half. Klochak, on a delayed buck, bulled nine yards for the score.

After the halftime intermission, Virginia appeared rejuvenated, driving 81 yards to score the first time they got the ball. A perfect screen pass from Bonney to Moyer, good for 25 yards, provided the finishing touch. It also added the finishing touch to the day's scoring, as both teams moved the ball up and down the field, only to run out of gas in the clutch.

Herb Hartwell, with 44 yards in six rushes, led Virginia, followed closely by Joe Niedbals with 41 yards in seven carries. Quarterback Bill Bonney completed three (See TAR HEELS, page 3)

High School Writing Meet Is Scheduled

North Carolina high school students will be offered a chance for recognition in the 1954-55 good writing contest sponsored by the N. C. English Teachers' Association.

Details of the state-wide competition, now in its seventh year, were announced yesterday in Durham by Dr. Francis E. Bowman of the Duke University English faculty. Dr. Bowman is the president of the NCETA and is this year's contest director.

Prose and verse entries are now being accepted for the contest, which closes Jan. 10, 1955. Outstanding entries will be published in a special issue of The North Carolina English Teacher. NCETA Journal. Names of students receiving honorable mention will also be published.

REV. HARRY SMITH, above, will lead the first of four lectures on "Faith, Sex and Love" tomorrow night in the Assembly Room of the Library. Rev. Smith's lecture will be sponsored by the YWCA and YMCA, and will get underway at 8 p.m. His subject will be "Are You Ready For Marriage?"

Campus-Wide Thanksgiving Set Tomorrow

The YWCA and YMCA will co-sponsor a campus-wide Thanksgiving service tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock.

The service will be held at the Episcopal Chapel of the Chapel of the Cross.

Rev. Charles Hubbard, pastor of the University Methodist Church, will speak on "Thanksgiving." Miss Jackie McCarthy will provide special music, and Roy Taylor and Bev Blemler will also take part in the program.

Y spokesmen said yesterday that all students, faculty members and townspeople are invited to attend.

"Star of Bethlehem," the Morehead Planetarium's annual tribute to Christmas, will open here next Tuesday.

First performance of the 1954 pageant of the Scriptures, music, lighting and tableaux will be Tuesday night at 8:30, followed by daily presentations at the same hour with matinees Saturdays at 11 a.m., 3 and 4 p.m. and Sundays at 2, 3, and 4 p.m. In addition, shows for school children will be held at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. on Wednesdays and Thursdays.

A special Thanksgiving Day show will be held at 3 p.m. Planetarium Director Andy Jenzano said that "all the tableaux, which are as authentic as possible, this year have been enlarged, improved and relocated to accomplish greater continuity and visibility in the beautiful story."

"Lighting and paper placement of the scenes as well as redesigning have consumed many hours of laborious planning and work by both University of North Carolina and Duke University professors, artists, narrators and technicians," the Planetarium manager said.

"Millions of small holes in the stainless steel Planetarium dome make possible its being used both as a screen and transparent curtain for showing and projection of the beautiful scenes of 'The Hills of Judea,' 'Nativity,' 'Annunciation,' 'King Herod and the Wise Men,' 'Appearance of the Angels to the Shepherd' and the cathedral finale.

"Many people who have witnessed the performance in the past will find," Jenzano added, "that we have enlarged the scenes, added to the number of them and generally improved the pageant. Nothing has been taken from the tribute to Christmas. We have made a sincere effort to expand it."

The show begins by presenting the heavens of nearly 2,000 years ago and the relative positions of the heavenly bodies at that time. Then the presentation moves to the Scriptures from the story of the birth of Christ. JUDEAN SKYLINE

Instead of the usual University and Chapel Hill skyline around the lower part of the Planetarium dome, Robert L. Blake, artist and medical illustrator of Duke University, has provided a new panorama of the "Hills of Judea." The scene will be projected on more than 200 feet of the Planetarium chamber.

Blake was assisted by Dr. William F. Stinespring, professor of Old Testament at Duke University, for authenticity.

The tableaux have been redesigned and set by Mrs. B. Vickery Williams, Chapel Hill designer. The special effects, lighting and sets were planned and executed in the Planetarium by its technical staff composed of John T. Brittain, James Gates and R. L. McGhee.

John Clayton and Mack Presslar of the University Communications Center produced the audio portion, and the narration is by Dr. Urban T. Holmes, University professor. Dr. M. S. Davis, astronomy professor, is advisor.

In order that as many persons as possible may see the pageant of Christmas, Jenzano said additional performances will be scheduled at the convenience of groups of 11 or more persons.

Advance reservations may be made by contacting the Planetarium by mail or phone, he added.

Auditions Are Open For N.C. Symphony Positions

Auditions for positions in the North Carolina Symphony will be held here next Friday and Saturday, according to Dr. Benjamin F. Swalin, director of the Symphony. Openings in the Symphony are tympani (doubling on percussion), clarinet (doubling on bass clarinet), viola and violin. Musicians interested in playing with the orchestra during the coming season should communicate with the North Carolina Symphony Office, Box 1211, Chapel Hill.
