

The Daily Tar Heel

CADILLAC
Pontius Pilate would own a
Cadillac and belong to Burning Tree Club in 1954, asserts the editor. See p. 2.

It's Christmas, When

Seniors Look For 3-Year-Olds' Gifts

By ELEANOR SAUNDERS
The spirit of old St. Nick has once again penetrated the musty Carolina air, and has left its mark on young and old alike. As makes no difference, for all are thrilled by the familiar music of Christmas carols and the welcome sight of gaily lighted and decorated trees.

The sedate and sophisticated senior bends from his lofty position as he cavorts with the three-year-old among the toy shop's selection of talking dolls, space gun and Erector sets. The junior is still puzzled over the shape, size and color gift to buy for father or special friend. The sophomore tries to exercise some of his newly acquired authority as he orders the sales clerk to wrap his gift in the most elaborate trimming possible. And the freshman, still amazed by Chapel Hill potentialities, is startled by the sudden change to a bustling, exciting shopping center.

DAYDREAMERS

Even 8 o'clock classes don't seem as unpleasant this time of the year, for the student can dream about the Christmas parties, packages and pleasures in store for him. Pre-holiday festivities increase tenfold, as each and every Carolina student puts on his best manners so as to insure a profitable visit from Santa Claus. Kappa Sig will hold their annual Christmas party with Pi Phi tomorrow afternoon. Fourteen children from Raleigh will be ridden piggy-back, stuffed with ice cream and goodies and presented with Christmas toys.

Also traditional was the ATO Santa Claus party, held yesterday afternoon at the chapter house. Members of the fraternity went en masse to 40 eager and excited children.

Tonight will find Chi Psi's at their dates playing Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus to children from near-by orphanage. Lambda Chi turned their house over to kids from Methodist Orphanage last Saturday.

Santa Claus visited Phi Kappa and their juvenile guests yesterday afternoon. And KA's plan to unite their paternal instincts with maternal instincts of Tri Delta's, as they entertain at their annual Christmas party tomorrow afternoon.

Also displaying their parental hood potentialities will be Deke's who will entertain children from Methodist Orphanage Friday afternoon. The Beta Santa Clause made his annual appearance yesterday afternoon and delighted the visitors, by presenting them with Christmas toys.

ADULT PARTYING

Grown-ups can party at Christmas too, claim the Pi Kappa Phi's. They celebrated the oncoming holidays last Saturday night with a party at the Elbow Room. An tomorrow night they plan their annual chapter Christmas party.

SAE's will get into the spirit of the season Friday night at their Christmas party at Beulah's cabaret. Phi Gam's combined Christmas caroling and serenading last night as they toured campus to sing to recent pin-ups.

The ATO tree somehow or other got decorated last night, despite the festive party which continued throughout the evening. Another tree trimming party was held last Saturday night by Chi Phi's.

At the Chi Psi house, plans are being made for their annual all-hours stag party, to be held Wednesday night. Likewise, Kappa Sig's will exchange gifts and whop up the holiday spirit tonight.

St. A's are well into the holiday season, for they held their annual Christmas party last Saturday night. The affair began with dinner at the Pines, and wound up with a party at the Hall.

Egg nog was served last Saturday night to brothers of Lambda Chi and their dates. The location of said party was not revealed.

Phi Kap's plan a busy pre-vention week. Tomorrow night, though there is no excuse for a party, will find them partying at the house. And Friday night's homecoming party promises to be an unusual twist to the more customary homecoming party.

Ten new Sigma Chi initiates will be the center of attention during this week's festivities. Last night, pledges entertained active with a party at Hartman's Laek. And tonight Sigma Chi's will have their annual Christmas cut party.

SORORITIES PARTY TOO
Just to prove that sororities know how to usher in the holiday season, ADPI's are planning for a Christmas party tomorrow night at a local cabin.

Chi O's, who partied with Deke's

Carolina Coeds Start Christmas Season Early

CAROLINA COEDS STARTED the Christmas season early this week, with tall vari-lighted trees and gaily-wrapped gifts. In the picture above, four McIver misses pose under the dormitory's ceiling.

Thursday night at the Goat Hill Country Club, will go caroling this week at the Veteran's Hospital.

The newly trimmed tree at the Pi Phi house is a result of Sunday night's pop corn-hot chocolate party. Wednesday night, sorority members will hold their annual Christmas party at the house, and will carol on campus afterwards.

The annual Tri Delta Pine Party with alumnae will be held at the chapter house tonight.

PINNINGS

Joe Correll, Phi Kap from Winston-Salem, to Vega Lingle, Surlins student from Winston.
Bill Self, SPE from Shelby, to Barbra Hedberg, UNC nursing student from Charlotte.
Dick Valentine, Chi Phi from Bronxville, N. Y., to Carolyn Brvson, WC student from Franklin.
Jack Stewart, SPE from Erwin to Vivian Davis, WC student from Rockingham.
Bob Hunt, Phi Kap from Reids ville, to Shirley Somers, Reidsville.

Bill Chapman, KA from Inman, S. C., to Bobbie Lee Moretz, Tri Delta pledge from Elizabethton, Tenn.

Butch Smith, SPE from Raleigh, to Joanne Farmer, Raleigh.
Dennis Pope, SPE from Coates, to Becky Upchurch, Coates.

ENGAGEMENTS

Lamar Stroupe, Chi Phi from Gastonia, to Jean Harris, WC graduate from Durham.
Billy Dozier, Wilmington, to Jean Ellis, ADPI from Nashville.
Bill Stewart, Asheville, to Martha Crowell, Tri Delta from Hendersonville.
Mike Brown, Chi Phi from Anderson, S. C., to Joan Conner, WC student from North Wilkesboro.

U. S. News 'Amazing' To Turks

American newspapers, with their bulk and large advertising content, are often a more amazing sight to European visitors than the American skyscrapers, a Turkish journalist told journalism students here yesterday.

Bulent Ecevit, who is completing a three-month assignment as a guest writer for The Winston-Salem Journal & Sentinel, presented a comparison of European and American newspapers in general and discussed the Turkish press in particular.

Ecevit was introduced by Dean Norval Neil Luxon of the School of Journalism under whose sponsorship he visited the campus.

"European papers are smaller mainly because of economic reasons: low average incomes make volume advertising by businessmen unprofitable, and the papers have less money to spend on newsprint, which is very scarce," Ecevit remarked.

He added that the pressure of small size is an advantage as it forces concise reporting and careful copy editing. The very bulkiness of American newspapers may destroy their fitness for hurried readers.

Shopping Guide Inside

Inside The Daily Tar Heel today you'll find an extra two pages of features and news, both of campus happenings and Carolina sports activities.
Also, you'll find a handy before-the-rush Christmas shopping guide, so you can do your present buying in plenty of time to sit back and relax over the holidays.

'Never... Issue'

Barclay Will Stay On Another Year 2 Advisory Groups Give Coach Confidence Votes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chancellor Robert B. House of the University of North Carolina last night made it clear that the institution will fulfill its contractual commitment to head football Coach George Barclay and that there "has never been any issue between Mr. Barclay and the University over the terms of his contract in any way."

Barclay's three-year contract has another year to run. The Chancellor issued a brief prepared statement following recommendations of the University Faculty Committee on Athletic and the Athletic Council, both of which are advisory groups. Both gave Barclay a vote of confidence. The Athletic Council acted at its monthly meeting last night. The Faculty Committee had previously gone on record.

Chancellor House's statement: "The contract between the University of North Carolina and its head football coach, Mr. George Barclay, is a three-year contract with another year to run. There has never been any issue between Mr. Barclay and the University over the terms of his contract in any way. We have never had a coach more cooperative with the University purposes than Mr. Barclay. The University desires to disassociate itself emphatically from certain rumors launched in the public press to the effect that the University was seeking to dismiss Mr. Barclay."

A. W. Hobbs, chairman of the Athletic Council, transmitted the group's advice to Chancellor House following a session in which other wise routine business was transacted.

The Council saw fit to make its recommendation and Chancellor House his statement as the result of persistent reports that alumni were unhappy over the progress of the team and advocated a change. North Carolina, under Coach Barclay's staff, this year won four games, lost five and tied one. Barclay's first North Carolina team, in 1953, won four and lost six.

Reports that the coaching change might be made were first circulated after the season's closing game, which Duke won by 47-12. Coach Jim Tatum of Maryland was most prominently mentioned as Barclay's successor if the latter's contract was "bought up" as some alumni had been reported as favoring.

Joseph Gardner, Business Administration student here, was elected president of the Master of Business Administration Club this week.
Gardner received his B. S. in business administration at the University of Colorado in 1938. Presently in the U. S. Army Adjutant General's Corps, he is at Fort Belvoir, Illinois, in connection with the AGC Personnel Management Program.
The MBA Club also elected Jack Patteson, who got his B. S. in business administration at Virginia Polytechnic Institute in 1951, to serve as vice-president for the spring semester.
Jerome Benett, B. T. E., Georgia Polytechnic Institute, 1951, is now recording secretary, and Paul J. McDermott, B. S. business administration, UNC, 1954, is corresponding secretary.
John Stump, B. S. statistics, N. C. State, 1951, was elected treasurer. Stump has a used-car business in addition to a full graduate program, wife and 10-month old boy.

Postgrad Medicine Sponsored

Two new postgraduate courses in medicine will be sponsored in the eastern part of the state beginning in Jan. by the School of Medicine here, according to Dr. William P. Richardson, assistant dean for continuation education.
A course in Goldsboro will open on Jan. 11, while doctors in the Ahoskie-Edenton-Elizabeth City area will meet in Ahoskie on Jan. 12 for the first session.

Beginning lectures in both areas will be devoted to coronary disease and management of hypertension and will be co-sponsored by the North Carolina Heart Association.

(See POSTGRAD, page 6)

CAMPUS SEEN
Student in Greek literature class asking scholarly definition of professor so he (student) can finish crossword puzzle.

Slightly intoxicated Carolina gentleman, trying to pay meal ticket at Dairy Bar with bar of Palmolive soap.

Freshman seen entering Gingham Castle, thinking he was about to be inducted into a fraternity called Alpha Sigma Omega; later seen leaving after being informed by caretaker that he was object of practical joke.

The holly tree in front of Graham Memorial.

Newspaper Institute Set Here

The program for the annual North Carolina Newspaper Institute, to be held here and at Duke University on Jan. 20 and 21 and 22, was completed at a meeting here last weekend of representatives of the North Carolina Press Association and the University.

An address by U. S. Senator Samuel J. Ervin Jr. will be featured at the opening session on Jan. 20.

A Public Affairs panel will be held on the morning of Jan. 21.

The University will be host at a luncheon session on the same day. The afternoon will be devoted to separate group meetings for the dailies and non-dailies. Harry Allen, Charlotte, will preside over the meetings for dailies, while Mac Bell, Windsor, will preside over the non-daily group.

A session of the North Carolina Journalism Foundation is set for 4 o'clock on the afternoon of Jan. 21.

The annual Duke dinner will be held in the Duke Gymnasium on the night of Jan. 21, with Dr. W. Kenneth Goodson, superintendent of the Winston-Salem district of the Methodist Church as principal speaker. Governor Luther H. Hodges will present the annual press awards.

The closing session will be held at the Carolina Inn on the morning of Jan. 22. The principal speaker will be Thomas L. Robinson, publisher of The Charlotte News.

'Carolina Cooking' Is Now In Third Printing

"Carolina Cooking," a 110 page volume originally published as a local Junior Service League fund-raising project, is now being readied for its third printing.

More than 300 recipes collected by the League members are included in the volume, proceeds from which go toward many projects of the Service League. Heading the list for the year will be support of the Community Recreation Center.

Copies are currently on sale at Fowler's Food Store, Village Pharmacy, Sloan Drug Store, the Hospitality Shop at North Carolina Memorial Hospital, Junior Wardrobe of Glen Lennox, Foister's Camera Shop and Kemp's Record Shop.

Governor Calls For

'Long Look' At Spending

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina has reached the point where it must "settle down and take a good long look" before beginning new spending programs, Gov. Hodges said yesterday.

The governor told his news conference he will recommend to the Legislature only appropriations approved by the Advisory Budget Commission. Just maintaining present state services will require a "rather terrific" amount of additional revenue, he said.

His specific recommendations on spending and taxes will be spelled out in his budget message to the Legislature, Hodges added.

In announcing that a report on the state's prison system is expected from the commission on reorganization of state government late this week or early next week. Hodges indicated separation of the prisons from the Highway Commission may be delayed.

He said he expects about the time the report is received to replace the late Dr. Howard Odum of Chapel Hill.

Hodges Urges Citizens To Observe 'S-D Day'

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Hodges yesterday urged Tar Heel citizens to "drive and walk with utmost caution" today to insure the success of "Safe Driving Day," observed in North Carolina.

Hodges made his appeal in a state-wide radio talk over a network of about 67 stations. The governor said that during the 24 hour period starting at midnight last night the nation's drivers "will combine courtesy, caution and common sense in a mass effort to combat accidents."

He expressed the wish that North Carolina will set new records for accident-free motor driving on S-D Day.

Pointing out that S-D Day could mean "Sudden Death Day," Hodges appealed to his listeners to "drive and walk as you would have everyone else drive and walk."

He said all drivers and pedestrians were being asked to: 1. Observe the letter and spirit of all traffic regulations, 2. be courteous to every driver and pedestrian, 3. practice sportsmanship, and 4. give full attention to driving and walking.

NROTC Ceremonies Are Held

Ceremonies were held yesterday by the Naval ROTC here to honor Chief Petty Officer "J" C. Perkins who is retiring from active service, and to present special rifle and pistol awards to midshipmen in the NROTC Battalion.

Chief Perkins was honored by presentation of a "letter of appreciation" by Colonel R. C. Burns, USMC, professor of naval science here.

Chief Perkins first moved to Chapel Hill with his family in 1951 when he commenced his duties with the Naval unit here. Upon his retirement from active service, he and his family will move to Texas.

Colonel Burns also presented the Third Army Area Intercollegiate ROTC Rifle Trophy to Midshipman Gordon B. Hall of Syracuse, N. Y., Rifle Team captain. The trophy was won by the team in competition last spring. All members of the team were presented individual medals for placing first in the Third Army Area match and fourth in the National ROTC Intercollegiate match. The members of the team are Phillip L. Goodman, New Orleans, La., Loren A. Brandt, Charleston, S. C.; J. B. Goldberg, Augusta, Ga.; Donald Kentopp, East Orange, N. J., and Freeman A. Grant, Bethesda, Md.

A final award went to Midshipman Phillip Goodman, who received the Secretary of the Navy Individual High Score Pistol Trophy which he won in competition last spring.