Scenes From UNC's TV Studios

Frank Jeter, editor of the Agricultural Extension publications at N. C. State College, will be a regular performer on WUNC-TV, channel 4, after the station opens Saturday. Jeter, focal point above, will head the station's agricultural program, "Today on the Farm," which will be presented every weekday at 5:30 p. m. from the State College studio. Jeter will present up-to-date farm news on his program as well as features on new farming methods.

This picture gives a pretty good idea of the enormous amount of equipment required for telecasting. Here the Woman's College studio WUNC-TV staff members televise Peggy Britt as she conducts her home economics program over channel 4. Miss Britt will alternate with Dorothy Mulder of State College in presenting the home ec show every weekday afternoon at 3:30. Also scheduled are programs for children of all ages. "Schoolhouse" will be for children of pre-school age while "The Younger Set" will be for children from eight to 14 years of age.

The Advisory Budget Commission makes its recommendations today to the Legislature in a book called The Budget. The book lists expenditures for the last biennium, requests for the new biennium and the Commission's recommendations as to how much of the requested appropriations should be made.

The resolution which was adopted by the student Legislature said: "Whereas: The present tuition and fees at the University of North Carolina are already as high as many students can pay;

"Whereas: It has come to the attention of the students that an effort will be made to increase tuition and other fees at the next meeting of the General Assembly;

"Now, therefore be it resolved by the student Legislature of the University of North Carolina that, "Article I. The student Legislature go on record opposing any increase in the tuition and other fees at the University of North Carolina.

"Article II. That a copy of this resolution together with a copy of a letter adopted by the student Legislature be forwarded to each Senator and Representative of the North Carolina Legislature."

Following is the letter which was sent to each member of the

HEART HITS THREE

North Carolina's three top public officials—Governor Umstead and Senators Hoey and Smith—have all died during the past year from heart diseases, the N. C. Heart Association office here points out. Almost 50 per cent of the deaths in this state were caused by heart and blood vessel diseases during 1953, according to figures released by the State Board of Health. On a nation-wide basis the same situation holds true. Heart conditions cause more than half of all deaths in the United States, according to the latest available figures from the National Office of Vital Statistics.

Legislature to increase tuition and other fees. Already these fees, are as high as a great many of our students can pay.

"The student Legislature, representative of a student body of 6,017 students, has gone on record against any increase of these fees to students. We, therefore, hope that you as one of the legislators will find it possible to agree with us and oppose such legislation should it be introduced."
