Two Presidents Meet In Cobb

TWO LOCAL PRESIDENTS, Louis Brumfield of Cobb Dormitory, and Gordon Gray of the Consolidated University of North Carolina, shake hands after a Cobb meeting. President Gray, speaking last week in the first of a series of talks promoted by the Interdormitory Council social committee, told dormitory residents he was "strenuously opposed to any proposed hike in the tuition rates" of the three universities. President Brumfield, from Yackville, is active in student politics.

Formal TV Dedication Held With Chancellors

The state's first educational TV station, the voice of the Consolidated University of North Carolina, opened here Saturday with a telecast of the basketball double-header between the UNC Tar Heels and the Wake Forest College featuring the first day's programs.

Formal dedication of the Channel 4 outlet was held Sunday at 7 p.m. when President Gordon Gray of the Consolidated University presented the station to the people of the state. The chancellors of the three divisions of the University, Cary Bostian of N. C. State, E. K. Graham of Woman's College at Greensboro and Robert B. House of UNC at Chapel Hill, spoke on the same program.

3 One-Acters Set Tomorrow And Thursday

Three one-act plays, written and directed by Carolina students, will be presented by the Carolina Playmakers tomorrow and Thursday nights, in the Playmaker Theatre.

These plays, the first in a series planned for the coming semester, include: The Friends, written by Joseph Rosenberg, Chapel Hill, and directed by Suzanne Kramer, Hickory, Gomennasai, written by Christian Moe, New York City, and directed by Joseph Rosenberg, Chapel Hill; and Doris, written by Virginia Ferguson, Durham, and directed Marjorie Wylde, Sherbrooke, Quebec, Canada.

Those taking part in The Friends include Harry Davis, Harry Coble, Albert Gordon, Peter O'Sullivan, Clinton Andrews, Lorry Braverman and Peter Cothran.

In Gomennasai are Frank Kornier, Marie Boyle, and Len Bullock, and Doris will feature Donnel Stoneman, Lois Garren and Len Bullock.

General stage manager for the three productions is John Hamilton, and the sets have been designed by John Cauble, John Stockard, William Casstevens and June Craft.

The performances have been scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Station Director Robert R. Schenck and University Provost J. Harris Purks also joined the dedicatory rites.

The station has its 798 1/2-foot tower located on a 65-acre tract atop Ferrell's Mountain in Chatham County. Test patterns have been received as far west as Kansas and Missouri. The effective range of the station, however, is about 65 miles, while reception is fair at 100 miles.

Branch studios are located at each of the divisions of the Consolidated University.

Saturday's programming began with a film program, "This is the Life." Afterwards a 30-minute "live" song and dance program, "Prelude," was telecast from the WUNC studio prior to the presentation of the basketball games between UNC and Wake Forest. A new program and Edward R. Murrow's "This I Believe" concluded the first day's activities.

Campus Carousel:

By ELEANOR SAUNDERS

The social hourglass of 1954 has sifted itself away into nothingness, yet Carolina socialites have another year and a streamlined new glass of time before them. Among the sands of 1955 will be numerous parties and pinnings, escapes and engagements, weekends and weddings.

NEW LOOK

This promises to be a year of new looks—the full classroom look, the shapeless Dior look, the higher dormitory bill look, and perhaps the George-less look. But with the same people and the same places, bigger and better parties loom on the social horizon. So relax and enjoy it! It's 1955!

After this and varied other vigorous greetings to the New Year, the first weekend didn't seem typical of future predictions and aspirations. But those time-consuming days are nearly upon the Carolina calendar again; so, on second thought, relax and enjoy it after Jan. 29!

For instance, KAS, despite the move into a decharred and remodeled house, assembled troops to a study party during

Wake Forest Building

WINSTON-SALEM, Jan. 10 (AP)—Construction of a million dollar faculty housing project has begun on the new Wake Forest College campus here, according to college Vice President R. G. Deyton.

The 10 building units will contain a total of 72 apartments to be used by faculty and administrative personnel when the college is moved to Winston-Salem in mid-1956, Deyton said.

Sixteen will be three-bedroom apartments. The other 56 units will be built on a "flexible plan," he said, so that they can be used as either two or one-bedroom apartments.

Philological Club

"Some Parallels and Divergences in Literature and Music Since 1600" will be the subject of a talk by Professor William Newman of the music department, tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the choral room of Hill Hall at a meeting of the Philological Club.

the weekend. Early start, anyone?

Pledges and actives of Alpha Delta Pi enjoyed a weekend of festivities in honor of the pledge class. Friday night the traditional formal dance was held at the Carolina Inn with the theme of "Snow Frolics." And Saturday night, members and dates attended a banquet at the Washington-Duke in Durham.

Sigma Chi pledges entertained actives Saturday night with a party at Hartmann's in Durham. And TEP pledges kept the social spirit high with a stag party Friday night.

Observing all forms of social graces during the weekend were Lambda Chi members from the Washington & Lee chapter were guests at the local chapter house this weekend; and Sunday the fraternity's new house-mother was honored at a tea from 3 until 5.

After the crowded and quite successful New Year's Eve party, Phi Kaps spent a quiet weekend on the home front. But Friday night, pledges of the fraternity entertained pledges from Duke.

George's Friends Rally To His Aid

By JACKIE GOODMAN

The number of would-be protectors of George the dog seems to have increased over the weekend which reduced the length of his foreseeable future to six days.

Among new additions the list of George's friends are certain pupils of Chapel Hill's grammar school and one of his fellow canines.

Bobby Poston, a pupil in the fourth grade of the Chapel Hill Elementary School, drew up a petition last week which asks for George's return to the streets of town.

The petition which is headed "George is Our Friend," is addressed to the Chief of the Chapel Hill police, and reads as follows:

"Please let George come back to us. We love him and like to say 'Hello George' when we meet him at the Post Office or the Bookshop or Y-Court or on the street. We like to give him part of our hamburgers and ice cream cones.

"We think George is a good citizen. We are sorry you get complaints about him, but we think he gets blamed for things he doesn't do just because everyone knows his name. We are sure that he brings happiness to more people than he annoys.

Please bring him back to us."

Bobby, the son of C. F. Poston of the University's School of Business Administration, reported that last Saturday the petition had gained 29 names.

The canine friend which came to bat for the campus collie over the weekend is a seeing eye dog owned by Miss Betty Sigle, a graduate student here.

A letter was received by Mrs. A. M. Jordan, the lady who for the past week has been using all of her energy trying to clear George of the charges lodged against him, which came from Dottie, the seeing eye dog, and which, according to Dottie's mistress, expresses exactly what Dottie would say if she were able to write. Here is what the letter said:

"I want you to know that I am on your side, and I hope you can do something so George can come back. I have several good reasons for this.

"I am a graduate student in the School of Sociology work at the University. I know how George must feel about being blamed for everything any collie does because I am often blamed for what other seeing eye dogs do. For example, they tell us in hotels sometimes that 'We can't have a seeing eye dog here, because we once had a seeing eye dog, and it howled at night.' Now I don't howl at night, but how can I prove it.

"This is my first year in this University, and when my mistress brought me here in September I was so lonesome, and all the dogs were snobbish and wouldn't play with me. That is all excepting George. Every evening before supper I was allowed to have a run in the yard, and every evening George came to play with me. My mistress said it was good to have me work off some of my excess energy, and I admit that I act a lot better in class when I don't feel so restless.

"Of course, George does have the bad habit of prancing around me when I'm working to distract my attention, and my mistress does get peeved at him, (and me), for it, but I know her pretty dog-gone well, and I know she doesn't really mind much.

"I am certain that I am talking about the real George, too, because lately there hasn't been any collie come to play with me before supper, and there isn't any collie to walk with me to class or stop by my place for a drink of water. Also lately there hasn't been any collie pestering my mistress with a cold nose so she'll give up in desperation and let me off without having my fur combed and brushed.

"Won't you please make them send George back, Mrs. Jordan, for you see he is the only dog that upholds the spirit of hospitality and friendliness of the University of North Carolina.

Lonesomely yours,
Dottie Sigle, seeing eye dog."

Mrs. Jordan reported yesterday that Jerry Ashworth, the one person who left his name with the police when reporting that a collie had bitten him, told her that George was the culprit. He told her that after seeing George at the Humane Society's pens on Saturday morning.

She added that the police still do not want George to come back to roam the campus walks and streets of the town in spite of the evidence of his innocence which she said that she has presented to them.

"If students are interested enough in George, would they please go and tell the chief of police what their opinion of George is and ask him to let him come back?" she asked.

"If he (the police chief) was made aware that a lot of people do want George back, he would let him come back," George's number one benefactor concluded.

WC Teacher Resigns After Mag Censure

Novelist Lettie Hamlett Rogers, assistant professor of English at Woman's College, who Friday announced that she would resign from the faculty "in protest of administrative action" censuring the staff of the school's literary magazine, yesterday said she had "no further comment" on the matter.

The entire staff of Corndi, the student publication, resigned last Dec. 16 a few hours after Chancellor Edward K. Graham publicly reprimanded them for including in the fall issue of a nude male. Mrs. Rogers is the author of three novels and specialist in the teaching of creative writing.

She said her resignation was submitted to Dr. Graham Jan. 3 and that, so far as she knows, no official action has been taken by administrative officials concerning her move.

Contacted by telephone yesterday, Mrs. Rogers said she had nothing further to say about her resignation.

Asked for comment, Dr. Graham said it was the policy of the college not to discuss resignations until they have been approved by the executive committee of the Board of Trustees. Next meeting of the executive committee will be Feb. 17 at Raleigh.
