

Carolina Opens Heavy Week Against Virginia Here Tonight

Over The Hill

By FRED BABSON

The so-called experts have been saying that Carolina could not run with a running team, but last Saturday night in Woolen Gym Frank McGuire's Tar Heels abandoned their possession-type style of play and all but ran Wake Forest off the court to a 95-78 tune.

The locals were hot as firecrackers. Both teams took the same number of shots, 67. But Carolina hit on 37 of theirs for a 55% average; while Wake Forest dumped 28 of their shots for a 41% average, a very healthy mark, but not quite enough for the occasion. In the first half Carolina sank 19 of 31 shots from the floor. This phenomenal 61% accuracy mark afforded them a 48-40 lead at intermission.

The McGuiremen also dominated the all-important rebounding phase of the game, grabbing 40 to the Deacons 25.

The highly-publicized scoring duel between Wake's All-America Dickie Hemric and Carolina's sensational sophomore Lennie Rosenbluth never quite materialized. Both men double-teamed a good part of the game. Hemric was guarded so closely that his teammates had difficulty getting the ball into him. Rosenbluth volunteered to guard Hemric, but three quick fouls in this role during the opening minutes of the tilt prompted McGuire to take his scoring ace off the 6'6", 227-lb., three-foot wide Deacon tower. Bob Young, also a 6'6" giant then assumed the task of covering Dangerous Dickie, and Young eventually fouled out in the process, late in the game.

Hemric took 23 free throws and made 17 of them. He was held to seven field goals and retrieved only 11 rebounds.

Rosenbluth sank ten field goals and four free throws and grabbed 13 rebounds. He shot only 19 times.

Reliable Jerry Vayda suffered through a miserable four-point first half effort, only to run wild in the last period, tossing in another 20. Vayda also outshot Hemric from the floor with nine field goals.

Tony Radovich, who is not so spectacular but who never seems to make a mistake, worked his back-jack-knife jump shot and four grats tosses for 18 points. The prettiest shot of the night was his long hook shot from outside the foul circle as the final horn sounded.

Al Lifson, the take-charge floorman, contributed 14 markers and his usual excellent floor game.

But the most pleasantly surprising feature of the night was Bob Young's coming to life. The fair-haired New York sophomore has been the victim of a long, cold streak, but Saturday night he thawed out and hit a sizzling high mark. The six-foot, six-inch husky was the main cog in Carolina's first half attack, repeatedly hitting on long sets from the corner with ready accuracy. He sat out part of the second half after committing his fourth personal, but returned long enough to add another field goal, bringing his total for the night to 15.

Lifson, Vayda, Rosenbluth, and Radovich never left the game. Paul Likins was the only sub used. Tar Heel mentor McGuire continues to win friends and influence people by such sportsmanlike gestures as going out of his way to tell Wake Forest guard Jackie Murdock to return to the game after the official scorer had ruled him out on five fouls. (Murdock and the Wake Forest coaches said he had committed only four.) He went back in and fouled out later.

The Tar Heels play only three more games here, including tonight's encounter. Ten games, plus the ACC championship tournament remain to be played.

The televising of the Wake Forest-UNC game is supposed to have caused a 2,000 drop in attendance at the Duke-State game in Durham. (Well, you can't please everybody)

Carolina was an underdog going into the Deacon fracas. . . Furman, with or without Frank Sely is a regular scoring machine. They set a new national scoring record last Friday night by trampling the Citadel, 154-67, scoring 84 points in the first half. . . Their scoring whiz, nationally second-ranked Darrell Floyd sank 50.

Third-ranked State stands an excellent chance of being No. 1 in the nation this week. No. 1 Kentucky and No. 2 Duquesne having been the victims of ignoble upsets Saturday night. . . Georgia Tech in defeating Kentucky 59-58, is the first team to down the Wildcats on their home court since January 2, 1943, 129 games ago. A South-eastern quint had not turned the trick since 1939. Duquesne was slapped down by little St. Francis of Loretta, Pa., 82-72.

Noticed a syndicated sports cartoon in a Virginia newspaper on Paul Likins, Carolina's Rhodes Scholar-athlete. Whizzer White, Colorado's great All-America football and basketball player, and Boxing Commissioner Eddie Egan were also Rhodes recipients. . . Likins, co-captain of the Tar Heel five and regular starter for the past three years, is being given a run-for-his-money by sophomore Bob Young. . .

A letter of thanks from Ed Patterson, senior guard on the Carolina grid team, appeared on the Greensboro Daily News sports page recently. . . Patterson was showing his appreciation for being selected on the Daily News All-State football team. . .

A month ago we all were admiring the University not to even consider breaking football coach George Barclay's contract, since it had a year to run. . . it would be unfair, immoral to do such a thing, we said. . . Last Sunday Bowden Wyatt stepped out of a five-year contract at Arkansas, with three years to run, to sign another five-year deal with Tennessee. . . He had just received a pay raise from $12,000 to $15,000 at Arkansas and the fans had presented him with a shiny, new Cadillac and had raised a $20,000 cash fund for his assistants. . . Is it any less wrong if the shoe is on the other foot?

Wisconsin's Alan Ameche Offered Wrestling Pact

P. L. Pinky George, Des Moines sports promoter, said today he will offer Alan Ameche, Wisconsin's All-America fullback, a $100,000 a year guarantee if Ameche will become a professional wrestler.

George said he expects to confer with Ameche at Milwaukee Friday night to offer him a contract and "a 25,000 advance down payment to seal the bargain."

The Des Moines promoter, chief sponsor of wrestling bouts in Des Moines and some other Iowa cities, said he has had no direct conversations with Ameche. He said friends in Wisconsin have been acting as intermediaries in his preliminary contacts with Ameche.

"I don't have any fundamental objections if Ameche also wishes to play pro football," George said.

Tony Radovich, starting forward on the Tar Heel five, garnered 18 points in Saturday's game with Wake Forest, which the Tar Heels won, 95-78. Radovich, a native of Hoboken, New Jersey, is the holder of several New Jersey high school scoring records.

Krepp Figures In 2 New Marks As UNC Swimmers Rout Virginia

W&L Defeats Matmen, 22-8

By AL KORSCHUN

The UNC Varsity wrestling team lost its third straight match of the season as Washington and Lee won, 22-8, Saturday afternoon in Woolen Gymnasium. In a match that had been an even-temper contest at the end of the first four matches, W & L won the last four and built up a lead which they never relinquished. Don Gray and Co-Capt. Pete McGhee were Carolina's only winners as McGhee notched his third victory of the year and Gray his first. In two of the closest matches, Hugh Cowan dropped a close 4-2 decision and Co-Capt. Miles Gregory lost his first match to McSpadden, W & L top wrestler.

The Tar Heel freshmen made their home debut a success by beating the Washington and Lee frosh, 25-15. The frosh combined two falls and three forfeits to gain their first victory of the season. Both Stirling Haig and Jack Gray got their second victories of the year in hard-fought matches and Dave Wall, Tommy West, and Phil Blazer scored on forfeits for Carolina.

Baby Dolphins Take Third Win

By AL KORSCHUN

Carolina's freshman swimming team turned in its third win of the season against no defeats last Saturday, in downing the Greensboro high school swimmers, 48-7.

Coach Dick Jamerson's Baby Dolphins captured seven out of nine first places in the meet.

Wilkinson Will Make Cavaliers As Tough As Deacons—McGuire

Varsity Contest Will Follow Freshman Game Against Duke; Tar Babies Still Undeclared

Carolina's Tar Heels, riding along in the Atlantic Coast Conference race in a tie for second place, take on the sixth-ranked University of Virginia Cavaliers tonight in Woolen Gym to open a three-game week of conference battles.

Game time tonight is 8:15 o'clock, following a freshman preliminary contest at 6:15 between the Tar Babies and the Duke frosh.

Friday and Saturday nights the team travels into South Carolina to meet the Gamecocks and Clemson in that order.

The Tar Heels now possess a 3-1 loop record to Virginia's 3-3 mark. Carolina is deadlocked with Maryland (6-2) for the No. 2 spot behind N. C. State.

UNC head coach Frank McGuire, who was well satisfied with his team's showing Saturday night against Wake Forest, said yesterday that Virginia is liable to prove just as tough to conquer. "Virginia has a better balanced team than Wake Forest," he elaborated, "and the team is a good one because of ('Buzz') Wilkinson. I would feel a lot better if I knew we would have a shooting percentage like we did Saturday night."

Wilkinson, who holds nearly all the individual records at Virginia, was the fourth highest scorer in the nation, averaging 30 points per game, throughout the first of the year. In a game last season against Carolina he tallied 45 points.

A senior from Pineville, W. Va., Wilkinson last year led the conference in scoring with an amazing total of 814 points.

The Cavaliers, however, have not fared too well this season despite Wilkinson's work. They have lost to Maryland twice and Wake Forest, with league wins over South Carolina twice and Clemson. Their latest conquest, a non-conference victory, came Saturday night when they trounced V. M. I., 106-84.

Virginia's probable starters will be Wilkinson and Dick Lotts at guards, Austin Pearre at center, and George Grattan and Bob McCarty at forwards.

McGuire will start the same five with which he opened against Wake Forest—Len Rosenbluth and Jerry Vayda at forwards, Bob Young at center, and Tony Radovich and Al Lifson at guards. Each one of these Tar Heels scored in double figures against the Deacons. Rosenbluth and Vayda tallied 24 apiece.

Rosenbluth, whose scoring average has dropped considerably since the beginning of the season, still carries a per-game mark of 26.6. Vayda has a 14.1 average while Lifson has a 12.3.

Young, a sophomore who has been alternating with Paul Likins at center, was the Tar Heel spark until fouling out on Dick Hemric toward the end of the game.

Radovich, New Jersey junior, is improving with every performance. The Wake Forest game was his best of the year.

After tonight's game, there will be only two more home contests for the Tar Heels . . . Duke and N. C. State.
