Valentino Movie Set In Carroll

By PAT McBANE

Graham Memorial Activities Board Film Series ticket holders will have an opportunity to see the "Great Lover of the silent screen" tonight when the second movie of the spring slate is presented in Carroll Hall at 8 o'clock.

The film is the 1926 production "Son of the Sheik." Its star is Rudolph Valentino.

A sequel to "The Sheik," which established Valentino as one of the most popular matinee idols of his day, tonight's movie attempted to recapture the glamour of the earlier picture. Though not as successful, the importance of "Son of the Sheik" lies in the fact that it was Valentino's last film. A few weeks after its release, the star died unexpectedly, following an emergency operation.

Valentino's death was an occasion of nation-wide mourning among his female admirers. Thanks to a skillful press agent, his funeral attracted world-wide attention. Newspapers were supplied with photographs which were distributed in advance of the chamber where the actor's body would lie in state. Posing shots of the cortege appeared in many newspapers an hour before the funeral began.

The actual services in New York caused a riot. Scores of people were injured, and Campbell's Funeral Parlor, where the body lay, was almost wrecked by hysterical fans. Thousands of women gathered at stations across the country as the funeral train made its way to Los Angeles.

A highlight of the burial rites was the appearance of an unidentified woman, heavily veiled and dressed in black, who placed a single red rose on the grave and then departed as mysteriously as she had come. Legend has it that each year on the anniversary of Valentino's death she again visits his tomb to leave a rose in his memory.

The actor's gravestone was paid for by a scenario writer. Its price was $600. The only other tangible evidence that the Great Lover actually existed stands today in a park in Hollywood. It is a small bronze monument in his honor, paid for by contributions from his sorrowing fans.

Co-starred with Valentino in "Son of the Sheik" is Vilma Banky, a Hungarian star of the silent films. The picture features Agnes Ayres, female lead of the first "Sheik" picture.

For Membership, Publicity and Party Spirit:

UP Amends Bylaws To Provide For Steering Group 'Nucleus'

By CHARLES JOHNSON

Tuesday night the University Party passed an amendment to its constitution which shall provide for a steering committee, which is to be used as a coordinating nucleus of the party.

The name of the committee is to be the "The University Party Steering Committee." Its purpose is to sponsor membership drives, assist with the publicity of the party and to stimulate interest in the party. Members of this committee are to be appointed by party chairman. There are to be three members from three separate men's dorm districts, three members from three separate women's dorm districts, one member from the women's dorm district and one member from the men's town district. The vice-chairman of the UP is to serve as chairman of this committee.

Lucy Purser To Sing At Germans

Pretty Lucy Purser, above, who's singing with Tony Pastor and his orchestra these days, will sing here when Pastor and crew play here tomorrow night. The dance, sponsored by the Carolina Germans Club, will be held from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. Earl Bostic and orchestra will play at a concert 4 to 6 p.m. Saturday.

Ed Borden Is Appointed To Entertainment Post

Ed Borden, Goldsboro, has been appointed chairman of the Student Entertainment Committee for 1955-56.

Other committee members named by Student Body President Tom Creasy include Don Freeman, Gordon Forester, Don Kurtz, Jane Cocke, Layton McCurdy and Ruth Dalton.

Appointments are subject to the approval of the student Legislature tonight.

In making the appointments Creasy said, "I am very pleased with the committee. I think it's a very well-rounded group."

The committee was appointed earlier this year to allow members to begin work on securing the "best talent available." Many artists have to be signed up early in the spring. Usually, the retiring committee picks the celebrities who are to appear, and the incoming committee carries out the program. With the earlier appointments, one committee will be able to perform both these functions.

Former committee appointments were made in May.

Madry Termed 'Doing Nicely'

R. W. Madry, director of the University News Bureau who is a patient at Memorial Hospital, is "doing nicely" and seems to be improving, said a hospital attaché yesterday.

Madry, who went to the hospital for a check-up last Jan. 17 and was kept there, has had his illness diagnosed as kidney trouble and hypertension.

State Host At CU Day Saturday

State College will be host Saturday for Consolidated University Day.

Three times each year representatives from Woman's College, State College and UNC meet to discuss common problems and to maintain an organization to represent the Consolidated University.

Each school is responsible for one session a year. The first was held here last fall, and the last this year will be held at WC.

Larry Ford, chairman of the Carolina delegation, announced yesterday names of UNC's council members, who were chosen by student government.

Representatives are Tom Creasy, student body president; Miss Ruth Jones, Women's Residence Council chairman; Martin Jordan, student body vice-president; Don Fowler and Don Geiger of student Legislature; Manning Muntzing representing the Inter-dormitory Council; Burt Veazey, and Henry Issacson, of the Interfraternity Council.

A complete day is planned starting at 2 p. m. and concluding with a dance beginning at 9 p. m. in the State College Union Ballroom.

Baptists' New Addition Will Start Tonight

Training Union, latest addition to the local Baptist Student Union, will begin at 7 p.m. today after the weekly family night supper at 6:15.

Dr. I. G. Greer, former director of North Carolina Baptist orphanages, will begin a weekly seminar on Baptist doctrine, and Student Chaplain James Cansler will lead a group in the study of the life and work of Christ.

A Baptist Young People's Union, using denominational literature, will be directed by Miss Carol King, literature chairman of BSU.

The two seminar groups will include 30 minutes of lecture and 15 minutes of discussion, while the Baptist Young People's Union will be entirely conducted by students.

Supper in the church cafeteria will cost 50 cents.

Premeds' Discussion Scheduled

Pre-medical students here and at other colleges in the state have been invited to participate in a discussion of medical school requirements to be held here next Tuesday.

Dr. Edward Hedgpeth, university physician, clinical associate professor of medicine and chairman of the admissions committee of the School of Medicine, will conduct the meeting in room 207 of Venable Hall at 8 p.m.

The local chapter of Alpha Epsilon Delta, national pre-medical honor society, headed by George T. Strickland, Nashville, is sponsor of the meeting.

Student advisors and pre-medical students of Wake Forest, Davidson and Guilford have been invited to attend.

Ervin Gives Advice

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9. (AP)—This advice of a North Carolina philosopher was passed on to Congress today by Sen. Ervin (D-NC): "Pass no more laws, and 'peal half of them we've already got.'"

Ervin said in a statement that nearly 5,000 bills and resolutions were proposed in the first month of the 84th Congress. He commented:

"The vast number of legislative proposals presented to the Congress at each session emphasizes the wisdom of my departed friend, Lum Garrison, who was Morganton's philosopher in the days of my youth."

"When I was elected at the age of 26 to represent my native county of Burke in the North Carolina Legislature, Lum Garrison came to me with this advice."

Student Solons To Decide Fate Of Much Legislation

By NEIL BASS

The convening of the student Legislature tonight at 7:30 in the Philanthropic Assembly Hall will mean the debate and fate of numerous legislation, plus the fact that the session will be witness to the deliverance of President Tom Creasy's State of the Campus address.

The raising of legislator's hands will also determine the ratification or rejection of the Interdormitory Council's revised bylaws, which have never been approved by the solons.

It is likely that the leaders of the Student Party will be the most interested in the outcome of the voting, however, because three of the SP campaign platform planks out of the original four that were proposed will be decided upon.

The University Party has several bills that will be thumbed down or passed by the legislators too. One of these, a bill concerning the choosing of candidates for the editorships of The Daily Tar Heel and the Yackety Yack, has aroused a lot of interest on the part of a couple of the possible candidates, and especially on the part of the SP. It is rumored that the SP solons will vigorously oppose the measure for what Dave Reid, SP floor leader called, "fear that such a bi-partisan board created for the selection of candidates would not be entirely bi-partisan."

Creasy has said that his address will deal with "discussion of the action that I took in vetoing the University Band appropriations bill; discussion of the action that I took in appearing before the Faculty Council to appeal the measure taken by the University with regard to the limitation of class cuts; and discussion of possible opposition to the fee raise that is being proposed by the state Legislature."

The message, according to Creasy, will also deal with 'the general gist of things that student government is working on.'

"Satchmo" will be whooping it up in Memorial Hall tonight, but it is likely that the legislative session will be just as full of surprises.

Morehead Art Gallery Shows Bible Lithos

Through the courtesy of Maurice Saunders of Chapel Hill, the Morehead Art Gallery is now showing in the north exhibit room 47 lithographs by Abel Pann, based on the first five books of the Old Testament.

The artist, of Lithuanian birth, felt that the Old Testament of the Bible had not been illustrated in a way which correctly portrayed the Jewish people as they were. To capture the atmosphere and to portray the Jews of Biblical times as he felt they should be, Pann lived in Jerusalem for many years. The lithographs are hand drawn on stone, and printed and autographed for Saunders, the owner.

Now a resident of the Carolina Inn here, Saunders loaned the lithographs to the Morehead Gallery, because they tie closely with the current Planetarium show, "Billions of Years Ago." The show itself is the story of the creation as taken from the Old Testament and as conceived by scientists.

Pann's lithograph illustrations of the Five Books of Moses have been exhibited in Berlin, Brussels, London, Boston and New York.

Satchmo Plays For Charity In Memorial Hall, 8 Tonight

By MORT COOPER

Tonight Louis Armstrong and his All-Stars will give a polio benefit concert in Memorial Hall to one of his most appreciative audiences, namely the Chapel Hill Jazz Club, composed of college students, faculty members and townspeople.

"No more tickets are available" to the Louis Armstrong concert to be held tonight at 8 o'clock in Memorial Hall, said R. B. Fitch, president of ATO, last night.

Those attending the concert will see one of the greatest jazz musicians of all time in action. Armstrong will give out with some of the strongest and most beautiful jazz trumpet, and some of his famous "scat singing" during the concert. There will be the serious Armstrong playing singing such haunting tunes as "Black and Blue"; there will be the joking, laughing Armstrong as he plays the role of the entertainer, singing and just horsing around; and there will be the true New Orleans Armstrong, playing such old jazz favorites as "Tiger Rag," "When the Saints Go Marching In" and "Muskrat Ramble."

Armstrong will certainly be the feature attraction during this soiree of jazz, but his All-Stars that back him up are not to be underrated. The All-Stars are probably the finest aggregation that old Satchmo has played with since his stints with King Oliver, 30 years ago in Chicago.

On the clarinet, Armstrong features Barney Bigard, who is steeped in the New Orleans tradition, and who has played with King Oliver and Duke Ellington. He has been with Armstrong since the late 40s. Trummy Young, famed for his powerful "gut bucket" technique, is the trombonist. Formerly Young played with Coleman Hawkins and the Benny Goodman band. The pianist is Billy Kyle, a fine jazz musician, who has even played on the legitimate stage in the Broadway musical show, "Guys and Dolls."

Arvell Shaw is the bass player who has studied classical work in Europe and is perhaps the most musically talented of the group, outside of Armstrong. On the drums is an up-and-coming young drummer named Barret Deems. His playing with the All-Stars marks his first jump into bigtime jazz.

Yaas, Lawd: Plays For Polio Fund

Louis Armstrong and trumpet, both above, will play tonight from 8 to 10 o'clock in Memorial Hall. Sponsored by Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity, the jazzman's appearance is being staged for the 1955 polio drive.

Dr. Graham Keynoting UN Conference Today

By ED MYERS

Dr. Frank P. Graham, who will speak here this afternoon as part of a world affairs conference, is a former president of the University of North Carolina and present special mediator for the United Nations.

Dr. Graham will speak at 3:45 p. m. in Carroll Hall on "Role of the United Nations in Building World Peace."

The Fifth Annual Conference on World Affairs arranged by the American Association for the United Nations and the University Extension Division, will begin with the morning session at 10:30. Three discussion groups: International Development and Control of Atomic Energy; "Food, Health and Technical Assistance" and "World Trade," constitute the afternoon program from 2 until 3:30 o'clock, with the finale being Dr. Graham's speech, which is the theme for the entire conference.

Dr. Graham, who has also served in the United States Senate, is known all over the world. At one time, when he was mediating demilitarization of Kashmir, the Russians called him a "secret agent of the United States." At other times Kremlin headquarters has referred to him as "Secret agent of Wall Street" and other similar titles.

The Fayetteville Observer printed an editorial some time ago, pointing to what Dr. Graham did in Indonesia: "Hundreds of thousands of people are living today who quite possibly would be dead were it not for Dr. Graham's quiet, human understanding and tact, his deep grasp of global historical trends, his complete abhorrence of power politics."

At today's fifth annual conference many internationally-known leaders will deliver addresses.

... We Have Dug Into ... Surplus ...

Student Party Fills Vacancies; Discusses Band Money Bill Veto

The Student Party in a lengthy session Monday night elected representatives to take over seats made vacant by resignations in Dormitory Men's II, III and IV Districts.

Resigning from their legislative posts, were SP solons Charlie Dean, Dorm Men's II; Bill Ma-ready, Dorm Men's III, and Tom Bennett, Dorm Men's IV.

Elected to replace them were: John Heath in Dorm Men's II; Ray Long in Dorm Men's III, and Harold Downing, in Dorm Men's IV.

In a report given on the procedures of the Student Legislature, David Reid, said the bill recently passed by the solons which would have given $1,100 to the University Band if President Tom Creasy had not vetoed it was "obviously an attempt of the University Party to get in on the tail end of the apending." Reid went on to say that "UP Legislators have accused us (the SP) of a free-spending program. We do not deny that we have dug into the appropriations surplus, but while we have spent a good deal of money, we were only putting to tangible use the money which had been lying idle for high on 10 years without benefiting the student body.

"The bill was very inopportune, but the band is a highly deserving group and I sincerely hope that something can be worked out for their benefit at a later date," the SP floor leader said.

Concerning the economy measures that the student Legislature has taken, such as the placing of The Daily Tar Heel on a five-day week, Reid said "I hope and I'm sure the party hopes that The Daily Tar Heel can soon resume its six-day week, but I do not note the student body holding its breath with anticipation."

Amy Cook, SP Advisory Board chairman, called for action of the party on "several pressing issues." Some of these were the election of a person "to round up the SP legislators before legislative sessions and the publication of a weekly column expressing the party's views in The Daily Tar Heel."

The session was concluded with Don Geiger, party chairman, announcing that "the nominations of party candidates will begin Feb. 23."

Statement Upcoming On Negroes' Intelligence

The Board of Education, meeting in executive session here, has appointed a committee to prepare a statement concerning the board's policy on special intelligence tests given to white and Negro students here.

Last week, School Superintendent C. W. Davis said the tests proved Negro high school students of Chapel Hill are mentally unfit to meet standards for white students.

The tests, given last spring, were said to be state standard.
