Japan Scared Of Being 'Trapped,' Thinks Braibanti

By ED MYERS

"Japan has the idea that she is trapped in the Pacific between the two mighty forces of the United States and Russia. She feels that she will be the battle ground for the next world war and her people will be used as cannon fodder."

This is the opinion of Professor Ralph Braibanti of Duke University who spoke Thursday night at an open meeting of Pi Sigma Alpha political science fraternity.

Braibanti, who served as consultant to the Army after World War II, said Japan may hold the key to Asia. When asked about the outward anti-Americanism, particularly obvious during 1952, he replied, "The hatred which Japanese have for Americans is not deep-seated. It is superficial, temporary, and typical of a defeated nation."

"The conduct of General MacArthur can not be discounted," he further asserted that MacArthur was the very apotheosis of a leader, according to the Japanese conception. "They also have not forgotten the fact that America kept them from starving at the beginning of the occupation," he said.

NOT FAST ENOUGH

The Duke professor stressed the point that the U. S. did not act quickly enough in the incident where a crew of Japanese fishermen were burned with radio active ashes. "We finally sent a recompense of one million dollars to the families of the fishermen, but too late. The fact that one of their people was killed and others injured was deeply imprinted in the minds of the Japanese people. By the time we got around to paying the families of these men it was too late to change public opinion or to make an emotional impact."

ON RED CHINA

Elaborating on Red China, Braibanti said "The central problem which we do not know the answer to is: To what extent will China be able to mold Russian Communism to fit the pattern to Confucian idealism? It is a truism that any body of ideas, when they come in contact with a particular culture, will change. And we can expect that Communism will be molded by China into a different form. However, the degree to which it is molded will be determined by several factors: the unusual race, intense organization, and the doctrinaire nature of the Communist movement."

"In any case, we cannot loosely compare the impact of Communism in China with the impact of the Mongolian invasion at the time of Marco Polo or the Manchu rule in the 19th century. Both Mongols and Manchus were barbaric nomads who had no culture; hence, were easily absorbed by Han people."

"Communism, however, has a well articulated philosophy, an intense religious zeal and much practical experience. It cannot, therefore, be absorbed as easily as the Mongols and the Manchus," he said.

Speaking about the present situation whereby Korea does not permit Japanese fishermen to fish off the coast of Korea, Braibanti said, "The fishermen do what everyone else does when the tyrant, Rhee, gets mad . . . run!"

POLIO GRANT:

Funds Going To Work

By CHAL SCHLEY

For the third year in a row the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis has granted funds for Dr. Edward C. Curnen, head of the Pediatrics Department of the N. C. Memorial Hospital here, to use in fighting polio.

Since January, 1953, Dr. Curnen has been doing research on methods of differentiating between the effects of polio and non-polio viruses. The effects of these two types are often confused because of all the people infected with polio, only a few suffer paralysis.

The effects produced in the milder cases are similar to those produced by viruses which have no relation to polio.

At first, Dr. Curnen and his staff had to work in laboratories which were not laboratories at all. They were unused offices in the medical building. Several months of work were necessary before research could proceed.

By the summer of 1953, labs were set up, and research has been progressing ever since.

Dr. Curnen first came to the hospital in 1952 when it opened. Previously he was an instructor in the Yale Medical School. At the same time, he was a member of a polio research team at Yale, and prior to that, he served at the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research where he studied other virus diseases. He came here specifically to head the Pediatrics Department.

It was Dr. Curnen's own idea to embark on his current line of research, in which viruses from actual patients are studied in an attempt to correlate one type of infection with a corresponding virus. His application to the National Foundation was placed in 1952; and the initial grant was made available in January of 1953.

The initial sum was $21,942. Since then, two more grants of $14,045 and $29,684 have been made for the years 1954 and 1955, respectively.

Special Show Is Announced For 'Romeo'

Andy Gutierrez, manager of the Varsity Theater, has announced that special tickets will go on sale today for a closed show of the J. Arthur Rank production of Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet, to be shown on Feb. 27.

The picture will play at the Varsity through Feb. 29, but four showings will be given on the 27th, for which special tickets will be sold. The tickets for that day will be marked for each of the four showings and may be purchased only up to the capacity of the theater. During these showings spectators will be admitted only at the beginning of each feature, and no popcorn will be sold at any of the showings. Gutierrez said.

Gutierrez said that advance sale of tickets for the four showings is being tried as a "special convenience to persons who want to derive the fullest benefit from it."

Hey, Where's This Place?

New student this semester got into a literal whirl about fraternity rushing.

Fellow, who lives in Lewis Dorm, got his rush notices like everybody else.

But, unlike most first-semester students, he didn't quite understand fraternity lingo.

He went all over the campus looking for "Rushing Hall."

ROUNDUP:

Legislators Disagree As To What Dorm Council Is

By NEIL BASS

By far the most controversial issue that was brought before the student Legislators at its Thursday night convening was the dorm improvements resolution that Larry McElroy (SP) introduced. The body refused to give the measure their stamp of approval—instead they, after a lengthy exchange of pros and cons, shoved the matter into the hands of the Interdormitory Council.

Perhaps the fate of the resolution, which only requested that the Student Welfare Board "negotiate" with the administration toward the correcting of certain "deplorable" conditions in Battle-Vance-Pettigrew Dormitory, would have been decided on a bit more speedily had not some of the body been confused as to just what the IDC was anyway.

Beverly Webb (UP) started the string of comments about the IDC by saying that the referring of the matter to the dorm group was "taking away" powers from the Legislature. This brought Bob Young (SP) to his feet with the opinion that the IDC was a committee of the Legislature.

Anyway, the resolution was passed on to the council. David Reid (SP) was asked his opinion on where the IDC's place was after the session, and he concluded that the body was a "subsidiary" of the Legislature.

One of the proposals slated to be voted on at the meeting was referred, upon recommendation by its SP sponsor, to the Ways and Means Committee for further "de-liberation." It calls for the prohibiting of any student from serving in any two branches of the JNC student government.

The two parties are beginning to horten sessions now, probably due to the start of nominations. The SP and the UP begin Monday night.

Patsy Daniels Chosen Elections Board Chief

Miss Patsy Daniels, senior from Raleigh, has been approved by the student Legislature as new chairman of the Elections Board, according to President Tom Creasy.

She succeeds Graham Rights, who resigned to assume new duties as chairman of Campus Chest drive.

"I'll do the best possible job as chairman and will try to see that everything will be fair in the coming spring election," said Miss Daniels.

"And," she added, "I'm sure that I'll have the cooperation of both parties." Miss Daniels also urged all students to exercise their right, as citizens of the campus community, to vote in the spring elections.

President Creasy said of Miss Daniels, "I think Patsy has done an excellent job in the past year as a member of the board, and I'm very happy she could accept the job as chairman."

"I'm sure that under Patsy's leadership the spring election will be carried out as successfully as the fall election this year," he said.

Other members of the Elections Board are Allan Hildreth, Claude Pope, Bill McLean, Doug Cantrell, Bennett Myers, Harriet Parrish and Barbara McRee. More members will be appointed to fill resignation vacancies in the near future, Creasy said.

SOCIETY HAPPENINGS ON THE HILL:

Parties Are In The Making, But It's Still An 'Off' Weekend

By SUSAN ANDES

A lull in activities? Never, for such a thing just doesn't exist at Carolina. Despite the tremendously fabulous time everyone had during Germans, the resting up afterwards is of week-long duration only. For some fraternities this is an "off" weekend, so ATO man

GLENN LYNCH and Beta junior CHARLIE FROELICH told me. Then again for others parties are already in the making.

Last night in an array of flowing gowns and handsome boys attired in tux, the Phi Kap pledges and their dates were presented at their pledge dance held in the ballroom of the Washington Duke Hotel, Durham. (See picture, page 4.) Tonight they will again journey back to Durham, this time to Smith Lake for dinner and a party following. Sunday the old and new members and their dates will be honored at lunch at the house.

Newly elected officers of Phi Kap are ALLEN FRUCCI, Albany, Ga., president; CHARLES SILLEY, Littleton, vice president; JOE CORRELL, Winston-Salem, treasurer; FRED BLAKE, Hillsboro, recording secretary; BERT DAVIS, Roxboro, corresponding secretary; MYRON CONKLIN, Durham, house manager; FRANK HARRIS, Lincolnton, social chairman; and JIM SYKES, Jenkintown, Pa., pledge master. DICK BOYLE, Lincolnton, and OWEN KNOPP, Milwaukee, Wis., are sergeants-at-arms. (See SOCIETY, page 4.)

Fellowship's Representative To Talk Here

Miss Judy Livingston, a graduate student at the University of Michigan, will be on the campus tomorrow and Monday as representative of the Lisle Fellowship to talk with students about participating in summer service projects.

Interviews will be held on Monday at the YMCA for all interested students.

Each summer the Lisle Fellowship brings together international groups of about 40 young adults for a six-week program which is designed to create "opportunity for personal growth and to give training for the human relationships of family, profession, business, social life and responsible citizenship."

The groups for this summer will meet in the San Francisco Bay area; Washington, D. C.; Colorado Rockies; Copenhagen, Denmark; the Rhine Valley of Germany and possibly in India, Japan or the Near East.
