3rd Week: Show Boat's Rolling

SHOW BOAT CHORUS
... after blocking in, drill, drill, drill

By CHAL SCHLEY

Show Boat is now rolling into its third week and is taking shape nicely.

All 60 of the acting, singing and dancing cast now know in general what their motions on stage should be. This is a result of last week's tedious "blocking-in" process.

As of Monday night, the chorus went back to Hill Hall to polish up its numbers, the dancers went to the Playmaker Theater to drill some more and the principals went over and over their lines and actions in Memorial Hall.

The same schedule was followed Tuesday night, but this evening will see the ensemble in action again.

By early next week, dress rehearsals should be under way.

ON AND OFF THE STAGE
Acting in a large-scale production of this sort is a very time-consuming and effort-demanding occupation. In an attempt to find out why anyone would want to work so hard at it, five of the principal actors and actresses were interviewed.

RAVENAL

John Shearin, who plays the part of Ravenal, has been active in the theatre for ten years and has performed professionally in opera, comedy, opera and drama for four years. He is at present in Chapel Hill to further his studies under voice trainer Walter Golde of New York fame.

Shearin is acting in Show Boat primarily because he likes the part of Ravenal. The way the part is written allows for individual interpretation on the part of the actor. Ravenal, a river gambler, is "a man who is gay on the surface and who lives by his wits and nerve." Beneath the surface, though, he is a man who wants to find a home, and who looks to Magnolia for a settling influence, according to Shearin.

MAGNOLIA

Magnolia will be portrayed by Mrs. Martha Fouse, who recently sang the part of Cherubine in the Music Department's production of Figaro. Mrs. Fouse has been described by several of her fellow actors as a "stage natural."

This will be Mrs. Fouse's first "real acting role," and she is very excited about it. In fact, the excitement, the glamour and the feeling of satisfaction which comes from acting are the reasons behind her doing so.

According to Mrs. Fouse, Magnolia is written as a sweet, unassuming and very young girl who puts up with a lot at the start of the play. However, after the 20-year time-lapse which the play is supposed to cover, Magnolia matures considerably and her "strong under-lying character" is brought out.

Mrs. Fouse and Shearin, aliases Magnolia and Ravenal, play the romantic leads of the show.

Editors note: Interviewer Schley talked to other Show Boat performers, but time and space cut him short. The next in this series will be concerned with the technical side of production.

AFROTC Places Second

A team of cadets from the AFROTC here placed second in the first leg of the North Carolina ROTC Invitational Rifle Tournament held last weekend in Greensboro.

Six teams participated in the tournament with the Army ROTC team from State College in Raleigh placing first.

The second leg of the tournament will be held on March 5 at the Greensboro Rifle and Pistol Club.

Robert Massie is the cadet captain of the AFROTC Rifle Team, and the other members are Larry Addington, Charles Fentner Jr., Shelby Beck and Fred Boese. The team manager is M/Sgt. Marion Hudson, USAF.

Gene Littler Is Named Pro Athlete Of Year

NEW YORK, Feb. 21 (AP)—Gene Littler, the young golfer who has been going great since he turned pro, today was named winner of the January award in the Hickok Pro Athlete of the Year poll for his victory in the Los Angeles Open.

AKPsis Visit Salem

Thirty-two members of Alpha Kappa Psi, national professional fraternity in business administration, recently visited Winston-Salem where they were guests for the day of the Wachovia Bank and Trust Company.

The day's events included visits to the transit department and the trust and trust investment department. The various operations were explained to the students by the heads of each department. The students also saw the time payment and tabulating departments of the bank.

Upon completion of the tour, they met with a vice-president of the bank for a question and answer session.

-Survey-

Both men and women responded well to questionnaire sections on helpful college courses and the value of their college education, Galloway said.

The men mentioned English and accounting most frequently as "the course which has been most helpful," listing the same two, along with public speaking as "the course I wish I had taken."

Social sciences, English and other humanities headed the lists for the women graduates both in helpfulness and regret in missing them.

Director Galloway reported the girls "value their college education primarily for intellectual development, then for vocational training, social interests and personal development." Mose men listed vocational preparation first, but mentioned the intellectual, personality and social development as helpful secondary values.
