State Publications' Advisory Measure Is Probably Dead

By CHUCK HAUSER

RALEIGH, Feb. 23—The rumored bill to require faculty supervision of student publications at all state-supported schools will probably never reach the floor of the General Assembly.

The gentleman who considered introducing such a measure—he is a state senator from a northern county—has decided that such a step is unnecessary.

This legislator is among those people in the state who reacted rather unhappily to the publication of a drawing of a nude male in the fall issue of Coradri, the Woman's College student magazine.

The drawing was innocuous enough—its anatomical details were handled in simple, stylized outline—but a number of people apparently felt it was misplaced in the pages of an undergraduate publication at a state school for girls. WC Chancellor expressed the opinion that such uninhibited art belonged in a gallery rather than in Coradri.

The senator, who asked that his name not be revealed, does not believe in the principle of faculty supervision of student publications "unless it becomes necessary."

"You don't want to have somebody censor the magazine, of course, if you can help it," he said. "But this thing just got out of hand."

Why did the senator decide not to introduce the bill which he had been considering?

"The Legislature doesn't have to pass a bill, does it? Doesn't the Board of Trustees have the power to make that rule? Can't the college administrations make a rule like that themselves? I just don't believe it's necessary for the General Assembly to pass it."

The senator didn't think the nude male drawing in Coradri was nearly as objectionable as a story in the same issue of the magazine.

"Did you read that story?" he asked. "It's stuff like that that leads to things like the murder of that Guilford College girl up in New York. That story's the sort of thing you might find on sale at some of these sex houses."

Reid's Speech

Dr. Ira Reid, professor and chairman of the department of sociology at Haverford College, Haverford, Pa., will speak tonight on "Implementing the Supreme Court Decision," at a dinner meeting at the Episcopal Parish House.

Budget Cuts Will Hurt Hospital, Asserts Gray

The UNC Division of Health Affairs, through N. C. Memorial Hospital, is the instrument for the realization of a great dream of the people—making North Carolina a state of good health, President Gordon Gray asserted Tuesday in a speech here.

He addressed the midwinter meeting of the Memorial Hospital Auxiliary and their guests, the Sir Walter Cabinet, composed of wives of legislators and other state officials.

"North Carolina shows its heart to its citizens here as nowhere else," the President said, adding that such decisions as hospital visiting policies are based on the belief that the hospital belongs to the people of the state.

'BIG BUSINESS'

President Gray said that "hospitals are big business, ranked the fifth largest major industry in the nation by some surveys."

He repeated the statement he made before the Legislature's Joint Appropriations Committee Feb. 2 that Memorial Hospital cannot continue to operate on its "original" proper but humane philosophy of caring for charity as well as paying patients if proposed budget cuts go into effect.

REFUSED ELSEWHERE

Reporting that a six-month study has revealed the hospital's cost per patient day as $27.21 while the average income per patient day is $14.88, President Gray cited a number of cases of needy patients, unable to pay, many of whom had been refused admission at other hospitals in the state.

President Gray said this is a fulfillment of the need expressed by the late Gov. J. Melville Broughton when he asserted that no person should lack adequate hospital care or treatment in this state.

'EXPENSIVE OPERATION'

A main factor in high operative costs, President Gray said, is that patients are referred here from all parts of the state. "This means an unusually sick group of patients, who require more care, medicine and other attention than in the average community hospital. This makes for an expensive operation."

President Gray presented statistical reports on the various schools within the Division of Health Affairs, which are carrying out the objective set up by the N. C. Hospital and Medical Care Commission to "provide professional and technical education in all health fields for service to all North Carolina."

BETTER PHARMACISTS
"One of the greatest opportunities lies in providing more ample physical facilities for pharmacy training," he said, noting that the State ranks next to bottom among the 48 in number of pharmacists per population.

President Gray reported that such hospital facilities as the Psychiatric Center and Gravelly Sanatorium for tuberculosis patients operate at almost full capacity. Of the 27,000 patients cared for to date in the entire hospital, he said, 97.1 per cent have lived to return home.

"Memorial Hospital's service to the races has been in line with population percentages in this state," he added. "Negro patients composed 25 per cent of all those served, while the Negroes total 25.78 per cent of the state's population."

President Gray was introduced by Mrs. W. Reece Berryhill, wife of the Dean of the UNC Medical School, and Auxiliary public relations chairman. His talk followed a series of reports on volunteer services in the hospital given at the business session, at which Mrs. Bruce Strowd, Auxiliary president, presided.

Following his address the Cabinet members were honored at a coffee hour and conducted on a tour of the Hospital facilities. They also convened for a brief session called by the president, Mrs. W. B. Rodman of Washington.

Village Election Bill Up Tonight

By NEIL BASS

The meeting hour of the student Legislature, moved up to 8 o'clock so that solons may listen to General Ridgway, will tick by this week without activity from the University Party. Of course the UP will debate and argue the Student Party introduced bills, but as for themselves, they say they have no legislation to offer.

According to Jack Stevens, UP floorleader, a definite emphasis will be placed on that word "argue" when a bill concerning the elections in Victory Village appears on the sessions' agenda.

The bill calls for elections in Victory Village to be carried on in conjunction with regular University elections. That is to say, the Student Elections Board will handle responsibility for carrying out the Village elections.

The Ways and Means Committee of the Legislature voted the bill out favorably by a margin of 4-3. This meant that four SPs liked it and three UPs didn't. Apparently the Village Board of Directors wants such action, but the UP says "no."

Another bill to hit the docket during the meeting, which rather promises to stir up argument between factions, is a bill to create a bi-partisan board to name candidates for the editorship of the Yackety Yack.

On this matter, according to proceedings of the Ways and Means Committee, the UP has completely reversed its stand of several weeks back. Then they wanted such a board to name the editorial candidates for The Daily Tar Heel and the Yack. Now, as the negative vote of all three UP members of the Ways and Means Committee shows, they don't want a board to choose the Yack editor.

A changing of the General Elections Law may also be enacted at the session. The change is that now a candidate for student government office must have a "C" average for his entire period of residence. Formerly the time period was set as the semester directly preceding the one in which a candidate sought office.

Friends Chief To Visit Here This Afternoon

Dr. Mojmir Povolny, Director of the International Student Programs for the American Friends Service Committee, will be on campus today and desires to talk with as many international students as possible, said Friends representatives.

He will be in the Social Room of Connor Dorm from 5 to 5:45 this afternoon.

Dr. Povolny was born in Czechoslovakia, receiving his law degree from the university there. Since coming to the United States he has received his Ph.D. degree in International Relations from the University of Chicago. He has also studied in the University of Paris for one year. His office with the AFSC is in Philadelphia, Pa.

Under Dr. Povolny's direction are the International Seminars, sponsored by the AFSC. These Seminars bring together each summer 20 to 30 students of diverse national, religious and racial backgrounds to live in a small scale world community.

GMAB Film

"Blood of a Poet," the third of this semester's GMAB Film Series, will be shown at 8 o'clock tonight in Carroll Hall.

Jean Cocteau, who directed "The Storm Within," shown last semester, wrote, directed and narrated "Blood of a Poet."

This is the first movie that the famous French moviemaker made.

GEN. MATTHEW RIDGWAY
Hill Hall, tonight, 8

Ridgway Address Is Slated At 8 Tonight

Matthew B. Ridgway, Army Chief of Staff, will speak in Hill Hall tonight at 8 p.m. General Ridgway will speak on the general topic of foreign relations. He will be introduced by Tom Creasy, president of the student body.

General Ridgway's appearance is being sponsored by the Carolina Forum. Joel Fleishman, senior from Fayetteville, is chairman of the Forum.

Ridgway will arrive at the Raleigh-Durham airport this afternoon at 3:30, and will be honored at a tea at the home of Gordon Gray at 5 p.m. The general will be the guest of honor at a banquet at the Carolina Inn at 6:30.

Ridgway will also be the guest of honor at a public reception at Graham Memorial following address.

Dorm Votes Down Idea Of Brigadoons Dance

Old West Dormitory Tuesday night voted unanimously against approving the revised bylaws of the Brigadoons.

The bylaws in their original form were thumbed down by the dorms, so they were changed by the Interdormitory Council, sponsors of the Brigadoons dance-per semester idea, and are now being voted on by individual men's residences again.

Manning Muntzing, council president, and a committee working on the proposal altered the bylaws after their first failure to "correct" amendments that "certain of the dorms objected to." After the revision, the contro-versal bylaws were submitted to the IDC for approval before being passed on to the individual men's dorms for the final vote.)

Brigadoons is being "cramped down the student's throats," was the reaction that Raymond Taylor, president of Old West gave to the counselors at last week's IDC session. He was supported by two of his colleagues, including Frank Watkins, president of Old East.

Next the proposal goes to the dorms for approval again. Taylor said Tuesday that we're so disgusted that we don't want to have anything else to do with it.

FROM HUXLEY TO HERMAN TO SOUND & FURY:

GMAB Has A Job, But Most Students Don't Know It

By Jackie Goodman

The Graham Memorial Film Series, free bridge and dance lessons, the appearances of such people on campus as Aldous Huxley, concerts by Woody Herman, Rise Stevens, the First Piano Quartette—all of these events are presented to students here by the Graham Memorial Activities Board, and yet it would probably be safe to say that many of the students who enjoy entertainments and opportunities such as these have only a vague notion of the organization and work of the Board.

"The Graham Memorial Activities Board attempts to utilize the facilities of the student union to the fullest possible extent," says President Forester. "Our primary function is to provide as complete a program as possible consisting of educational, cultural and entertaining events. This program is designed to offer events to some of the students all of the time."

GMAB is composed of its officers and nine committees. The present officers are Gordon Forester, president; David Reid, vice-president; Miss Sue Fink, secretary; and Wayne G. Brown, treasurer. Jim Wallace, director of Graham Memorial, is the Board's advisor.

These officers and the chairmen of the nine committees comprise the executive committee of GMAB. That committee decides on all plans the Board sponsors.

The nine committees under the Board and their chairmen are the Dance and Music Committee, headed by Miss Carol Webster; the Recreation Committee, headed by Miss Harriet Parish and Layton McCurdy; the Reception Committee, headed by Misses Margaret Nieter and Jackie Steed; the Film

Committee headed by Jack Markham; the Office Committee, headed by Miss Sue Fink;

The Calendar Committee, headed by Miss Coe Brassell; the Faculty and Forum Committee, headed by Miss Barbara Jolden and Vic Sydnor; the Publicity Committee, headed by Miss Marsha Poague, and the Polls Committee, headed by Miss Annette Levenson.

At the beginning of the year each committee sets up tentative plans for its program. Each committee chairman is in complete charge of his program and his money allotment.

The jurisdiction of the Dance and Music Committee covers such things as the combo dances held in the Rendezvous Room, the Halloween barn party held last semester and any special occasion dances. The biggest project of the Dance Committee so far this year was the forming of Sound and Fury, the amateur stock company composed entirely of students. The company put on its first show, written, directed, produced and acted by students, last December. That initial presentation of the company was such a success that a second production is tentatively for April 28 and 29.

The Dance Committee also carried out the Activities Board's plans for the dance instructions which were given last semester and which are being continued this semester. The Petites Musicales Series is another project of which the Dance Committee has charge.

The Recreation Committee of GMAB sponsors such activities as the free bridge lessons, the movies which are shown during football season of all Carolina games which are not played here. This Committee is the sponsor of the National Intercollegiate Bridge Tournament which is to be held here soon. Some of the events which the Committee is planning for the future include an exhibition of billiards and instructions in billiards plus a Field Day event to be held in conjunction with the physical education department. The Field Day will be for all men's and women's dorms and sororities and fraternities.

Film Committee

The Film Committee sponsors the series of foreign and outstanding American films which is presented to the students each semester. The entire film program is offered at cost. Earl Stevens, part time instructor in English here, acts as advisor to the Committee in the selection of films.

Last semester the film series included the French film "Diary of a Country Priest," "Camille," "Destry Rides, Again" and "The Storm Within." The program for the spring term includes "Blood of the Poet," "Eternal Mask" and "It Happened One Night."

The Reception Committee is composed of a group of women students who handle all receptions which are held in Graham Memorial. These girls plan, buy and decorate for and serve at the receptions which are given after the talks of Carolina Forum speakers and the speeches of any other dignitaries who visit the campus. The Faculty and Forum Committee has for its primary function the promotion of better relations between students and faculty members. The Committee from time to time sponsors functions to which the faculty members and the majors of a certain department are invited. It also sponsors informal forums featuring outstanding professors and businessmen. The appearance of Aldous Huxley on campus last semester was planned by the Faculty and Forum Committee.

One of the events planned for the future by the Committee is the appearance of a Washington correspondent on campus. Following the informal forum which will be held, a reception will be held for the correspondent to which majors in political science and journalism will be invited.

Office Committee

The Office Committee of GMAB is composed of 10 women students who keep the Activities Board office open and provide clerical assistance. They have charge of all committee notices and correspondence which concern the Board. The members of the Office Committee are Miss Sue Fink, chairman, Misses Louise Grey, Barbara McRee, Ann Wrenn, Marietta Everette.

Lee Strickland, Jackie O'Brien, Peggy Funk, Ellen Wood and Lucia Johnson.

The campus calendars which are distributed in all dorms and fraternity and sorority houses twice during the school year are the work of GMAB's Calendar Committee. These calendars list all events, academic, athletic and social, which take place here during each semester. The work on the calendar for the fall semester of 1955 will begin as early as April.

Posters, handbills, radio, television, bumper stickers and loud speakers in Y-Court are the means by which the Publicity Committee of GMAB publicizes all events sponsored by the Board. The Committee has done "really a tremendous job" this year, according to President Forester. In order to carry out its job of publicity, the Committee has a special shop
