DETAIL FROM CAROLINA QUARTERLY COVER

The Quarterly

Is Worth Your

Forty-Five Cents

Ed Yoder

at the other end of the G.M. hall have sent us down page proofs from the new Carolina Quarterly, which Editor J. A. C. Dunn and his staff will Here's a brief run-down of what to expect when

The lead article, "The Little Theater In America," by Archie Hess presents more difficulties than any of the Quarterly's winter offerings. The writer can't help but feel that it doesn't mach up to Quarterly standards which have been set by a tradition of good articles in the past. Mr. Hess writes with a couple of ideas in mind: (1) You can't buck the tastes of Broadway with the grassroots theatre; and (2) the college and university campuses are he proper locales for little thea-

It was disappointing to find that Mr. Hess excludes from his article any mention of the Carolina Playmakers or of the symphonic dramas which have grown out of Chapel Hill. This is not to be so provincial as to suggest that the Carolina Quarterly should slant all of its articles toward Chapel Hill;

but in view of the fact that Chapel Hill is seldom mentioned in the new Quarterly-and that any article about the theater could do well to mention the Chapel Hill contribution-Mr. Hess's article would have been improved by consideration of lo-

Aside from that fault, the article lacks arrangement; generalizes too much without giving proper evidence for the same generalities; and includes long paragraphs of obvious statements that could

Finally, "The Little Theater In America" is the Poetry in the winter Quarterly, except for "A Little Conservative"-an anonymous composition

-is not easily read; but, while requiring some concentration, it pays the patient reader well after several concentrated examinations. If the reviewer could attempt to characterize the poetry in one easy word, he would call it "dionysiac"-for what-

"Libation to The Lesser Gods," and "How Loyal

Is My Fear" could have come to life on paper after some Germans week-ends. Overall, Mr. Rivera, who must have succumbed to the "X-Claw-hammers" attack of last year, has again given us sole article of the issue. Where are the articles easily have been stricken from it.

of yesteryear?

POETRY PAYS OFF

ever that's worth.

some good poetry.

distribute beginning today.

you buy your copy

NOT UP TO SNUFF

Our more liter'ry colleagues from the mezzanine

The General's FoWarning

General Matthew Ridgway comes to the cuplampus today with his warning to the nation shoutill echoing around the Washington corrigratiors: It is dangerous and foolhardy to reduce enhour armed forces at this time.

General Ridgway is caught in that beardaided controversy between those who would have funus rely chiefly on air and atomic power and recithose who insist on the importance of the solthe dier, even in the atomic age. The General Some shall be pardon'd and some ies took a tight grip on his witness chair the set other day and disagreed strongly with his ple boss, the President. A strong, ready American Army, he said is necessary to the peace ne of the world.

co One cruelly hard fact would seem to be enough to justify that disagreement. In the of midst of indecision and uncertainty, Ameribe can power in the Pacific is weaker than it was at before the Korean agression, incidentally, til where atomic power would have been vir-TE tually useless.

Add to that the terrifying imbalance between Western armies and Soviet armies in b Europe and comparative Russian-American I armed strength (which by 1960, at the present rate, will be about 2-1 in favor of the USSR) and General Ridgway's warning would seem to be more than the crying of a prophet of doon. We fail to see, in fact, how his warming can be ignored by Congress when the memory of Korea is still so clear.

But Rep. Martin said just last week that we could beat Communist China in 30 days if anything does happen over there; and that surely proves that the generals of Capitel Hill are capable of almost anything.

The Imaginative Grasp

Nathan M. Pusey, president of Harvard, is disturbed at the decline of the Humanities in American universities. In 25 years, the number of students in Harvard has risen by more than a thousand. But Humanities students have dropped 300 in number.

That statistic is repeated, more or less, at most universities, this one included. And why is that bad? Let President Pusey answer:

A college in which the studies traditionally called the Humanities are weak runs the risk of being less liberal than it should: for our full humanity is best quickened and developed through imaginative grasp of the subtler experiences of individuals as revealed through arts

The chief aim of undergraduate education is to discover what it means to be a man. A college or university will be strong, therefore, only where those studies flourish whose principal value is to arouse such awareness and where they are taught with charm and vigor. and win respect.

In All Its Violence

No sooner had we finished complimenting North Carolina vesterday for her temperance and calm in the face of the difficult segregation issue than we received, from a University graduate, the shrill epistle printed above,

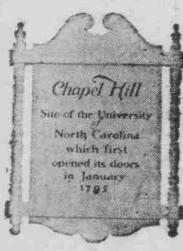

The KKK overtones in correspondent Grimes' letter will certainly not be subscribed to by most North Carolinians, even by those who are convinced that the end of segregation will be a bad thing for the state.

We have printed the letter in all its vio- a little happier, yet-after it is lence, not as a representative of expression of the case against integration, but as evidence that all hate, all bigotry has not yet been purged from North Carolina's soul. Not yet, and perhaps it will never be.

But there is ample evidence that the great tide of opinion in our state prevails against the islands of venom that still exist. For that, is reflected in the movie. we can be proud-and hopeful.

The Daily Tar Deel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Sunday, Monday and examinaiods and summer terms. Entered 48 second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editor	CHARLES KURALT
Managing Editor	FRED POWLEDGE
Associate Editors LOU	IS KRAAR, ED YODER
Business Manager	TOM SHORES
Sports Editor	BERNIE WEISS
News Editor	Jackie Goodman
Circulation Manager Subscription Manager Assistant Business Manager Society Editor	Jack Godley Bill Bob Peel
Night aditor for this icens	Eddie Crutchfiel

Carolina Front ____

Star-Crossed Lovers In Technicolor

Louis Kraar

"GO HENCE, to have more talk of these sad things; punished;

For never was a story of more Than this of Juliet and Romeo." The closing lines of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" ended J. Arthur Rank's movie of the same name with appropriate advice for all viewers at a special preview howing. Since watch-ling the beautifully-filmed production Tuesday night, I have gone hence and talked of the tale of the "star-crossed lovers" in Verona. It's a movie worth talking about, worth seeing.

WITHOUT GOING into the plot (an old, but beautiful one), this reporter can say that Susan Shentall as Juliet seemed to portray many of the childish sides of Shakespeare's Juliet.

Romeo (Laurence Harvey) played the balcony scenes convincingly, omitting the sophomoric, love-sick air that so many Romeos have in a production

And Verona in the summerah, Verona-the color of 'f'air Verona" is the most noteworthy thing in the film. Filmed in Italy, and with the costumes and other accoutrements of the High Renaissance, the movie imparts an atmosphere of life - even when it strays from details set down by Shakespeare.

All the scenes, traditionally played on the stage with a minimum of scenery, were filmed at the places where they could have actually taken place.

THIS IS a movie that the English grad students will not all be happy with. In short, it isn't a scene for scene adaptation of Shakespeare's play. However, this doesn't keep it from being a fine movie.

Miss Shentall (Juliet) while not looking entirely like the 14-year-old she is playing, isat 20-a young enough actress to be convincing as Juliet. She falls for Romeo in a giddy 14year-old manner which is both beautiful and 14-year-oldish.

As the final stages of the tragedy fall at the end of the movie, one almost wishes it could end over-you realize that it couldn't have ended any other way. But this is a quality in both the play and the movie.

that while the movie errs from roll Hall. the strictly Shakespearean course, most of the essence of the play

NOW IF YOU don't like Shakespeare, perhaps the flashy sword fighting between the feuding houses of Montague and Capulet will eatch your fancy.

When Juliet is thought dead tion and vacation per- by her parents, but isn't, there is a solemn scene showing her semester, four are relatively 22. burial. Just when the viewer is about to cry, a quick shift of scene to Romeo on horseback galloping towards Verona is made. Romeo, as you remember, didn't know his love wasn't actually dead, but the thundering hoof beats after the music of the funeral ceremony shook me a little.

> The music, particularly in the monastery sequences (filmed on the Venetian cloister of San Francesco del Deserto), is quite beautiful.

"Romeo and Juliet" opens for a three-day run at the Varsity Theatre this Sunday. The undergraduate flick-goers will see it and like it. The Shakespeare scholars will see it, be awed with its beauty, then retire to their studies to pick its accuracy apart. But none will dbat its bauty, its atmosphere. Night editor for this issue ____ Eddie Crutchfield It's just that kind of movie.

You WILL Cease! That Is A Fact'

versity, now lives in Smithfield. University with suspicion.

a "Letter Writer" by the Chapel tious about letting people know Hill apostles of international so- where I received my education, related to you, your nigger-lov- a Red. For, you see, those who the State of North Carolina.

against their leading education- body or the faculty.

At the risk of being tagged as tually have had to become causity have no way of knowing al institution. Because of your They do not know that it is cialism, I will tell you a few facts for fear of being looked on as too long. You are getting cocky and now even dare to write ing friends, the University and have not attended the Univer- cheap editorials berating such state leaders as John W. Clark. You, Kraar, Levin, Fleishman that the tripe which spouts forth Mr. Clark, an intelligent, aggresand company are rapidly becom- from such sources as The Dai- sive businessman, pays the taxes ing a ball and chain around the ly Tar Heel, the Phi, the Di, the which send kids like you to University neck. You, with your Carolina Forum, etc. is in no school. It is he who does, and nigger-loving socialism, are way related to the collective by all rights should, control the turning the people of this state opinion of either the student University and should remove

'It's The B-B-B-Bold N-New P-Program'

ter, a 1954 graduate of the Uni- ing them to regard the entire gained access to the University islature asking for the money voice only because the down-to- needed to make this institution I graduated last year and ac- earth student will have nothing one of the nation's greatest, you to do with your stupid, petty

> You have gotten away with t you from it.

At a time when the Univerare spouting forth your incessant stream of liberalism.

You are getting much too loud. The people of the state do not like it and they are the University's pocketbook. You WILL cease! That is a fact. Those who put the future of the University ahead of the propagation of socialism and the destruction of the Germanic races in the South are going to cut you off. John Clark is the voice of this group.

You had better listen to Clark. because if he takes too long to eradicate your school of thought. you may go the unfortunate way of all niggers and Reds who have stepped out of line in the South. Go north, young

William C. Grimes

More Credit

Editor:

I am a student in the B.A. School.

As I have spent many hours in accounting, I would like to voice my opinion concerning the credit given for B.A. 71 and 72. two accounting courses required of every student in B.A. school.

A student gets three semesterhours credit for spending four hours in class each week and must take an hour exam on his own time every other week.

This requires a total of 65 hours actually spent in class each semester. This is, for the three semester hours credit given, far more than the 44 hours spent in any other 3-hour course. It is also more than the 58 hours spent in some of the courses for which a student gets four semester-hours credit.

In view of these facts, it appears to me that something should and must be done to equalize credit given in the different schools of the University.

I suggest that students be given more than three semesterhours credit for courses in which they spend considerably more than the number of hours required of a three-hour course.

Name Withheld By Request

Hooray!

Editor:

Re the music-listening facilities at Hill Hall: Hooray for you! It is impossible to hear anything on those tape machines. I am one who has given up in disgust many times.

Comedy bursts into the pages of the Quarterly with a loud hoop-and-holler with W. David Ashburn's "The Salesman Ruptured By A Streetcar." In this sophosticated one-act play, Mr. Ashburn, who took MA here last year and now teaches at Union College, has some fun at the expense of drama critics-played in the piece by three criticimages, Stink, Stank and Stunk. The whole thing is full of Freud, futility, soul-selling, the "isma" (mainly material-and nihil-) and it is guaranteel to give you some good laughs.

AN OLD TALE WITH A NEW TWIST

Perhaps the most polished piece of work in the new Quarterly is "Suttee," a story by Robin

White. The story, set in India, where White was born, brings together the conflict of Western technology with an ageold Oriental religion and with resurgent nationalism and a boywho - cried - wolf tale with a new twist; it is a serious and moving story, and worthy of anthologizing David Elliott's "Journey Before Dawn," is good, whimsical, and very readable. Ever wanted to cua anybody's throat? If you have any plans along

Quarterly Illustration

that line read "Tell You Me," a story by Carl Cook in "The Best Freshman Writing Of the Fall Semester"; the psychology of throat-cutting gets full exposure here. Mr. Cook's sory was selected along with James A. Oldham's duck-hunting vignette, "Opening Day," for inclusion in this new and valuable feature of the Quarterly. A recognition of the younger writers on campus is long overdue; and "The Best Freshman Writing of The Fall Semester" is perhaps the most serviceable part of the new magazine. Review Editor Jim Graves's book review section is highly competent again this time. One thing, though: Mr. H. A. Sieber's "In This The Marian Year" didn't excite me nearly as much as it seems to have excited Mr. Rivera, who reviews it.

If you don't happen to be a Quarterly subscriber, forego the next C-Movie downtown, pay a slim 45 cents, and treat yourself to one of the best hour's reading to be had. You'll be glad you did.

Cocteau, Gable, & Mae West

GM Brings Great Films To Campus

By Ebba Freund

"Blood Of A Poet," the third in the Graham Memorial Activities Board's Film Series, will

It is another in the laudable . series which brings the world's great films to the campusfilms which students would not likely see unless they took a trip to New York.

That is the purpose of the Film Series. Jack Markham, Series chairman, says that the film committee selects motion pic- 10. tures that do not make the rounds of the commercial theatres but are still good movies. Of the eight films shown this new foreign films.

standing example of the work of the film committee. "Blood Of A Poet" is written, directed and narrated by Jean Cocteau; regard the movies as an art me-realism with the art of the film. periences.

Cocteau, who has done such movies as "The Storm Within" and "Orpheus" calls "Blood Of I think it can be safely said be shown tonight at 8 in Car- A Poet" "a realistic document composed of unreal happenings."

Lineup

Like your art on the screen? Here's a lineup of top motion pictures being brought to the campus by GMAB:

Blood Of A Poet-Tonight, Rocking Horse Winner-Mar.

My Little Chickadee-Mar. 24. Rigoletto-April 14. Eternal Mask-April 28. It Happened One Night-May

Tonight's offering is an out- In the movie he has created a world based on symbols juxtaposed with familiar objects. The film should interest those who

it is an attempt to combine sur- dium-and who like strange ex-

About one-fourth of the film series ticket holders are townspeople, one-half graduate students and one-fourth undergraduates. Why such a small percentage of undergraduattes? Markham says students may too limited appeal.

A BROAD RANGE

But there's a broad range of. interest manifested in the selection. "The Eternal Mask." a story of a young doctor's fight to regain his sanity, should interest those concerned with psychology and medicine.

Opera lovers should find "Rigoletto" rewarding. Virgil Thomson said of this film, "This is what Verdis 'Rigoletto' looks like when performed by the best contemporary artists. Those who like Clark Gable can find him in the role for which he won an Oscar in "It Happened One Night."

film series are older-and in some cases "artier"-than, say, "Underwater!" they should appeal to anyone interested in motion pictures. Except, perhaps, for "Blood Of A Poet," they were mde for average audiences. The only difference is that some think the motion pictures are of of the films were made abroad and 10 to 20 years ago, WHAT HAS JANE GOT?

But then what has Jane Russell got that Mae West hasn't? (Mae West is in "The Little Chickadee," a burlesque on westerns.)

The ticket for the series costs $2 for the remaining six movies -about 35 cents per film. The reason tickets are not sold singly, according to Markham, is that GMAB gets the films for less if they are presented on a membership basis.

Tickets for the remaining films are on sale at the Graham Memorial Information Office.

SCENE FROM 'BLOOD OF A POET' ... a realistic document composed of unreal happenings.