Legislature Passes Bill 'Liberalizing' UNC Honor System

Allows Second Trial On Insufficient Proof

By NEIL BASS

The student Legislature rammed through in hasty action last night a bill called by its introducer, David Reid, a "liberalizer" of the Honor System. Reid introduced the bill on behalf of the Judicial Problems Commission, which recommended it.

The primary change the measure will invoke on the system is that it gives the "accused" the right to retrial before the Honor Council if it is found that "insufficient evidence" was used to convict him.

The bill also provides that the number of "elected" members on the council be reduced from nine to two. The other seven members on the council will be appointed from lower courts because, according to the Judicial Problems Commission, "They should have previous judicial experience."

The only action that aroused any noticeable dissent was a bill calling for the seating of one representative from the nurses' dormitory on the Women's Honor Council. Opposition for this measure came from the University Party floorleader, Jack Stevens.

Stevens contended the measure had "a haze about it" and nobody understood it. He favored referring it to a study commission.

As for the nurses, Stevens said they had enough block vote power now to elect a representative. But, he went on to say, "They lack the initiative to do so."

The big money-spending proposal of the night that was rocketed through was a bill calling for the appropriation of $975 to "expand" student government facilities. The money, according to the bill, will be used to set up an office for a "permanent" student government secretary.

Other measures slammed through with lightning speed were:

A bill to give the student Legislature another representative on the Graham Memorial Board of Directors;

A bill to give the University Dance Committee $150 to print a booklet on Carolina traditions to be sent to nearby women's colleges;

A bill to give the student government attorney general more power; and

A bill to give the Men's Honor Council $25.

David Reid, resigning SP floorleader, perhaps explained the cooperation that the two parties displayed in passing all measures speedily by saying "They had joined hands in a pre-election common effort which is as student government ought to be."

Reid, who complimented both parties and thanked them for "allowing" him to "serve," was given a standing ovation.

Muntzing Wants Study Day At Semester Ends

"From talking to many students in all areas of the campus, I am firmly convinced that there is not only a strong desire, but also a strong need, for a reading day between the last day of classes and the first day of final exams," said Student Party presidential candidate Manning Muntzing in a statement issued yesterday.

Muntzing said a great number of students start taking final exams the day after their classes end.

"I believe that the improved, academic health of the students that a day's break between classes and exams would help bring about certainly justify such a proposal," said Muntzing's statement.

Muntzing said he believes that "even if students used a so-called 'reading day' to sleep," their improved mental state would help. He added that after talking to many students about the reading day he is sure that most of them would use the time to study for exams.

Muntzing noted that Woman's College has a reading day in its schedule now which "... they have worked into their schedule very successfully."

"I should like to see the calendar committee here at the University consider this idea of a reading day in light of taking the reading day from the exam period time," said Muntzing. "This would mean that the actual taking of exams would cover a period of eight days instead of nine and insure a one-day break between classes and the start of exams," he concluded.

THE JUILLIARD QUARTET in Graham Memorial tomorrow

Juilliard Quartet Set For Concert Tomorrow

The Juilliard String Quartet will perform in Graham Memorial tomorrow at 2:30.

Tickets, on sale at Graham Memorial, Sloan Drug Store, and Ledbetter-Pickard, will cost students 50 cents, according to sponsors.

Student Nurse To Reign Over Annual Fete

Miss Jackie Van Hook, a sophomore in the School of Nursing, has been voted to reign as Miss Blue and White over Saturday's football game, according to Wilbur Jones, Monogram Club president.

Miss Van Hook is from Henderson. She was social chairman of the freshman class last year and now holds the position of secretary of the sophomore class.

The contest, according to Jones, collected over $100 for the Monogram Club scholarship fund and for the orphans' parties which the club gives. He said the amount is twice as much as was made in last year's contest.

Among those invited to the reception, according to Jones, are Governor Luther Hodges; President Gordon Gray; Chancellor Robert B. House; Dean D. D. Carroll; Edwin Lanier, director of the Central Office of Records; William D. Carmichael, Jr., vice-president of the University; J. Maryon (Spike) Saunders, secretary of the Alumni Office; all members of the Athletic Council; all alumni and all coaches.

Cosmopolitan Interview

"Cosmopolitan interview," W UNC program scheduled for Wednesday night, has been postponed until tonight.

Assistant Station Manager Carl Vinters said yesterday the program, featuring Miss Arendine Kimmel, student from The Netherlands, will be heard at 7:45. John Riebel of the University YMCA will interview Miss Kimmel.

WUNC is a non-commercial FM radio station operated by the University, with frequency of 91.5 megacycles.

SP's Reid Resigns Floorleader Office To Support Fowler

Two University Party Students Join Reid In Fowler Campaign

Two University Party students have joined Student Party floorleader David Reid in supporting Don Fowler, independent presidential candidate.

Charles Ackerman, UP publicity chairman, and Lionel King, UP nominee for a Legislature seat, and member of the UP Steering Committee, yesterday announced their resignations from the University Party to become supporters of Don Fowler in his campaign for the student body presidency.

Ackerman, who will be the publicity director for Fowler during the campaign, said that he is resigning his UP post "because I want to stand behind a student who is a campus man, a gentleman who respects all groups equally and a leader who will associate himself with the ideas of the students, not with a particular segment of the University. No one else fits this description but Don Fowler," added Ackerman in his statement.

Robert Mann, a native of Portland, Oregon, studied at the Juilliard School in New York, gave concert tours, and was with the Albuquerque, N.M., Festival String Quartet.

Robert Keff, the narrator for the children's concerts, attended Oberlin Conservatory and the Juilliard Graduate School.

Raphael Hillyer studied violin privately and at Curtis Institute in Philadelphia, but set out to get another kind of education. With a major in mathematics and membership in Phi Beta Kappa at Dartmouth, he received an M.A. degree at Harvard and went on to complete pre-medical studies.

Mr. Winograd studied at the Curtis Institute and under cellist and teacher Felix Salmond, and has played in the Boston Symphony at Tanglewood and in the NBC. Salmond was the brother-in-law of Mrs. John A. Parker of Chapel Hill.

the voice of the campus will preside," said Ackerman's statement.

Ackerman said "A party which is run by a steering committee of eight people and which nominates candidates that it doesn't know the qualifications of has no place in a sincere student government. I left because I felt the party did not take the campus government seriously, and I am now backing a candidate whose steering committee is made up of 6,000 students and whose ideas are the ideas of 6,000 people."

King, in his statement, said "I am withdrawing from the University Party so that I might support the independent candidate, Don Fowler, who will give the University of North Carolina a more representative government."

He said, "When Jim Monteith lost the nomination for vice-president, the dorm men and veterans lost their chance to voice their needs and opinions through the University Party. If the University Party were to win the coming election, it would mean that a small group within the party would dominate student government."

Eure Outlines Issues

Segregation, reapportionment of representation in the House and Senate, and the widely discussed "whammy bill" are top issues confronting the current General Assembly and nothing will be done about any of them.

That's the prediction of Secretary of State Thad Eure which he made here last night as the speaker at the weekly meeting of the Chapel Hill Rotary Club.

Fowler Disagrees On Proposed Auto Court

"I do not agree with my opponent (Student Party candidate Manning Muntzing) that a student traffic court should be set up," said independent presidential candidate Don Fowler in a statement issued yesterday.

"I would favor establishing a student traffic committee in line with what has been done at other schools," said Fowler. "This committee would handle registration of all cars. If a student abused the privilege of car, his registration would be revoked, and he would not be allowed to keep a car," added Fowler.

Fowler said, "Cars will be taken away from students if the student body fails to take an immediate and positive stand. He noted that President Gordon Gray has asked for a student reaction to the recommendation made by both the faculty and the Visiting Committee of the Board of Trustees that students not be allowed to have cars here. However, according to Fowler's statement, no student reaction has been made.

"... I believe that if we show the trustees and the administration that we can and will control the car problem on this campus, we can stop this irrational move to deprive students of their right to own a car," concluded Fowler.

'Unable' To Help Muntzing

David Reid, floorleader of the Student Party, yesterday announced resignation of his party post in order to support independent candidate for presidency of the student body Don Fowler.

"Since I have found myself unable to support Manning Muntzing for president of the student body, I am forced to concur with Manning's request that I resign as SP legislative floorleader," said Reid in a statement yesterday.

"I still anticipate maintaining my membership in the Student Party, and will support all SP candidates other than Manning Muntzing," added Reid.

Reid has been a member of the SP Advisory Board since his freshman year. He was vice-chairman of the party in the fall of last year, and SP Legislator since spring of last year. He became party floorleader last December.

"After Don Fowler announced his candidacy for the presidency, I could, in good faith, do no less than give Don my wholehearted support," said Reid. "Don's outstanding work in all three branches of student government gives him a grasp of its overall scope, which in my opinion is not surpassed by any student on campus," he added.

"Having talked to Don at great length, I have become excited over his plans for student government next year," said Reid. "Under Don's direction I foresee student government elevated to a mature and highly respected junior partnership with the University Administration," he concluded.

Deadline's Tonight For Independent Candidates

Midnight tonight is the deadline for independents to file for candidacy in the spring elections with the Elections Board.

Any student may become a candidate for office, provided he or she submits a petition signed by 26 qualified voters and himself. Petitions may be turned in to Miss Patsy Daniels at the Chi Omega house or at the student government office. The petitioner must turn in his grade qualifications as certified by the Dean of Student's office with the petition.
