Co-op Necessary - Ridgway

It is of vital importance that the statesman and military man collaborate in formulation of foreign policy, United States Army Chief of Staff Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway emphasized last night in an address in Memorial Hall.

General Ridgway, who was introduced by UNC Chancellor R. B. House, said, "The military man is an adviser and an executor, not a formulator, not an advocate, with regard to the basic national policies determined by the civilian authorities of the government."

"Bearing in mind, however, that war is a device for achieving national objectives by force, it is therefore fought to achieve political goals—thus, a military means to a political end."

The means for attaining an end from a vital factor and must be available, he said. "Hence, the political policy maker must rightly look to the military man for sound, impartial opinion and fact concerning military means and capabilities."

General Ridgway, whose appearance was sponsored by the Carolina Forum, non-partisan student organization, presented views on the effect of foreign relations upon military operations and described the Army's role in peace and war. Bob Young, Asheville, Forum vice-chairman, presided.

General and Mrs. Ridgway were guests at a 6:30 p.m. private dinner in the Pine Room of the Carolina Inn, and a reception in the Main Lounge in Graham Memorial was held immediately following the program.

Expense Accounts

All candidates in spring elections who have not turned in expense accounts must do so today, and pay a $1 fine, or be disqualified, said Elections Board Chairman Patsy Daniels yesterday.

Galvin Recital Slated Tonight

Mrs. Violet Galvin, soprano, will present a senior recital in Hill Hall tonight at 8 o'clock.

Accompanied by Henry Miller, she will sing works by Brahms, Strauss, Lalo, Duparc, Moussorgsky, Rakov, Rachmaninoff, Puccini, Barber, Stevens and Britten.

Mrs. Galvin is a student of Assistant Professor Joel Carter of the Music Department.

Sample of Today's Ballot

Official ballot for top officers in today's election is shown above. Other ballots will be voted upon in various districts for student Legislature seats, constitutional amendments and other offices.

Voting Places To Be Near At Hand Today

It's going to be easy for students to vote today. The ballot boxes are going to be close at hand.

Polls will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Students will need their ID cards.

Students who live in a dormitory can vote right there in the dorm or at Lenoir Hall.

Town men I (southern section of Chapel Hill south of Cameron Ave.) extended vote in the Victory Village entrance, Scuttlebutt, Gerard Hall or Big or Little Fraternity Courts.

Town men II (rectangle bounded by W. Cameron Ave., S. Columbia St., W. Franklin St. and Mill Rd.) vote in the Scuttlebutt, Gerard Hall or Big and Little Fraternity Courts.

Town men III (all other men students) vote at the ATO House Scuttlebutt or Gerard Hall.

Town women (women students not living in University-owned buildings and women in sorority houses) vote in the Scuttlebutt, Gerard Hall or the entrance to Victory Village.

Under the student Constitution, no campaign literature or no person trying to "advance the interest of any candidate" will be allowed.

Ballot Box

A gentleman in the business of student politics gave us a good argument for not allowing 18-year-olds to vote.

"Why," he asked, "should students be allowed to vote in national elections when they are 18, when no more than 50 percent of them vote in campus elections?"

He is right. Records show last fall's election drew to the polls something like 48 per cent of the students enrolled in the University.

About 56 percent of the students voted in last spring's election.

Both elections were singular ones. Dave Reid's "leniency bill"—the most controversial thing to come out of student Legislature in our time—was put before the campus for a vote. It was voted down, but less than half the students used their right.

Last spring, Charles Kugalt and Tom Peacock were running for editorship of The Daily Tar Heel. It was by far the hottest race of the year, with Candidate Peacock calling a Kuralt man a liar, and Candidate Kuralt saying Peacock was "scampering for cover whenever the real issues came out." Yet only 56 percent of the students voted.

It is entirely correct for the state lawmakers to wonder if 18-year-olds care enough, or are mature enough, to vote in national elections.

At Carolina, where the absurd promise registers in the voter's ear as the Gospel, where looks and speaking ability and wit come before platform and mental ability and energy, where half or less than half of the students vote on matters and people directly affecting them, apathy prevails.

Although we will make no predictions about today's election, we will guess that a runoff vote will be held for president of the student body.

Polling places are located on first floors of every dormitory this year. There are stairs leading to voting places from the second and third floors. — F.P.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS:

Students Vote On 4 Changes In Law Today

Following is a proposed amendment to the student Constitution, which will be presented to the student body in a vote today. This is the fourth such amendment. The other three would (1) Place certain duties on student government's Attorney General; (2) Deal with the structure, power and officers of the Interdormitory Council; and (3) Allow a student nurse on the Women's Council. This one, termed by most observers as the most important proposed amendment, would revise structure of the Student Council.

A RESOLUTION CALLING FOR A CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT TO RECONSTITUTE THE STUDENT COUNCIL AND ITS GENERAL PROCEDURE

Whereas: Under the present provisions in Article II, Section 3, Subsection (a), there are no effective means of ensuring that the Student Council will be composed of students who are suitably qualified and experienced to serve on a court that hears appeals from all the lower courts on campus; and,

Whereas: The provision in Article II, Section 4, whereby the accused, if granted a retrial, is sent back to the original court for retrial is not healthy, efficient, or in accord with our state and national judicial systems; and,

Whereas: The list of rights of the accused as provided for in Article II, Section 4, Subsection (c) are incomplete; and,

Whereas: Subsection (d) of the same Article and Section does not allow for the change in composition of the Student Council proposed for THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED BY THE STUDENT LEGISLATURE OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA THAT a. The Student Council shall be composed of one member of the Men's Council, Women's Council, Law School Court, Interfraternity Council Court, Interdormitory Council Court and Dental School Court, to be elected by and from these judicial bodies in the spring elections, one woman elected from the women students in the spring, one member of the Men's Council, Women's Council, Medical School Court and Dance Committee, to be elected by and from these judicial bodies in the fall election, and one man elected from the men students in the fall.

Article I—Article II, Section 3, of the student Constitution be amended to read:

CAN-CAN

You can't can-can like a candidate can, avers the editor. See editorial column, p. 2, for comments on election day.

Other Top Jobs Up For Vote

UNC students will vote today in the biggest campus election of the school year.

Top student offices—student body president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, head cheerleader, editor of The Daily Tar Heel, president of Carolina Athletic Assn. and CAA vice-president—will be at stake.

Students will vote on 26 seats in student Legislature.

Men's and Women's Honor Councils and the Student Council will be elected.

Runoff vote, if needed, will be held April 5.

FOR PRESIDENT

Three candidates are running for student body president. Independent Don Fowler, University Party's Ed McCurry and Student Party's Manning Muntzing have entered the race.

Student body President Tom Creasy has challenged the students to a 75 percent vote today.

Creasy said yesterday that in the past elections over 50 percent of the students have voted and he believes that today the students can top this, bringing the vote close to 4,500.

Chairman of the Elections Board Patsy Daniels said she believes the vote today will be a "little better than 4,000."

Miss Daniels said last spring's election turned out about 3,000 votes.

Vice-president candidates are Bob Harrington (SP) and Jack Stevens (UP).

Two coeds, Miss Jane Cocke (UP) and Miss Joan Palmer (SP) are running for student body secretary.

Joe Carrel (SP) and Jim Martin (UP) are running for treasurer.

"Collie" Collison and "Pepper" Tice are running for position of head cheerleader. Tice has endorsement of the Bipartisan Selection Board. Another candidate, T. C. Homesley, is running for head cheerleader as a write-in candidate.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL

Two students, Ed Yoder and Louis Kraar, are running for co-editorship of The Daily Tar Heel. They are unopposed.

For president of the Carolina Athletic Assn., Jim Beatty (UP) and Roland Perdue (SP) are running.

Jimmy Raugh (UP) and Ed Sutton (SP) are running for vice-president of the Carolina Athletic Assn.

POLLING HOURS

Polling hours, according to Elections Board Chairman Patsy Daniels, will run from 8:30 this morning to 6 p.m.

Men's Honor Council

In the Men's Honor Council, the following are seeking the sophomore seat: Sonny Evans, Macan Patton, Kelly Maness.

Quincy Ayseue, Bob Jacobus, Bill Morgan, Townsend Holt and Mebane Pritchett are seeking the junior seat.

Student Council

Candidates for the Student Council are Sally Cowles, Jane Edwards, Jane Howie and Jean Robertson.

Seats-at-large in the Student Council: Jim Allen, Buddy Harper, Bob Kinzey, Pat Patrick, Jim Taugh and Mike Soper.
