A Monday Hangover

Monday-when the spring holiday is little more than pleasant memories, a coat of sun-tan, or a hangover for students returning to the Hill - the U. S. Supreme will sit soberly down to hear arguments of the Southern states on how to implement its segrega-lieving that "mixing of the races in the public schools throughout the state cannot be ac complished and if attempted would alienate public support of the schools to such an ex-

The resolution, backed by Governor Hodges, provides also for the creation of a seven-member commission to make a continuing

Since this resolution puts the state on record as saying to the Supreme Court that we can't implement its decision (which isn't what the court asked for), it would seem that such a commission would be useless. The commission's study would be a waste of time, since the state's leaders have already decided that the decision to mix races in the schools "can-study of the segregation problem.

tent that they could not operate successfully."

For North Carolina

PAGE TWO

tion decision.

E

'Relax-They're Bound To Turn Aside'

MATSU-

QUEMOY

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 6, 1955

Own Image Dissatisfies

Ralph McGill (We go Mr. McGill's Atlanta Constitution article - fine and thought-provoking though it bea few points better; it would be tragic, we think, to use American bombs and lives to keep Quemoy and Matsu out of the hands of Chinese Communists and our opinion is shared by both statesmen and responsible military experts-Editors.)

With agonizing slowness, the pace of which has been snaillike, stationary, or retarded, the Kremlin's best laid plans of aggression in Europe have been thwarted.

There Communist strength, though yet formidable, wanes. This has been done without war, though not without compromise and sacrifice.

Senator Walter George and others have taken the line that this suggests a similar course of action in Asia.

Certain deductions now are possible One is this:

The more people learn about the facts of Communist rule as opposed to Marxist and Lenin ideology, the more they want to be free of it.

But what affronts many Americans is that these same persons want also to be equally free of American influence.

It should not affront us. We, ourselves, are not content with our own image. Our jammed mental institutions; our juvenile problems: our preoccupation with "success": our retreat from anything intellectual-these are but a few of the facets of our image which are ugly even to us.

MATERIALISTIC

One of the most successful bits of propaganda used against us is that we are a materialistic people. We cannot escape the evidence our image reflects this fact. We bang too many cymbals. We set up too many golden calves. The smoke from their altars conceals the crowded churches; the friendly, genuine people, the concern for all human needs.

There is no reason why other nations should not wish to work out their own political and social system-free of the Soviet Union and the United States. Japan, for example, already is moving more rapidly toward the "neutralism" as best expressed by India. And Japan, even more desire to remain anonymous-all dressed up and ready to glow-we can readily understand why liquor sales are mounting yearly. Peddling hootch is such good business that if all the liquor salesmen in Durham were laid end to end, they would form a parallel line with their customers who are also laid out.

Y-Court Corner Rueben Leonard THERE ARE so many alcoholics who have no

The Chapel Hill Parent-Teacher's Association wanted to hold a referendum to install ABC Stores in Chapel Hill so they can drain the taxes from the spirits we drain. We suggest that they hold two referendums, one for the establishment of liquor stores and one for the legalizing of gambling casinos. They could take the money derived from the sale of whiskey and put it on a roulette wheel. Since the PTA knows what is best for the local citizenry surely they know how to beat the roulette wheel. With their winnings in the casinos they can have both an ultra-modern school program 'and a rehabilitation center for alcoholics.

Local fraternities can add another kind of entertainment to their long list orgies; a series of seances-"Just rap on the table and spirits will appear." Young athletes at Carolina will be able to hang on the bars and chin for hours.

Even with all the benefits to be derived from the advent of liquor stores, we predict that the citizens of Orange County will vote dry just as long as they can stagger to the polls to vote.

CHALK UP another victory for the groundskeepers. Where a path once crossed the grass on the west side of Hanes Hall there is now a row of thorn bushes. We suggest that the grounds-keepers buy a batch of snakes (if you buy snakes in batches) and turn them loose in the Arboretum and really keep the students off the grass.

* *

EVERY TIME that an instructor announces to the class that he has an outside grader, there are moans and groans from the students. At the University of Michigan a professor also had reason to complain.

After correcting a set of English papers, an assistant was (a) disturbed to discover he had corrected an extra exam that he couldn't account for even though he had graded it a "D" because it showed "a poor grasp of fundamentals," (b) showed it to the instructor, (c) was even more listurbed when informed it was the key the instructor had left for him to use in marking the other papers.

CHARLES DUNN mentioned in his column yesterday that Tarnation was up to par. We would like to know what is par for a humor magazine, Everyone seems to know good humor when they see it but no one ever turns any of it in to the Tarnation staff. Maybe Charlie's of the "If I want to write a good book, I'll write one" school.

Carolina Front The Death Of Our Suspicion; With A Plot? J. A. C. Dunn

If a resolution introduced this week in the IN THE COURSE of harvesting General Assombly passes (and it probably the week's crop of intellectual will), North Carolina will be on record as bestimulation in the last Saturday Review we stubbed our delicately manicured intellectual toe on an editorial by John Steinbeck concerning the recent Matusow testimony furor entitled "The Death of a Racket."

> It is an excellent editorial; it says some rather optimistic things for a change - prinicipally that 'his (Matusow's) testimony and retestimony may well be the little push that causes the pendulum of common sense to swing back." Or in other words the American public may be getting squared away about just how scared of Big Brother it ought to be, may be snickering a little bit at fright propaganda.

not be accomplished.' The highest court in this land has wiped from the law books the concept of segregation in the public schools. It is now asking Southern states how to implement this decision. Instead of suggesting something definite

-perhaps a gradual integration plan-North Carolina throws up its legislative hands with useless resolutions.

Beware The Greeks, Mr. Summerfield

The National Book Committee has released its recommendatory Report on Book Burning, roundly condemning private censors who set their own questionable taste and wisdom above the taste and wisdom of ages of book readers.

A valuable recommendation by the Committee suggests a means of retaliation against the censors. When a man rings a fire alarm falsely he may be penalized. The Book Com- against which they have no armittee's reasoning is similar: When arbitrary mor." action dams the flow of books, "legislation This is very good resoning and penalizing private action which interferes . . . may very well be true. But it with the distribution of reading material would cure this danger." Congressmen could show their concern for the unhindered circulation of literature by enacting such legislation. We think we already have a likely candidate for prosecution if he continues to obstruct the right of post for Greek literature. He is Postmaster-General Arthur Summerfield who threw a block to Aristophanes' Yysistrata a week or so ago. A slight fine would teach him to fear the Greeks-especially bearing literature.

OUR RESPECT FOR Mr. Steinbeck narrowly misses constituting blasphemous idolatry. He writes beautifully, he has something to in my estimation, is what Communists have most to fear and raises the question that if no Communist tactician would destroy a climate of disunity, what would he do instead? Assuming, that is, that he does not make an outright error. It appears to us that while the Kremlin Club may possibly have made a genuine mistake in permitting the "climate of disunity" to lapse, on the other hand there might just as easily be an element of reverse english in the whole affair, and the public laughter raised by references to professional witneses may be carefully plan-say, we enjoy him, he exhilarates us. But he made one comment in his editorial that made us stop reading and think for a minute. "No Communist tactician," he says, "would destroy the climate of disunity and suspicion which has haunted us for the last few years by substituting a return to sanity. An effective Communist Party would much rather kep the investigations going with their harvest of fear and disruption than to produce laughter which,

FERBLOCK

PASSING REMARK

No Textbook Is A Bible

Gracious Living-I (Second Series)

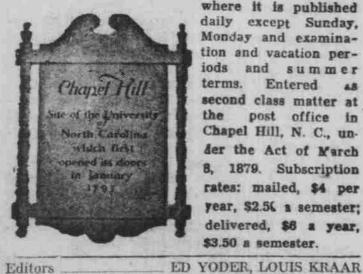

The wheels of modernism go spinning around, always moving in on us. But this time (shock of shocks for self-respecting members of the Society for the Preservation of Primitivism in Chapel Hill) the wheels of modernism have spun themselves a bit too far-right into the display window of the Paul Smiths' Intimate Bookshop.

What's with this newfanglement, anyhow? A fortnight ago, the Raleigh-ic oracle herself. Nell Battle Lewis, wept her journalistic tears over an invasion of exotic foods (fried grasshoppers, toasted lotus antennae, etc.) in Chapel Hill. Now we head for one of the last places in the village where you can walk on a genuine-squeaky board floor, only to see this display contraption a-whirl in the win- no other really effective way to dow.

This interloper from the mechanical age, this splinterfire-new, patented parvenu has no place in the quaint and musty environs of a village bookshop. Gracious Living in Chapel Hill diminishes with every turn, we fear. Let it be removed.

The official student publication of the Publieations Board of the University of North Carolina, year, $2.5% a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editors ED	YODER, LOUIS KRAAR
Managing Editor	FRED POWLEDGE
Night editor for this issue	Eddie Crutchfield

LOOK AT IT this way: For the past few years the American public, having previously been complacent about Communism, has suffered from cronic internal insecurity as a result of the endless Communist investigations. Now, perhaps, Big Brother and his slightly les gargantuan siblings, are reasoning that unless Americans are given a different kind of jolt, they may become complacent about the very thing that is making them suspicious of one another. Obviously there is disunite a country than the stimulation of suspicion by investigating anyone and everyone (except by outright); therefore suspicion, as a weapon, must be given a rest, must be given time to gather new force; this can perhaps best be done by letting the American public think the danger has passed, by fighting fire with fire, by destroying complacency with complacency. Hence the laughter gimmick: let 'em laugh, the Communists may be saying, they'll get the back of our hand on the return swing.

"IT IS INEVITABLE," Mr.

Steinbeck says, "that some officials...must charge that ... (Matusow's) reversal is a part of a plot. . . of the Kremlin. But the time for such reasoning has passed." Certainly it is inevitable that such charges will be made. But why has the time for reasoning that such charges are false passed? Unless the Communists have really made a serious blunder, we cannot see that it has.

in the world.

environment.

Ron Levin

It woul be nice, if you could The other night I was speaking recall all the interesting tales to a friend of mine who entered from your psychology class and the University as a freshman last familiarize yourself with Freufall. He was slightly aggravated dian principles to such an extent over the fact tht he had to take that you could play armchair certain courses that were going analyst the next time you go to be of no value to him in his home. future field. What IS important, though, is

On many previous occasions. I have heard similar comments from students who feel they are deriving no benefit whatsoever from a particular course. It would seem to me that there is a lesson to be learned from every course and in every classroom. For instance: It is not essential that you remember how to solve every type of algebraic equation or remember all the formulae from a chemistry course, but it vital that you develop from these a habit of thinking in an precise and careful manner that will prove to be an invaluable help in dealing with future problems that might be only remotely related to mathematics or chemistry, if at all.

You should not be upset, if you can not remember al the names and dates from a history textbook. However, the study of this material shoud stimulate your mind and enlarge your scope of thought so as to make for a bet- vice of a none too brillant friend. ter understanding of great events If he has had the course, he prob-

Doris Fleeson

WASHINGTON - The Wall Street Journal has published the Eisenhower Administration's still secret transportation report. It is heavily weighted in favor of the railroads and railroad stocks have been climbing, presumably in case of cause and effect.

The verdict of an experienced politician who has read the report is less bullish. Naming various aggressive industries it will vitally affect, including truckers and the airlines, he suggested that if the President backed it, every lawyer in America would be put on retainer by some interested party.

Apparently practical politicians who like Ike have achieved contact with the White House. The report is still seret and Secretary of Commerce Weeks, its guiding genius, has announced a European journey in the interest of more foreign trade.

The other transportation project of the Administration-the President's $101 'billion highway program-has already bit the Defense Department.

ably flunked it or had a strong dislike for the instructor due to reasons of a purely personal nature.

* * *

It is imperative that the student should attempt to gain perspective in the acquisition of knowledge. Try to view the subject matter from a distance. Afthe realization of the complexity ter you have studied for a quiz, of the mind of man and an awareput down the book and reflect for ness of the great amount of work a while on the purpose and signifdone and the vast amount reicance of what you have learned. maining to be accomplished in How does it relate to your other the vars ahead, so that we may courses and the vast amount of come to a somewhat clearer unyour previous experience whether derstanding of ourselves and our from books or actual living? What are some questions that The development of a tolerant have arisen during the semester and understanding attitude tothat you did not find answered ward all branches of knowledge in the book? What are some anshould be the first concern of swers given that do not seem every college student. How many satisfactory to you? How has it times have you heard certain dehelped you to integrate yourself partments or professors referred to those around you and se yourto as complete wastes of time, self as part of the human idea?

or a bunch of crackpot or dream-Above all, remember that no ers? These and similar remarks textbook is a bible, and no inhave been made for tone reason structor an absolute authority on and one reason only, and that is any one subject. The world has complete and unswerving ignobeen changing ever since time rance on the part of the student. began, and it will continue to do Nine times out of ten, he has so as long as it exists. It is just never had a course in the departthis inherent and vital part of ment, but he is going on the adthe proces of life that causes us to wait hopefully and eagerly for tomorrow.

Ike's Secret Transportation Report

dust. Fiscal conservatives including Senator Byrd protested its off-the-budget financing aspects. The loose Federal-state partnership proposed came under fire from liberals, while various state Governors attacked the toll road sections.

GORE'S FILE

Chairman Gore of the Senate Public Works Committee had already filed it in the wastebasket before the President's new Controller-General, Joseph Campbell, appeared with his own large funeral wreath. The vehemence of Campbell's attack almost persuaded Gore he had been wrong in fighting that appointment.

Gore now intends to push his own bill which began by doubling the present program and may now be pushed up to four to five billions-he hopes. In this particular Congress, that would be a substantial appropriation for new construction outside the than Formosa, is an integral part of our defense perimeter. Sincere men, who are members of our Chiefs of Staff, believe we should not stand aloof if an attack is made on either, or both, the coastal islands just Matsu and Quemoy.

They recommend we strike an immediate heavy blow of retaliation.

CONCEPT

Put briefly, the idea would be swiftly to reduce her capacity to make war. If we do this will the Russians Editor:

come in? The President does not think so. He speaks out of the intelligence reports given him. What else does the President think?

He has not said. Those close to him felt, after hearing his analysis, that he inclined to applying the agonizingly - slow methods which gradually have stalemated Communist plans in Europe. But we don't know.

What we must know is the choice.

politicians quickly detect their imbalance. If a large and well belanced schedule of legislation were before them, members of Congress would not perhaps be so chary. Instead they have had only a sprinkling of special messages.

This is one reason there will be very little new substantive legislation this year. The story may be different in 1956-an election year.

The public result is an appearance of political moderation. White House moves such as the Weeks proposals which would really change established policy are quickly rebuffed on the Hill. In turn, Congress is warned not to expand present horizons while the budget remains unbalanced.

It is probably that what Senator Kefauver said on the floor last week is true. It is that the American people are in the mood to pause and catch their breath, which is a big reason for the President's appeal.

ELECTION AFTERMATH: When Don Fowler put up his poster in Y-Court that read, "Elect Don Fowler And Put YOUR Feet On The President's 'Desk," several students vowed that if Fowler were elected they would journey-up to Graham Memorial and do just that.

* *

AND TODAY we leave for the land of sin, sand, and sunshine where the ocean breeze furnishes the right amount of salt for our beer and the flying sand filters the lemon seeds from our off the Red Chinese coast . . . ""P. J." (This paragraph dedicated to Louis Kraar and his pseudo-spring breezes).

- Reader's Retort -

Another Writer Goes 'Over The Hill' Here

Congrats to C. Dunn on his excellent taste in column titles, viz., "Over The Hill," p. 2.

I hesitate to laud Mr. Dunn on his originality, however, as I seem to recall a column of the same name which appeared on the sports page only last semester.

Fred Babson

(For reader Babson's and the campus' further edification, the title "Over The Hill" goes back before former Sports Editor Babson's Daily Tar Hech times and our own. Walt Dear started an editorial page column in this paper some half dozen years back, and it was called "Over The Hill." So columnist Charles Dunn wasn't stealing from former sports scribe Babson; he was only carrying on the tradition.-Editors)

Quote, Unquote

You must select the Puritans for your ancestors You must have a sheltered youth and be a graduate of Harvard . . . Eat beans on Saturday night and fish-balls Sunday morning . . . You must be a D.A.R. a Colonial Dame, an S.A.R., or belong to the May flower Society . . . You must read the Atlantic monthly . . . You must make sure in advance that your obituary appears in the Boston Transcript There is nothing else .- To be Happy in New Eng land, Letter to the Editor of the Christian Register.

Both ears to the ground, but Yr. correspondent can distinguish no rumbles of complaint that the University's educational television budget was cut in twain last week. Statesmen carrying the TV batthe semed content that the economy boys accomplished no more than half their aim, which was to cut of this appropriation entirely.

Hon. John W. Umstead of Orange, the spear of the Chapel Hill phalanx within the subcommittee on appropriations, explains blandly that the University people will simply have to return to the private sources which provided the some $1,500,000 with which the WUNC-TV began life. If the televisionary cost of living has been accurately figured, that will mean some $217,000 within the next two years .- Burke Davis in the Greensboro Daily News

Against this background it is probably academic to point to the glaring onconsistencies between the two transportation projects, since so little is apt to happen. For example, truckers were raised to seventh heaven by the prospects of billions of dollars worth of new roads, but were sent plummeting in the opposite direction by a recommendation in the Weeks report that railway companies should be freed to go into the trucking and bus business.

What seems to be happening is that people deeply interested in certain fields are being allowed to shape White House policy dealing with them, without that leavening of the general interest which politicians are supposed to supply. It is one result of a cabinet of business men who are trained to look after a relatively few interests very well.

CHARY SOLONS

When these recommendations or programs reach Congress, the

