PAGE TWO

University.

year's Board.

der the Raleigh Dome.

on the college level.

dred different situations?

graduate Eisenhower.

future.

To A Pillar Of Salt?

At an undetermined hour tonight, as you settle down to English History or Shakespeare or B.A. 71 or to more playful efforts)

the die will be cast for the ruling body of the Committees on Trustees, in joint session,

will file past the ballot boxes; they will cast

Members of the State House and Senate votes for 30 new Trustees to serve on next -

But ugly rumors of possible sleight-of-hand

PA

E

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 13, 1955

'But My Friend Mr. Dulles Was Right Behind Me'

Passing Remark _____ Y-Court Corner

Rueben Leonard

IN MONDAY'S Chapel Hill News Leader, a columnist spared no adjectives when he wrote of the wonderful feeling he experienced in seeing available parking space over the Spring holidays.

The columnist went on to ask himself as especially assinine question, namely, where all the student cars come from when the state has such a low per capita income.

Personally. I think there is about as much corre lation between student cars and state per capita income as there is between income taxes and the sex habits of a whale.

O Mammon! Chief God of the village, look down upon your worshippers and cease their continual gnawing on the hand that nourishes them. Beseech them to always remember that Chapel Hill without the University, its students and their money would be as a candle without a wick, a clock without a spring, and a cart without a horse.

I was sitting at the dinner table one evening listening to my mother tell of the latest happenings in the neighborhood; "Did you know that Carol Soand-so is pregnant?" she asked.

"Can't they find out what's causing it?" piped in my little sister

DAVE REID, Don Fowler's most ardent support er, wandered into Y-Court last Wednesday morning with that old I-told-you-so beam on his face,

"You know what," he said, "Don asked me last night if I would be his Attorney-General." This was news to us-we didn't think that Reid had told Fowler that he could be president yet.

JIM MONTEITH is also slated to land a big fat appointment. Can it possibly be a reward for his support in the campaign? Too bad Gordon Forester and Charlie Ackerman won't be around next year to partake of the spoils.

SHADES OF Florence Nightingale! You may think it is tough to sit in the corridor of the infirmary and bleed to death before you can see a doctor. but what if you were a nurse and had to work the night shift. Those poor old keepers-of-the-cure work 661/2 hours during the week that they are on night duty.

The afternoon shift is comparatively light-requiring only 521/2 hours per week while the morning shift is a vacation entailing only 49 hours.

* *

April twelfth through June fifth will be the "Night Before Christmas" for the senior class. On June sixth, all those that have been good little girls and boys will walk up to Dean Santa Claus and get their reward.

You'd better watch out,

*

- You'd better not pout,
- You'd better go to class
- Or they'll kick you out.

Of Education-Crime And The

Carolina Front

Ludicrous

WE WERE BORN at a tender age in a quite sadistic frame have reached our ears from their origin un- of mind, most of which outlook on life we have managed to retain through the past couple of decades. For this reason we choose this, of all the days open to choice, to talk about educa-> grimness and travail six days ago, we saw one of the most insane movies to which we have ever been privileged to pay admission called "The Bells of St. Trinians." St. Trinians is a girls' school known chiefly for its Ronald Searle. We cannot decide whether these lethal females are sub-normal, superhuman, or merely from a different planet, and judging by the reactions of the people who come into contact with St. Trinians personnel, this indecision is rather widespread. Merchants board up their shops, passersby frantically mount bicycles or drive cars at breakneck speed, police call in reinforcements at the mere mention of the advent

The motto of St. Trinians (literally "in flagranti delicto") freely translated means, in the words of Miss Frittendon, St. F.D.R. IN RETROSPECT T's craftily vague headmistress, that most girls' schools prepare their students for the great merciless world outside, it is the merciless world itself which must be prepared when St. Trinians girls leave their alma mater

SEVERAL EXAMPLES OF the Like the golf-putting ex-General, Fowler's slightly depraved character of experience in partisan politics doesn't in- most St. T alumni are the folclude the seedier side of backroom sessions. lowing: In the chem lab the girls

J. A. C. Dunn

Those rumors, specifically, are not totally unexpected: That certain backward-looking and, unfortunately, influential persons have spotted danger in the Board's progressive vote tion. against segregation at a State College summer Before leaving these halls of course: that they have seen the red flag and will now try to juggle the selection of new Trustees to fit the pattern of their own restricted vision. In short, that they will attempt to elect new Trustees whose minds are closed to the possibility of co-racial education Here (and quite unusually for these times) staff and pupils, which were the issues strike more deeply that to the ques- created by British cartoonist tion of ethical and practical right and wrong on the Supreme Court's Decision. Will the people of North Carolina, when their state university's livelihood is at stake, allow Trustees to be chosen on the basis of a patented, ready-framed attitude? Will they have competence and the open mind displaced by mediocrity, so long as that mediocrity is set to vote one way on a lone decision? Will they, in fact, let one issue call the tune for a hun-We doubt it. The time to look backwards the army flees in panic and the on 1955 decisions will be 1984 or 2,000, not of St. Trinians. the ballot boxes have trained their eyes unlearned the story of Lot's wife, who looked that all vindictiveness might be only knew him well but brought remarkable talents to his re- ed by those who most dutifully membrance. Roosevelt's remembrance has who examine them with somebeen less well served. He was thing less than piety. Herndon's not made a martyr by an assas- reports added much more to sin. There was in Washington when he died in 1945, when li- son Robert did by hiding many lacs were blooming again, no such minor bureaucrat as Walt Whitman to put his grief and his commander into such poetry as "When Lilacs Last in the Doorvard Bloom'd," In the case of both there were the swift biographies and books of recollection. But the ten years after Lincoln's death were not over before Robert Lincoln had broken with his father's law partner, William Henry Herndon, because of Herndon's efforts to keep Lincoln a human individual and save him from uncritical legendmaking. CHANGE Yet, strangely, even with the change of political parties, Roosevelt's programs have been kept more intact and in practice than the purposes for a reunited America which Lincoln outlined to his Cabinet on the last day he lived. Roosevelt's New Deal has the often-spoken scorn of many of those who hold the power n the government today. But it has certainly not been abandoned by a new President who urges the extension of reciprical trade, the broadening of the base of social security, the increase of minimum wages. That new President, indeed, has been charged within his own party; and by the wing of it which hated Roosevelt most, of going farther to the Left in a similar period than Roosevelt did.

Jonathan Daniels (Jonathan Daniels, Raleigh News & Observer editor, appraises the status of Franklin D. Roosevelt ten years after his death in this article excerpted from The New York Times Magazine. We find Editor Dan-

laid aside and the Southern of the leader with the people people leniently treated was as in the case of Roosevelt, as of long dead as Lincoln himself. It Lincoln, is as firm a basis as was not until the tenth year exists for the immortality of after he died that the image of the hero. Aloofness does not his life began to be creatively generally seem to be the firmput together by John George est basis of legend. Also it is Nicolay and John Hay, who not a strange thing how the lastheroes are not generally creatan impeccable man.

and soon

him.

from now."

HUMAN FRAILTIES

more apappealing.

Ten Aprils Are Still Too Few

I suspect that identification suit in suspicion. I started the conversation. "Some crowd, huh?" "Yeah, Saturday night is always a big night here." "Say, I thought you had to be eighteen to buy beer."

Report From

Myrtle Beach

Opium Dens

Dateline . . . April, 9. Myrtle

Beach, South Carolina. It is eight thirty on a Saturday night. I walked down about five blocks

from the Pavilion and paused in front of the Ocean Plaza Hotel.

Opening directly on to the sidewalk is a dance hall called the Marine Room. Pushing my way in through the jammed aisle, I found myself in a place that would have made the opium dens of Hong Kong look like a nursery. The smoke hung heavily in rifts over the dance floor, and empty beer cans littered the floor in profusion.

There were people of all description. Some were dancing:

some were watching; some were drinking. The majority of the customers were seventeen or under. There were a few servicemen and a slightly larger number of college students. I went up to one teen ager who was standing against a booth downing the last few swallows of a Blue Bibbon.

He was dressed in the usual attire of wide kneed, ankle draped slacks and a flowing long sleeve sport shirt. His hair cut would have cause any self respectable barber to throw up. He couldn't have been over sixteen at the most, and I watched his eyes as they ran up and down my cord

Ron Levin

"You do. I just get my buddy to buy it for me."

'DON'T BE DUMB' He pointed to a similarly dressed teen ager lounging in the adjoining booth.

"Well, what about the police? Don't they check up on your "Aw, DBD, man. (Don't be guard their ashes, but by those dumb,) Them lousy bulls come in here every half hour, and when we see 'em coming we put down the cans till they leave. They the humanity of Lincoln than his can't touch ya, see?' I agreed and left him to get of his papers from 1865 to 1947. a better look at some of the occupants. As I walked around the Those who defend Roosevelt's back through the aisle that curfame from the possibility of ved around the dance floor, I fault are equally foolish. He saw a young man talking to a prided himself on his sense of teen ager in the last booth. They history. He wished it to rewere seated next to one another, member him well. As a collector and the fawning smile on the or hoarder for history, he saved face of the man could have not only papers and a forty-foot meant only one thing. I had iceboat, but items which he seen it before and had learned could not have felt would preto recognize it. They had their serve any impeccable portrait of arms around each other. I felt like retching on the floor right there in front of me. He industriously collected and As I stood there, a small cirpreserved the evidences of his cle of people gathered in front own human frailties - much of me in the back entrance, better than the energetic Hernwhile two youths paired off in don did after Lincoln's death. the middle of the circle. Suddenly the fight erupted like a And, as in the case of Lincoln, they will help make his idenhuman volcano, and immediatetification with the far from per- ly the crowds surged forward. fect people more complete -BETTER THAN TV The crowd broke up quickly is, of course, much too and went back to the booths and to measure Roosevelt's the dance floor, I. found out from one spectator that the greatness in terms of his polifights averaged one about every cies. He himself liked to quote fifteen minutes or so. His eyes Woodrow Wilson as saying to lit up eargerly, as he told me "Ninety-nine out of one there were more on Saturday hundred matters which appear night than during the week. He to you and me today as of vital always came down on Saturday administration policy will be completely overlooked by hisnight to watch the fights. Better than TV, I thought to myself. tory, and many other little Many of the girls standing on things which you and I pay but the edge of the dance floor were scant heed to will begin to be talked about one hundred years smoking with a false manner that gave away their age. After One thing about Roosevelt will a while, I found it becoming increasingly difficult to breathe, be remembered: He was the so after five minutes of fighting man whose boldness, extravathe packed aisles, I found mygant readiness with the counself on the street breathing in try's cash and easy fascination with fantastic ideas brought the clean night air. about the practical development No, this is no sermon. I'm of the power in nuclear physics. painting a picture, and you be Then Aprils are still too few the critic. Though there seems to fix the image of Roosevelt to be no small amount of conwhich will attend the already cern over the great increase in abvious long remembrance of juvenile delinquency, teen age Franklin Roosevelt. In many narcotics trade and sexual perways the future and not the version, places like this are alman will determine that. And lowed to exist in flagrant violacertainly in the complexity of tion of the law. his character, in both the play-It will take me a long time fulness and the implacability of to forget what I saw that night, his personality, in the petty It will probably take "public things to which he gave comspirited citizens" a still longer cern and in the great causes to time to wake up to reality. In which he devoted his life, there the meantime, dont be disturbed the headlines in your mornare materials for the making of many legends - or almost ing paper. Just remember . . . it's any legend - about him. all in good fun . . . sure.

to enter Life.

After a vigorous campaign, void of issues, popular Don Fowler is President of the student body, standing as somewhat of an under-

Although the Winston-Salem self-help student has been active as treasurer, he is better known for his other activities: this too reminds us of Eisenhower. And, like the White House's present occupant, Fowler drew supporters from both political parties. The student President's noncommital attitude, a common trait of all this spring's candidates, uses the gin for punch on Old also smacks of agreeable Ike.

1955. Those who would plot and rig behind swervingly to the rear. Perhaps they have not backward at the wrong time and became a pillar of salt. Their ignorance of that allergy may have tragic effect on the University's

Fowler, Meet Ike,

Then Go Your Way

But let this analogy go no further. Fowler is elected; he's capable and willing to work. We trust he'll not follow along in the shaky footsteps of Eisenhower, whose efforts to please everybody have made for everything but dynamic government.

Unlike lke, Don Fowler doesn't have to worry about a second term; he has no Knowlands or McCarthys to massage; and his problems-though great-are by no means of the Quemoy and Matsu seriousness.

With these advantages over the U.S. President, we hope Fowler can give student government the needed jab on the posterior to make it jump and leap with action. To stimulate activity in this vapid field of student life, the new-student President will have to cast popularity aside, leaving it to athletes and beauty queens. This is difficult to do.

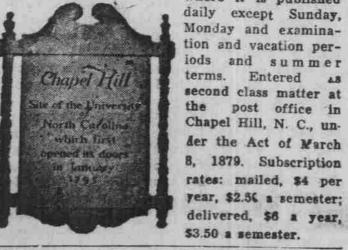

But perhaps with a reminder of student government's active past ringing in his presidential ears, Fowler can tackle the difficult task of doing what is necessary, rather than what is popular.

Dean Fred Weaver summed up the history of student government when he said that it was "technically a delegated authority, but as the record shows, it was an authority which had asserted itself, then proved itself, and then won recognition for itself: and with their close organization and fine esprit de corps the students were quick to defend it in time of attack."

The Daily Tar Heel hopes Don Fowler will drink deeply of these words and restore student government to its past glory. We wish you luck, Mr. President,

The official student publication of the Publieations Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published make St. Trinians Dry Gin, which they sell on the "outside" through the various questionable contacts of a nefarious "bootboy" named Flash, who wears his hat pulled down to his chin and his coast let down to his ankles. Miss Frittendon Girls' Dav.

St. Trinians girls are also adept at the ins and outs of bookmaking, booby traps, torture, financial knavery and the more violent forms of modern warfare. We hope the movie will come back so that more people will see What British Education is Really Like.

THAT SHOULD TAKE care of the other side of the Atlantic. On the other hand we have a couple of anecdotes to relate that give equally as good a picture of the steadily increasing debilitation of American school-chat with the Dean of Columbia tions in America which Roose-University Graduate School a velt attended seem today too few weeks ago, and during the deep-rooted to be related to a conversation he told (laughingly) of the student from a small college in northern Georgia who applied for admittance to Columbia grad school, claiming as accreditable academic work courses taken in hog calling, cattle judging and the saving of souls. This information is verifiable. Write Columbia for particulars.

Our other story, which occurred in the south, is the tale year-old son came home sadly defincient in knowledge of the multiplication table. The public school the boy was attending said, on being questioned, that the boy would learn the multiplication table the next year. So the next year, when the boy still didn't know what eight times eight was, the school, on further investigation acted rather surprised and said the boy should have learnt that the previous year. We know of one poor school teacher who looks yearningly every day at the luscious dandelions in his yard, wondering if they wouldn't just add a little something to his lunch. And we know of another teacher, an instructor in this University bent, who is steadily becoming misanthropic over the education situation in this country.

iels' essay interesting and timely on this week's anniversary of F.D.R.'s passing .- Ed-

HERBLOCK

BIRST THE MASH WETON POST CO

Ten years after his death on that warm April afternoon in 1945, all that is left of Franklin Roosevelt is off the main traveled roads. Much traffic which used to go by-and often stop at-the library, the home and the grave on the old Albany Post Road has been diverted to the Taconic Parkway to the east the New York Thruway and across the Hudson on the west. Not so many people come now as at the beginning of the decade when new grief was combined with the first relaxation of gas-rationing. Some like to see in that a sign that the man is almost as forgotten now as the gas-rationing-or the grief. And others are sure that so little real change has been made in the New Deal and the New Internationalism that they now seem less the policies of a man than the normal, fixed directions

We were honored by a short of America. Certainly the alteragrave only ten years old.

It does not seem to me ten years since that dark Thursday afternoon in April. Such periods always pass swiftly. It may help to compare it with another such decade after the death of another President who died in April at the end of another war in which the central question was wheather democracy could endure. Such a comparision, of course, cannot presume the approximation of Roosevelt's greatness to Lincoln's. It does point the similarities and the difference in two meaningful

American centuries. Certainly it must have seemed to those who spent it a very short, crowded time from the assassination of Lincoln (almost four score years to the day be-Roosevelt died) to the fore tenth year thereafter when with Lincoln's greatnest general in the White House, the divisive forces were already gathered to produce the fears of a new civil war over the bitterly contested Hayes-Tilden election the following year. TROOPS

Federal troops then where still quartered in the Southern and a person of more serious states to uphold Republican governments and some hoped to teach Yankee know-how to the recent rebels. Lincoln's last hope

ROOSEVELT ... too soon to know The three cut rule has come into town.

EVER HAD a quiz returned that looked as if the instructor had bled all over it? Of course you have -most students have a tendency to shoot the breeze on essay exams.

Many instructors scribble the correct answers in the margins of the quiz paper, but Mr. Geer of the Social Science Department has a remedy of rem edies. He stamps a big red bull in the middle of an answer that clearly shows no knowledge of the question asked. It makes you think twice before you loosen the hot air valve.

· * *

SINCE WE are on the subject of bulls and Social Science, I think I read somewhere that "A Papal Bull is a ferocious bull kept by the Pope to trample on the Protestants" and that the "Diet of Worms was a punishment under feudalism.

*

COMING BACK from the beach Monday night two coeds were wondering where they should tell their sorority sisters they stayed. Each girl was trying to remember the names of the ritzier hotels

"Let's tell them we stayed at the Ocean Forest, said one. "No, said the other, "I think one of the girls' sister owns that, and even if she doesn'tshe knows the person who does." "Oh Hell," said the first girl, "Let's just tell them we went to New York and stayed at the Waldorf. I know none of the girls own that."

- Reader's Retort -

More Plaudits For

Our Predecessor

Editor:

Your recent editorial, "Proceeding calmiy," with different quotation marks is one of the best summaries on the integration issue I have yet read in any newspaper. I wish that the annonymity of the editorial fraternity could be torn aside long enough for me to see a personal sketch of the writer. You are news, whether you realize it or not, for in that little piece of writing is history.

As a Southerner and the grandson of two Confederate veterans-one of whom saw the unpless antness through from beginning to end and the oth er only the beginning-I am aware that there are problems to integration. But there are no basis problems at Chapel Hill nor at the other state un versities. The Negroes who can make entrance quirements will average as cultured as the Whi students. Institutes of higher learning can be pill plants to show the way for the mass schools where if the racial populations are nearly equal, integr tion can make for ill feeling. I have always for that if integration at college level had preceeded secondary schools by five or ten years a great dea of valuable information could have been gathered

But the issue is joined and, as you say so graph cally, "the dog is no longer sleeping," You have met it with calm logic and I congratulate you most sincerely.

My son, Cornell Wright, has been sending me the Tar Heel for several months. It is a strikingly efficient newspaper.

ED YODER, LOUIS KRAAR Editors

year, $2.56 a semester:

delivered, $6 a year,

$3.50 a semester.