Are You Ugly?

Tomorrow's the last day for entries in Theta Chi Fraternity's annual Ugliest Man on Campus contest, according to a fraternity spokesman.

Photographs of entrants should be turned in to contest Chairman Fred West at the Theta Chi house, the spokesman said.

Makeup may be used to make the contestant uglier. The winner will be announced at the University Club Spring Carnival on Friday.

Training session for men fall orientation counselors will be held Tuesday at 7 p.m. in Carroll Hall auditorium.

Future Teachers of America will meet tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Peabody library.

Executive Council, Baptist Student Union, will meet at 6 p.m. Tuesday in the student lounge of the Baptist Church.

Westminster Fellowship will hold supper forum meeting tonight at the Hut at 6 o'clock. Supper will cost 50 cents; program will start at 7 p.m.

Young Democrats will meet Monday at 8:30 in Roland Parker three, GM, for election of officers.

Med Wives will meet at Library Tuesday at 8 p.m. to elect new officers.

The pulpits of the Chapel Hill Methodist and Presbyterian Churches will be filled this morning by two visiting educators who are here in connection with the conference on "The Christian Faith in Higher Education."

Dr. Kirtley Mather, Harvard University, will conduct services at the Baptist Church, and Dr. Hunter Blakely, former secretary of the Commission on Higher Education of the United States Presbyterian Church, will speak at the Presbyterian Church.

The Southeastern Chapter of the American Musicological Society will hold its monthly meeting in Hill Hall Monday at 8 p.m. President Phillip Nelson announced yesterday.

Nino Pirrotta, visiting professor of Musicology at Princeton, will give an illustrated lecture on "Commedia dell'Arte and Opera," to which the public is invited.

SIX SHOWS IN THE MILL:

The Planetarium: Work And Work

By BILLY ARTHUR

Morehead Planetarium technicians—plus the boss, advisors, secretary and the janitors—were about ready to go berserk.

After all, there is but one Planetarium instrument, only so many hours in the day, and only so little space behind the huge steel dome. And the Planetarium has six shows in the mill, four running and two warming up.

Therefore, it was no wonder when a question or suggestion was posed, it was met with the question, "Which show you referring to?"

The question, suggestion or critique could have applied to the current public and special offerings, "Steering By the Stars" and "Beyond the Solar System" respectively. Or, to a single-shot academic presentation, "The Astronomy of America," or to "Easter, the Awakening," the big spectacular spiritual production which was left intact after its closing for a special one-time showing to the Atlantic Coast Debate Council.

NEWS SHOWS

Too, the question, suggestion or critique could have been directed towards two new shows, which open May 23 and which are now in the planning stage that requires consultations of the staff, preparations of the script, devising special effects and manual labor.

Into the working of all six productions go the combined mental movements and manual labor of Manager Anthony F. Jenzano, Dr. M. S. Davis, a member of the UNC astronomy department and advisor to the Planetarium, and John T. Brittain, James Gates and R. L. McGhee, members of the technical staff.

Every Planetarium presentation requires a different setting of the great Zeiss instrument, plus scores of hidden projectors around the simulated horizon. And behind the dome are huge stage settings.

FRIDAY, APRIL 28

Let's single out Friday, April 28, when four entirely different shows were presented in the chamber. At 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. school children witnessed "Beyond the Solar System." For it, the 15-foot metal monster and a group of projectors were employed to present both little and well known and popular stellar objects and galaxies.

At 4:15 p.m. "Easter, The Awakening" was offered with an entirely different on the Planetarium instrument and a diverse group of projectors as well as a distinctly different script for the technicians who operate the sound and lighting effects.

At 5:30 p.m. the Zeiss projector was set again, this time turned back 570 years to the mediaeval period of Chaucer, and checked.

Still another set of sound and lighting cues was placed before the technicians for their execution without flaw.

At 8:30 p.m. "Steering By the Stars" required a fourth perfect setting of the instrument and another batch of cues for the technicians.

Four separate narrators had memorized the scripts and were working the Planetarium controls in the dark while speaking from the console.

Between shows Manager Jenzano and the technicians conferred and determined which of the Easter stages and projectors should come down first for speedy replacement for the forthcoming—and also different—production opening May 23.

Three other members of the staff were affected, too. One was Mrs. Nancy Holder, who must type the script as well as handle the Planetarium reservations. Whenever someone appeared at the ticket window, she had to remember to ask, "Which program do you want to see?"

Others were Hubert Robinson and George Davis, the custodians. They hardly had room and time between shows and rehearsals for regular maintenance.

April 28 was only one day, you rightly say. But remember, the Planetarium, except for three months in the summer, always has four shows "on the road"—two playing and two in the works.

The staff is not yet ready for a psychiatrist—unless one might be able to determine how it manages to go in four directions at once. And for how long.

Planners of the 1955 Freshman Camp will have a 1 p.m. luncheon meeting tomorrow, according to committee member Joe Clapp.

The luncheon will be held upstairs in Lenoir Hall. Scotty Hester, camp director, will preside. "Planning is rolling along in high gear now," Clapp said yesterday, "but anyone who is interested in helping with the camp is invited to attend the meeting."

No. 7 Wins Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 7 (U)—It was lucky seven today for Swaps the Kentucky Derby winner.

He carried No. 7 on his saddle cloth. The Derby was the seventh of the month. And to complete the chain Swaps paid $7.60 to win.

Baha'i Leader To Talk Here

Allen Bayer McDaniel, above, will speak at a public meeting tomorrow, sponsored by campus Baha'i students. McDaniel is a leader in the religious movement. Baha'i is an independent world religion revealed by Baha'u'llah, according to campus Baha'i leader Walter Wooten.

Honorary Initiation Set

The Order of the Old Well, which was founded on the premise that "too much service was being done in the University and too little recognition was forthcoming," will hold its initiation Tuesday afternoon.

According to President Don Geiger, the ceremony will commence at the Old Well at 3:45 p.m. with the annual picture.

The ceremony will then move into Gerrard Hall where Geiger and Dean of Awards Ernest Mackie will speak. The traditional signing of the Roll and the election of officers will follow.

New members will then be honored at a reception in Graham Memorial at 5 p.m.

"A major aim of the founders of the Order was to establish an honorary in which all subjective judgment of prospective members is eliminated." To do this the organization has devised a point system upon which they base all prospective "Neophytes." The point system is administered by an executive committee.

Mothers Of Year Honored

Chapel Hill's "Mothers of the Year" will be presented to the public today at 3 p.m. in the Carolina Theatre.

Prizes to the winning mothers will be presented by Crow Little, president of the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Merchants' Assn., sponsor of the "Mother of the Year" contest. Merchant Joe Robbins will emcee the presentation.

Plans have been made to broadcast the presentation directly from the theatre over radio station WCHL. In addition to the prizes to the winning mothers Robbins has announced that a pair of stockings will be presented, at a later date, to all the mothers who were entered.

The winning mothers are Mrs. Nell Justice, housemother of Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity, "Mom" Bizzel, housemother of Chi Omega Sorority, Mrs. Virginia Strauch of Glenwood School, Mrs. Constance Peace of Northside Elementary School and Mrs. Ben Grantham of Carrboro Elementary School.

Trophies will be presented to the fraternity, sorority, and schools of the winning mothers.

All mothers, regardless of whether they were contestants or not, will be admitted into the Chapel Hill theatres between 2 and 5 this afternoon.

Carl Sandburg, Rev. Henry To Talk At Commencement Exercises On June 4, 5, 6

Spring Carnival Friday

There is still time for interested groups to enter the annual University Club Spring Carnival, according to Vice-President Joe Clapp.

The carnival will be held next Friday. Present plans, said Clapp, include "everything from a night club to sponge-throwing contests to pitching pennies and other cunningly contrived games calculated to give the students a run for their prize money."

No duplication of exhibits will be allowed, said Clapp, but "there is plenty of room for some original concessions that should turn out to be real crowd-pleasers." Clapp said any fraternity, sorority or dormitory may enter the carnival for a fee of $4. All profits, he said, will be kept by organizations. Two organizations may co-sponsor a booth, he said.

Due to a state attorney general ruling against gambling, only games of skill will be "allowed and encouraged," according to Clapp. Beer, he said, can be given away only by certificate. Entries and fees may be sent to Miss Annette Niven, 211 Smith, or Clapp, 304 Grimes, before Tuesday.

Clapp called attention to a meeting of the University Club Tuesday night at 7:30 in Graham Memorial's Roland Parker 2. All organizations should be represented, he said.

Third Annual Putnam Prize Deadline Given

The third annual Putnam Prize, a $2,000 award offered by Putnam's Sons, will be open to all UNC undergraduate and graduate students for fiction or non-fiction work with an entry deadline of July 1, according to Miss Jessie Rehder of the English Department.

AUTHOR-POET SANDBURG... will address seniors

Fraternity Celebrates Centennial

The local chapter of Chi Psi Fraternity is celebrating its 100th anniversary this weekend. Plans for the occasion include a reunion of graduate brothers, with a luncheon, parties and buffet supper. Linn Garibaldi, president of the Western Carolina Telephone Co., and Vic Seixias, famed tennis champion, are among the returning alumni.

The Alpha Sigma chapter was founded on this campus by a small group which formerly called themselves the Sigm Gamma club. Chi Psi was the forth Greek letter fraternity to be established here. After a prosperous beginning, the organization became dormant due to the Civil War, in which 10 of the members were killed. The chapter was not active for 60 years following the war.

In April, 1923, a petition was again sent to the national organization, and soon thereafter, the present chapter was formed. The local Chi Psi group is remembered for its work to abolish hazing on the Carolina campus.

Carl Sandburg and the Right Reverend M. George Henry will be the featured speakers during UNC's 161st Commencement exercises, according to an announcement yesterday by Chancellor Robert House.

Sandburg, distinguished American author and poet who now resides near Flat Rock, will give the commencement address in Stadium on June 6 as the final event of the three-day program. Degrees in course will be conferred then in traditional ceremonies.

Bishop Henry, a native of Chapel Hill and graduate of the University in 1931, will deliver the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class in Memorial Hall on Sunday morning, June 5. He is the third bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Western North Carolina, residing in Asheville.

Commencement programs will get underway June 4 with a luncheon meeting of Library Science alumni at 1:30. In the afternoon an evening of the four classes of '47, '48, '49 and '50 will hold a reunion picnic-barbecue at Emerson Field, and at 9 o'clock there will be an open-air reception and musicale with members of the University Women's Club as hostesses at Kessinger Pool honoring seniors, their parents and other visitors.

Following the baccalaureate service June 5 there will be a dutch luncheon for seniors and parents in Lenoir Hall at which Dean of Student Affairs Fred Weaver will preside. Chancellor House will be the featured speaker.

Monday's program on June 6 will include the final meeting of the senior class, a faculty reception at Davie Poplar and the Alumni Luncheon in Lenoir Hall at 12:30 p.m. Associate Justice William H. Bobbitt, president of the Alumni Association, will preside at the Assembly of Old Grads.

Graduates in the Air Force and Navy ROTC programs will receive commissions in special exercises at 4 p.m. in the Forest Theater.

At the final graduation exercises those taking part in the program in addition to Sandburg include Charles H. Yarborough of Louisville, president of the senior class, Governor Luther Hodges, and President Gordon Gray. Presiding will be Chancellor Robert House.
