Grad Course To Be Given In Nursing

The University will be one of six Southern universities which will join with the Southern Regional Educational Board in putting into full operation next fall the nation's first regional program of graduate education in nursing.

Miss Lucille Spalding, professor of nursing, represents the University on the program's Board of Directors, who represent all the participating schools — University of Alabama, Emory University, University of Maryland, University of Texas, Vanderbilt University and UNC.

A grant of approximately $80,000 was given to UNC and each of the five other institutions during the past year to develop the master's degree program in nursing. Funds came from the W. K. Kellogg Foundation.

The Commonwealth Fund has also committed grants to each of the schools to provide fellowship for graduate students.

In addition the Commonwealth Fund granted $24,450 to the Southern Regional Education Board this spring to continue the seminars in which the universities plan the several graduate programs. The two foundations have committed a total of about $750,000 over a five-year period to launch the regional program.

Each school of nursing is establishing specializations which supplement what the other five

'Final Frolic' For Y

A "Final Frolic" for all coeds who are members of the campus YWCA will be held tomorrow at 5 p.m. in Battle Park.

After a picnic supper, the girls who attended the Centennial Convention in New York will give their reports and Y awards for the year will be presented.

Tickets, costing 50 cents, may be purchased at the Y office or from representatives in the dorms. In case of rain, the affair will be held in the Rendezvous Room.

Miss Marcia Smith is in charge of planning the picnic.

Fifth UNC Student Wins Fulbright Grant

A fifth UNC student has been awarded a Fulbright Scholarship for graduate study abroad during the 1955-1956 school year, Dr. Sturgis E. Leavitt, campus Fulbright program advisor announced yesterday.

James Edward Engel, graduate student from Harbor Beach, Mich., is the latest recipient of a grant for study at Georg-August University, Goettingen, Germany.

Four other students who recently received Fulbright Scholarships for the coming year are Thomas E. Wilgus, Washington, D. C.; Miss Velma E. Bourgeois, Baton Rouge, La.; Julian E. White, Jr., Richmond, Va., and Peter G. Kalogridis of Winter Haven, Fla. Engel, who has been working toward his doctorate in German, will begin his studies at Goettingen next fall after a two-week orientation course at Bonn. While there he will pursue his studies of German literature and Germanic linguistics, and carry out research on the medieval drama for use in his dissertation. A graduate of Catholic University in Washington, D. C., where he received his A. B. and M. A. degrees, Engel has studied also at Middlebury College. He

UNC Graduate Set To Preach

James Haney, a student at the Mt. Airy Seminary and a 1954 graduate of the University, will be guest preacher at this morning's service at the Holy Trinity Lutheran Church.

While at the University, Haney was elected to membership in Phi Alpha Theta, Phi Beta Kappa, the Order of the Golden Fleece and the Order of the Old Well. He was also president of the UNC Inter-Faith Council for two years and of the Lutheran Student Assn. for one year.

Demands Now Different On News-Royster

Changing times have put changing demands on the nation's newspapers if they are to continue to serve their readers properly and profitably, the North Carolina Editorial Writers Conference was told last night in its meeting here.

Vernon Royster, senior associate editor of The Wall Street Journal and a former Pulitzer Prize winner, said newspapers are losing their role as suppliers of quick headline news and as providers of entertainment for the family. He addressed the annual dinner at the Carolina Inn Ballroom.

The editorial writers, meeting here Friday night, heard a panel discussion on the South's approach to the desegregation question. The topic was discussed by William T. Polk, associate editor of The Greensboro Daily News; C. A. (Pete) McKnight, former editor of The Charlotte News and present editor of Southern School News and the Rev. Thomas T. Edwards, rector of St. Phillip's Episcopal Church in Durham.

The conference will close this morning, following a business session at which summaries of critiques will be given and election of officers will be held.

Saturday morning and afternoon sessions were devoted to editorial critiques, led by the following North Carolina newspapermen: Hal Tribble, The Charlotte Observer; Al Dickson, The Wilmington Star; Stanley Moore, The Morganton

Former President Truman Makes 'Firm Commitment' He'll Talk Here In 1956

Former President Harry Truman has definitely accepted an invitation to deliver the Weil Lectures on American citizenship on March 15, 16 and 17, 1956.

Truman wrote University President Gordon Gray: "I will make that a firm commitment, and no matter what happens, I won't let anything interfere with it — unless I break my neck or something equally as unavoidable."

Truman had originally agreed to deliver the lectures this spring, but was prevented from doing so.

In making the announcement, Prof. Alexander Heard, chairman of the University's Committee on Established Lectures at whose request President Gray extended the invitation, said Truman and the committee had agreed that detailed plans for the former president's visit to North Carolina would not be made until after January 1, 1956.

The Weil Lectures were endowed 40 years ago by the families of Henry and Sol Weil, prominent citizens of Goldsboro. The lectures last year were given by Galo Plaza, president of Ecuador from 1948 to 1952. The first lectures were given in 1914 by William Howard Taft, former president of the United States.

Lawn Concert Today

Today, weather permitting, the UNC Concert Band, under the direction of Herbert W. Fred, will present a lawn concert under Davie Poplar at 4:30 p.m.

In case of rain, the concert will be given in Hill Hall at the announced time.

Soloists for the evening will be Charles Culbreath, Fayetteville; Robert Brown, Wakefield R. I.; Eddie Bass, Farmville; Scotty Hester, Reidsville, and Roger McDuffie, Greensboro.

Selections to be played are as follows: "Liberty Bell March" — Sousa "Toccata" — Frescobaldi — Slocum "Pictures at an Exhibition" — Moussorgsky "Promenade"

Mangum Competition Set Monday

Monday morning will be the deadline for entries in the contest for the Mangum Award in oratory. The contest, sponsored by the Di Senate and the Phi Assembly, will be held at 8 p.m. Monday in Di Hall on the third floor of New West. It will be open to the public.

All seniors interested in competing for the award should submit their names to Dean E. L. Mackie's office, 312 South Building.

Speeches for the contest should be original oratory of 10 minutes length on any subject, according to a contest spokesman, adding that only three entries have been received so far.

The Mangum Award, established in 1878, is the oldest award of the University. It was founded by Misses Martha Person and Mary Sutherland Mangum, late of Orange County, in memory of the father, Willie Person Mangum, class of 1815. The award has been continued by descendants of Mangum.

The award, which is a gold medal, is awarded to the member of the senior class who in the opinion of a group of judges gives the most excellent oration in the contest.

"Tulleries" — Robert Brown

Pat Hunter Chosen Chairman Of University Dance Committee

Pat Hunter, junior from Charlotte, was recently elected chairman of the dance committee to replace retiring T. Kepley.

Other officers elected were Sandy Sanders, secretary; Ed Hennessee, head doorman, and Don Miller, court chairman. Coach Marvin Allen was appointed faculty adviser.

Members of the court are Pat McCormick, Van King, Ed McCurry, Johnny Medlin, Ken Oakley and Bob Mason.

Holdover members of the committee are McCormick, King, Medlin, Oakley, Don Kentop and Mebane Pritchett.

The complete committee will be filled out in elections next fall.

Fiddles, Not Footballs, Set For Kenan Pines

"Swing your pard-ner and promenade," and not "we want a touchdown," will be the sound echoing from Kenan Stadium here next month when the eighth annual North Carolina Folk Festival gets underway under a Carolina moon June 9.

As usual, George Pegram, the Iredell banjo-picker, will be on hand to entertain at the three-day event. Other well known entertainers who have been featured in past festivals and who will be on hand are J. Laurel John, the Georgia fiddler; Mrs. Freda English ballad singer, and Obay Ramsey banjoist, both of Madison County.

Bascom Lamar Lunsford of South Turkey Creek, director of the festival, has already set up headquarters in Chapel Hill and is busily engaged in completing final arrangements for this year's festival, which according to Lunsford, will be "by all odds the best yet."

The festival, sponsored by the N. C. Folklore Council, is under the direction of the UNC Extension Division, headed by Russell Grumman of Chapel Hill.

Approximately 650 contestants are expected to be entered in this year's festival, including string bands, ballad singers, and clog and square dancers from throughout North Carolina and other southern states.

Lunsford has been visiting public schools, colleges and community folklore groups in all parts of the State arranging for performers to appear in the annual event.

The mountain section will be represented also by Earl and Bill McElrath, clog dancers from Buncombe County; a number of dance teams, including the Allegany group from Sparta, headed by Homer Edwards; Mancho Sneed, Cherokee Indian fiddler, and Walter Parham, Buncombe harmonica player.

From the central part of North Carolina will come such groups as the Duplin County dance team; the Durham County Do-Se-Dos; the Foot and Fiddle Dancers from Alamance; the Wildcat Dancers from Orange, and the Scottish highlanders from Cumberland County.

String bands will include Ed Norwood and his band from Chat-
