Report Says Students Not Cooperating

A report issued yesterday by the UNC Buildings and Grounds Committee pointed up recent University construction, work planned for the future, plans for married students' housing—and also made the observation that there has been "an increasing lack of cooperation by the students in our beautification efforts."

"New seeding," said the report, "is trampled on, wires erected as reminders are pushed down, protective borders are sliced through, and despite an ample network of brick walks, lawns are becoming crisscrossed with foot paths."

The committee said it would "welcome help from any quarter" in causing students to become "more cooperative" in keeping the University's grounds "restful and pleasing."

The report covered the year April 1954-April 1955. It was signed by R. J. M. Hobbs, chairman of the Buildings and Grounds Committee.

Hobbs' report said detailed plans are being considered on the building of the Ackland Building, to be erected here to house an art gallery and home for the Art Dept.

GOVERNMENT

The contract for the new Institute of Government building was let "about the first of the year and construction is proceeding rapidly," said the report. "A bid more favorable than anticipated permits the inclusion of an auditorium which it had been feared would have to be omitted," the report said.

An extension of the Utilities Building on Franklin St., which houses the University Laundry, Chapel Hill Telephone Co., and other utilities, was approved at a recent meeting, the report said. The building is being extended on the back side.

"The past year witnessed the completion of the psychiatric wing of the hospital and of the remodeled 'Old Well,'" said the report. "Minor improvements include some stone steps leading off the driveway of the (Carolina) Inn, the razing of a metal shed back of Carroll Hall, landscaping around Venable Hall and the Naval Armory, additional brick walks and new steps at the north end of Graham Memorial."

"Another matter which has claimed the attention of the committee has been the selection of possible sites for additional dormitories and housing for married students."

Yack Meeting

An important organizational meeting is slated this afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Yackety Yack office in Graham Memorial. Editor Jack Markham has requested that all members of this year's staff who are interested in working on next year's book be present, plus any other interested persons.

The Library's Friends Elect 3 New Officers

The Friends of the Library elected three new officers at the annual business meeting of the organization held at the Carolina Inn Friday.

Chosen were George M. Stephens, Asheville, chairman; Miss Cornelia S. Love, Chapel Hill, vice-chairman; Dr. Andrew H. Horn, Chapel Hill, secretary.

Stephens replaced Dr. L. R. Wilson, who had asked that he not be reelected. Dr. Wilson, for University Librarian, had been chairman of the group for the past 10 years and had seen the membership grow from 135 to 435.

Miss Love replaced Collier Cobb Jr. of Chapel Hill and Dr. Horn, present University Librarian, replaced Charles E. Rush of Chapel Hill, who was University Librarian until he was succeeded last year by Dr. Horn.

Carnival: From Garters To Golf Balls

Carolina students "flushed" pretty coeds down a sliding board, tried to throw garters on sorority girls' legs, placed bets on a real rat race and saw the "Ugliest Man on Campus" crowned last night.

The occasion was the annual University Club Spring Carnival. Winner of the ugly man competition was Oscar B. Eckhoff, senior from Charlotte.

The carnival featured games of skill, ranging from "throwing" games to "chipping" a golf ball. In most cases the prizes were certificates for beer at a downtown saloon.

Mail Courses Being Offered This Summer

Correspondence courses, with degree and quality point credit, are being offered to students not desiring to attend summer school.

According to Miss Mary E. Henry, head of the Bureau of Correspondence Instruction, the University offers more than 100 correspondence courses for degree and quality point credit. Any student may enroll, providing he is not attending regular university classes. Enrollment should be made at the time the student wishes to begin work on the courses.

The assignments will be sent the student at his convenience providing that there are no more than four during a seven-day period. Students may not complete the work in less than seven weeks nor more than 13 months. "Two courses may be taken at one time," according to Miss Henry.

Students interrupting their education to enter the armed forces may take correspondence courses to acquire college credit. They may earn as many as 30 hours of credit following this program.

For complete information regarding correspondence courses contact the Bureau of Correspondence Instruction in Abernethy Hall. Enrollment for courses this summer will begin on May 23, after classes are completed.

for reelection this year are Jonathan Daniels of Raleigh, and Archibald Henderson of Chapel Hill. Officers who were reelected were John Sprunt Hill, Durham, honorary chairman; Mrs. Lyman Cotten, Chapel Hill, honorary secretary; Claude E. Teague, Chapel Hill, treasurer; and C. P. Spruill Jr., Chapel Hill, member of the executive committee.

Life memberships in the Friends of the Library were voted to Collier Cobb Jr., and Lindsay C. Warren, former Comptroller General of the United States for 14 years and now a resident of Washington, D. C. Persons who contribute $1,000 in cash or materials to the library are made life members.

Dr. Horn announced that gifts from members of the Friends totaled during the past year: 13,790 books, 44 prints and pictures, 11 broadsides, 22 single autographed letters and documents, and five

MET BARITONE MCFERRIN to give final Tuesday concert tonight

Metropolitan Opera's McFerrin Sings At 8

Robert McFerrin, American baritone, will give the final concert of the Tuesday Evening Series in Hill Hall tonight at 8 p.m.

The Graham Memorial Student Entertainment Program will co-sponsor the event, along with the Tuesday concert series, given by the Music Dept. throughout the year.

McFerrin, who made his debut with the Metropolitan Opera in January as the second Negro to appear there during its 70-year history, will present selections from such composers as Handel, Brahms, Verdi, Ravel, J. J. Niles and Purcell, as well as Negro spirituals.

A native of Marianna, Ark., McFerrin has had a varied career, singing with the New England Opera Co., appearing in Tanglewood operatic productions directed by Boris Goldovsky, with the National Opera Company in Washington.

In St. Louis, where he attended high school, the young baritone was a soloist with the Temple Israel Choir, and later in New York, sang in the St. Mark's Methodist Church Choir. In addition to concertizing in this country, he spent

'55 Graduates Scheduled For Meet Thursday

A meeting of all candidates for degrees in the coming commencement will be held Thursday at 4:14 p.m. in Memorial Hall, according to an announcement made yesterday by Professor J. C. Lyons, faculty commencement marshal.

Professor Lyons said that all phases of the graduation ceremonies will be explained to the candidates, such as how to wear caps and gowns and all details concerning assembling for baccalaureate and commencement services. He added that all questions will be answered.

Professor Lyons said that it is very important that all candidates attend the meeting. He asked that any candidates unable to attend the meeting get the information from someone who attended.

Kuralt Gets Award

Competition for the annual Willie P. Mangum oratorical medal was held last night in Di Hall. Charles Kuralt was the winner with a speech entitled "The Sonic Solution." Rollie Tillman placed second with a speech entitled "The Threatening Trend."

Executive Trustee Board Votes To Raise Tuition For Out-Of-State Students

RALEIGH, May 16. (AP)—The Executive Committee of the University of North Carolina Board of Trustees was told today that applications from five Negroes to enter the University as undergraduates have recently been rejected.

Gordon Gray, president of the Consolidated University, revealed the information in a brief report. He said the applications were rejected in accordance with trustee policy that Negro students are eligible for admission only to graduate and professional schools, and then only when similar facilities are not available in the state for the Negro race.

The applications were from Negroes living in North Carolina, and all were for admission at the University at Chapel Hill.

The Executive Committee voted to recommend to the full Board of Trustees that it raise University tuition for non-resident students in line with recommendations of the General Assembly's Joint Appropriations Subcommittee. The Legislature embodied the subcommittee's report in the state budget for the next biennium.

The trustees also went along with the subcommittee action in voting to exempt from the tuition raise all non-resident students whose education is being subsidized by scholarships, financial awards and grants-in-aid.

The full board will meet to act on the recommendation and other matters on May 23. If it is approved, the tuition action will increase non-resident charges from $360 to $500 per year.

The Executive Committee also approved (1) The establishment and charter of a pulp and paper foundation at North Carolina State College, and (2) The consolidation of the Dept. of Chemical Engineering and the Dept. of Diesel and Internal Combustion Engineering at State College.

Credit Courses In TV Slated For Chapel Hill

Credit courses in educational television have been planned for all three branches of the Consolidated University, according to Robert Schenkkan, director of WUNC-TV operations here.

Schenkkan's statement yesterday came on the heels of an announcement from Raleigh that State College WUNC-TV will offer college credit courses in solid geometry and home floriculture next month.

Asked whether the new courses had anything to do with a recent wave of resignations at WUNC-TV, Director Schenkkan said "our budget was drastically cut. Someone was bound to get hurt; someone to get sore. It could not be helped. We are doing our best." State College's two courses will carry two semester hours' credit each for televiewers and will be televised from 7 to 7:30 p.m. Both programs will originate from Raleigh.

Schenkkan said two programs, as yet unnamed, are being planned for Chapel Hill. The shows are scheduled to start about June 6.

Several Chapel Hill educational television staffers have left the operations in recent weeks. The General Assembly's budget cut and unfulfilled promises were mentioned as reasons for quitting.

Schenkkan said he didn't know whether television courses would give Carolina students academic credit.

Church Group Votes For Admitting Negroes

A resolution affirming the "belief that the applications of Negro students for admission to UNC should be considered equally with other applications, and dealt with on the basis of qualification, regardless of race" has been accepted by a majority vote at the meeting of the Westminster Fellowship.

The resolution, which was proposed by the Christian Action Commission of the Fellowship, also stated the group's belief "that every effort should be made to make all students feel accepted in this academic community, and that this Westminster Fellowship is open to all students who through worship, study and action would here seek to come to a deeper faith in Jesus Christ our Lord and would find the relevance of the Christian faith for their lives."

According to a statement made by Miss Martha Cannon, chairman of the Christian Action Commission, the resolution specifically concerned the recent refusal of undergraduate admission to the three Negro high school students to UNC.

According to the group's resolution, the Presbyterian Church went on record as affirming that segregation of the races is not in harmony with Christian principles and ethics in 1954.

Yacks Slated To Be Issued This Week

The 1955 Yackety Yacks will be given out down the stairs in back of Graham Memorial through the window of the Rendezvous Room tomorrow from 1 until 6 p.m. and on Thursday from 1 until 6 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m.

Students who have attended only one semester of school this year must pay $2.50 to receive a Yack.

Editors of the book announced yesterday that Yacks will be issued only on the days indicated and have requested that students come early to avoid confusion.

Honorary Presents Its Awards

The Order of the Grail, an organization which was established to help better the relations between fraternity and non-fraternity men, last night announced winners of its annual awards.

According to Delegata Ed McCurry, these awards are given to the students, faculty or administrative member of the University who has given a service or a contribution to the campus or the welfare of the student body. This is done to recognize the high quality of leadership or scholarship or some kind of individual merit.

The recipients of this year's awards are Hoyle L. Robinson, Elerbe, the award for the freshman self-help student with the highest scholastic average; Cecil E. Cowan, Morgantown, the award for the senior self-help student with the highest scholastic average; Charles Yarborough, Louisville, the senior most active in student government with the highest scholastic average, and Paul Likins, Elkhart, Ind., the senior most active in athletics with the highest scholastic average.

Yarborough was president of his sophomore and senior class. He served in the student Legislature on the High School Honor System Committee. He was also elected to membership in the Order of the Old Well, the Order of the Golden Fleece and Phi Beta Kappa.

Likins, one of the co-captains of this year's basketball team, was also elected to membership in the Order of the Old Well, the Order of the Golden Fleece and Phi Beta Kappa. He served as president of Phi Beta Kappa this year. Likins has also been a member of the Monogram Club for four years.

The awards were presented in the Grail Room at 6:30 last night. The Grail was established as a service organization, and each year they sell senior invitations and class rings. With the proceeds of these sales they award scholarships each year to students in financial need.

A survey of student opinion concerning new dormitories will be presented to the administration Committee on Student Affairs Thursday.

The new residences will be built if a bill, authorizing the Board of Trustees to issue revenue bonds, is passed by the General Assembly. Action on the bill is expected this week.

Jack Hudson, chairman of the Interdormitory Council's Dorm Improvements Committee and member of the student Legislature, asked yesterday that students inform him of their opinions on the dorms and the facilities which would be built with the money from the bond issue so that he will be able to present the students' opinions to the committee on Thursday. He asked that students contact him in 212 Alexander, at the IDC office or send their ideas to The Daily Tar Heel.

Hudson said J. S. Bennett, director of operations for the University, has listed four possibilities for the dorms which could be built with the money. The first, according to Hudson, would be a men's dorm in the area of the North Carolina Memorial Hospital. Hudson said such a dorm would be for medical, dental and public health students and would drain them from the other dorm districts. He added that it would possibly take the medical students out of Whitehead.

The second possibility mentioned by Bennett, according to Hudson, would be another large men's dorm like Cobb. He said that such a dorm would be located near Cobb. Hudson added that a new dorm of this type possibly would be partitioned off like Old East and Old West.

A women's dorm to be built in the area between Melver and Alderman was the third possibility mentioned by Bennett, according to Hudson.

A women's dorm in Battle Park was the fourth possibility for the new dorm, according to Hudson.

Hudson said if a women's dorm were built, Carr and Smith would probably be turned back to men's dorms.

Hudson also asked that students give him their opinions on the inside facilities which the new dorms would have. Among the possibilities he mentioned were soundproof rooms, floors made of rubber asphalt tile and fluorescent lighting.

He asked that students inform him of their ideas concerning dimensions and facilities in social and study rooms for the dorms. He also asked for student opinion on the possibility of having a faculty apartment included if the dorm were one similar to Cobb. He said that such an apartment would house one faculty couple. Hudson said such a setup exists at State College in Raleigh and added that, according to Dean of Student Affairs there, they have the best government and living conditions on campus.

Among other possibilities mentioned by Hudson were dressers built into the walls of the room and towel racks in the rooms.

He asked that students inform him of their opinions on these suggestions and any ideas which they have so that he may present them to the committee on Thursday.

Alpha Phi Omega Sets Regular Meet Tonight

Alpha Phi Omega will hold its regular meeting tonight at 7 o'clock in the APO room in GM. All members have been urged to attend the meeting, as it is the last of the Rho chapter.
