

BISHOP'S BUNK

By Wayne Bishop

In the next few years, at the present rate of participation, the Atlantic Coast Conference should be recognized around the globe as the strongest collegiate conference between the oceans.

The eight school loop broke away from the old Southern Conference in the United States. The Southern Conference had just held a strong conference due to the widespread area of the schools that were members.

The most powerful seven members of the league, which included North Carolina, Maryland, Clemson, and South Carolina, departed from the Southern and took to the University of Virginia to complete the new league.

When the eight schools have proved their strength in nearly all of the eight team championships last school year, five schools won titles. The conference has proved its all-around strength with no team actually dominating the conference.

HEELS WIN MORE GAMES: This season the North Carolina Tar Heels won more games and more titles than any other school. Jimmy Beatty won the individual title, although Maryland won the team championship.

Carolina did win the outdoor and indoor track titles, and the individual tennis titles. Besides the team tennis trophy, Bradford of UNC took the singles title; then teamed with Greene to win the doubles championship.

This season the Tar Heels are hoping to add a few more titles to their list. The title most Tar Heel supporters are looking for is the football championship. Although Coach Frank McGuire will coach the sophomores in his line-up, they have been ranked as the ACC's top team. But so have Duke, Wake Forest, Maryland and State been rated in that class. Anyway, the basketball season should be filled with thrills.

AND ENDS: Carolina and the State Wolfpack meet Saturday afternoon at Chapel Hill, in one of the state's top games. Both teams are improved this year when the Tar Heels won 20-6. Neither school has had a winning season since 1950, when the Wolfpack had a 5-4-1 mark.

State's last winning season was 1949, Charlie Justice's final year, when they racked up a 7-4 record. State hasn't beaten the Tar Heels since 1942.

State reports that All-America basketball center Ronnie Jordan from Denver, Colorado, has been awarded the Popscholarship. Shavlik will receive $1,000 for the scholarship.

Averaged 22.1 points per game last year in leading the Wolfpack to the Atlantic Coast Conference and Dixie Classic champion. This year Shavlik and his Wolfpack mates will play host to the Olympic team in two games. The first tilt is in Charlotte on Oct. 7, and the second is in Raleigh December 8.

Jordan, new track and cross-country coach at Wake Forest, will coach a seven-man squad out for cross-country this season. Jordan led up a seven-meet schedule for the year. The Baptist school won their cross-country team last year, after not having one since 1938.

Clement, former University of North Carolina football star, will coach the freshman team at N. C. State this year. Clement was a star halfback during the Justice era at Carolina.

Tatum Gives Reason

LEGE PARK, Md., Sept. 27 (AP)—Jim Tatum said today that he is aware his Maryland football team's offense isn't "so hot" and he doesn't expect it to be better for Baylor Saturday.

Reasons it has scored only 10 touchdowns against Missouri and one on UCLA are that he has a defense more at the start of the season and because he had to make so many adjustments in the fullback hole, Tatum said.

Selep, slated to be the fullback, turned up with torn knee ligaments the first day of fall practice. In order to get two halfbacks, Fred Hamilton and Phil Perlo ready to take over, Tatum said he had to limit his offense.

He explained: "For instance, we haven't passed enough to develop a real aerial attack. This is proved by the fact that of two fine ends, Bill Walker has caught only one pass and Russell Dennis none.

"We've been tremendously fortunate to get as far as we have with such a limited offense.

Allen Boasts Promising Soccer Team

Cal Lane Captains Improved Booters

By ALBERT GOLDSMITH

With three weeks of practice under their belts the University of North Carolina soccer team is shaping into a squad that could bring the ACC soccer crown to Chapel Hill.

Runners-up in the highly competitive Atlantic Coast Conference Soccer race last season, the Tar Heels under the direction of Coach Marvin Allen possess the men and skill to make it first place instead of second place this year.

"We've got more speed and skill than we had last year and we should be a much better team," stated Coach Allen in Woolen Gym Monday. "We've got a lot of good boys but we also have a rough schedule," added Allen.

TOUGH SLATE Their schedule isn't what could be called an easy one. In ACC competition the UNC booters face N. C. State, Virginia, Duke, and Maryland. In non-conference play they face such soccer powers as Roanoke and Washington and Lee.

The slate opens here October 11 as they meet N. C. State. Allen has a promising group of players out this year. He cited Calvin Lane the captain for the season who is coming along well despite a broken leg he received last year. Also mentioned were Peter Cothran, Grover Brown, Joe Mavretic, and sophomores Bill Blair, and Charles Covill. For the important positions of goalies, the soccer coach mentioned Chuck Hartman and John Foster as the leading contenders for that spot. SOCCER NEGLECTED SPORT In talking about the game of soccer Allen called it one of our neglected sports. "In every country except the United States soccer is the major sport. It's called football outside of our country though," he added. "Soccer is a game in which the smaller fellow can play along with the bigger man. He went on to say that, although individual play is very important, the game requires much teamwork."

The UNC soccer season begins October 11 and continues through November 18. It includes 5 home games and 3 out of town games.

The 1955 UNC Soccer schedule: October 11, N. C. State at Chapel Hill; October 17, Virginia at Charlottesville, Va.; October 21, Maryland at Chapel Hill; November 1, Duke at Durham; November 4, N. C. State at Raleigh; November 8, Washington and Lee at Chapel Hill; November 14, Roanoke at Chapel Hill; November 18, Duke at Chapel Hill.

Burke Honored For Penn Play RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 26 (AP)—Virginia Tech's Leo Burke, who led the Gobblers to a 33-0 football triumph over Pennsylvania, today was named the Southern Conference player of the week by the league's Sportswriters Assn.

Burke, who divided time for three seasons as a halfback or fullback, became the Gobblers' starting quarterback Saturday when Billy Granwell, the regular signal-caller, was sidelined with a twisted ankle.

The Hagerstown, Md. senior scored the Gobblers' first three touchdowns and turned what had been expected to be a close game into a rout.

Others nominated in the first weekly poll: Richmond's Tommy Theodose, who completed 8 of 17 passes against West Virginia and directed both Spider touchdowns.

West Virginia's Mickey Trimarki, a sophomore quarterback, who threw a scoring pass, scored once himself and led the mountaineers to their 33-12 victory over Richmond.

The Citadel's Bobby Schwarze, a transfer from West Point, who scored one touchdown and directed the Bulldogs' 26-18 opening triumph over Elon.

Furman's Johnny Popson, the lone bright spot in Army's 81-0 whiplashing of the Hurricane. Popson came the closest of any Furman player to scoring, dashing off a 65-yard punt return which was nullified by a penalty.

Mickey Mantle Might Miss World Series Opener Tomorrow

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Sept. 27 (AP)—Mickey Mantle remained a doubtful starter and the weatherman predicted a "chance of showers" for tomorrow's opening game of the sixth New York Yankee-Brooklyn Dodger World Series at Yankee Stadium.

Despite a gloomy statement from Mantle that he was "not hopeful of playing in the series—at least in the first game or two at the stadium"—the Yanks remained a strong 13 to 10 favorite in man-to-man betting to take the best-of-seven set. The opening game price was 6 to 5 with the Yanks favored.

Mantle tested his injured right leg in a brief workout at Ebbets Field today. "It doesn't affect my hitting at all," he said, "but it hurts when I try to run."

Manager Casey Stengel wasn't present at the Yank workout in the enemy park but he has indicated he would use Irv Noren, a left-handed hitter, in center field if the switch-hitting Mantle were unavailable. Elston Howard probably will be in left, and Phil Rizuto at short, the other doubtful positions.

Stengel didn't attend the workout because he was to meet with Commissioner Ford Frick, Brooklyn Manager Walter Alston and the umpires in a review of series regulations. Alston, whose Dodgers worked out in early afternoon at Yankee Stadium, was able to double up.

The weatherman may have a final say on this first game. He forecast a chance of showers but also observed that the rain might drift north of New York and also might come in the morning, too early to interfere with the game, scheduled for noon (EST).

In the event of a postponement, the entire schedule would be pushed back with No. 1 tickets good for Thursday at the Stadium. Commissioner Frick would make the decision of any postponement after a conference with officials of the home club, the Yanks in this instance.

Carl Furillo, Dodger right fielder, missed his second straight workout, due to a head cold and a touch of sinus. However, the club doctor has assured Alston that Furillo will be ready to play in the opener. Except for Clem Labine, the relief pitcher, who had a "slight touch of virus," the Dodgers were healthy. Labine practiced and said he'd be ready.

Whitey Ford (18-7), a chunky lefthander, works the opener for the Yanks against Don Newcombe (20-5), the jumbo, Negro right-hander who won 10 games in the spring before losing. The Yanks will use Tommy Byrne (16-5), another lefty, against Billy Loes (10-4), a second straight right-hander, in the second game.

Net work radio (Mutual) and television (NBC) will carry the games from coast to coast each day, starting 15 minutes before game time.
