

BISHOP'S BUNK

By Wayne Bishop

Line meets a fired-up State team this afternoon in a game that should surprise a lot of Carolina hopefuls. On the other hand, the Tar Heels just could find the right material to defeat their neighbors. That is a big might, however.

Wolfpack have been pointing toward this Carolina game, probably want to win it more than any other game on their schedule. Thirteen long years now, the Pack have had to sit back and watch Carolina football teams breeze over them. Sure, Everett Case's team got back a few of those victories, but now that domination is gone since the arrival of Frank McGuire and the Tar Heels, they still beat the Pack.

Points from State have it that the Wolfpack are really hungry for the Tar Heels. In fact the Pack may have been looking ahead to this game, when they let Duke run over them. State obviously plays its best brand of ball last Saturday, and can be expected to back today.

ATTACKS STRONG:

Both teams may employ a wide-open passing attack in an effort to win. Coach George Barclay has already said he planned to throw the ball more than he did against Oklahoma. The Tar Heels did not have much of a chance to pass in that game, they were backed up in their own territory every time they were tackled. Tomorrow the Barclay clan hopes they can unleash a passing attack on the ground and in the air.

State has Eddie West, a fine-tossing quarterback. West passed for 100 yards in the ACC several seasons ago, and could snap back in form at any time. Dick Hunter, a reserve halfback who has led the touchdown drive against Duke, is a top-flight passer. He probably will get to throw the ball a lot in today's clash. Little Spender, has completed three of three tries so far this season.

DOES GOT HOME SERIES:

Earle Edwards arrived on the State campus last year, he is a point clear. He said, "I want a home and home series with Carolina." In the past all the game had been played in Raleigh, because of the larger seating capacity. The arrangement had effect on the State players that got worse and worse. Now the State folks have the home and home series back, and they want to start it with a victory.

Carolina fans, the State game has been the breath on the fan's face. In view of the attitude of the State people toward the game, well develop the other way, however. The State folks want this game, and Carolina is going to have to want the win more to

Cross-Country Squad Races State Today

By LARRY CHEEK

Country teams from Carolina and State will kick off their consolidated university meet this morning when they meet in a meet beginning at 10 o'clock. It will be the first of the season for the teams.

Runners from the two teams will start their race at 10 o'clock. The varsity engagement will begin immediately.

State has established a record in the Wolfpack will be a 30 game win streak on the State team, coached by Perr and Jim Little has defeated in dual meets straight years.

Coach Ranson will also be counting on his other co-captain, senior Glenn Nanne, and his ace sophomore, Everett Whalley, for good performances.

Tar Heels Meet Wolfpack In Raleigh

Stavnitski, Llewellyn May Play If Needed; Can't Start

By WAYNE BISHOP

North Carolina and North Carolina State, two perennial rivals in any sport, meet this afternoon in Riddick Stadium at Raleigh for the first time in 13 years with both teams seeking their first pigskin win of the young 1955 season.

The last eight gridiron meetings between the two schools have been played in Kenan Stadium at Chapel Hill, with the Tar Heels winning all eight. The last time the sister institutions played in Raleigh, the Wolfpack emerged the winner 21-14.

Coach George Barclay's Tar Heels have been established a seven point favorite for the contest. In their only game this season Carolina dropped a tight 13-6 decision to the powerful Oklahoma Sooners. State lost to Florida State 7-0, and was mauled 33-7 by Duke.

INJURIES HURT TEAMS

Both teams are experiencing manpower shortages at center due to injuries. Carolina's first team center, George Stavnitski, and second-line pivotman, Jack Llewellyn, are both hampered by injured knees. State's leading reserve at center, Allen Henery, will miss the game.

Trainer Doc White disclosed yesterday that Llewellyn and Stavnitski both have improved in the last few days. Doc White said both will be able to play if it is necessary, but he hopes the Tar Heels can get by without them. Jim Jones, sophomore center from Greensboro, will move into the starting post at center.

TAR HEELS MIGHT THROW

The Tar Heels are expected to get a better view on their offense today. Oklahoma had the Tar Heels bottled up last week, and the Carolina quarterbacks did not have much of a chance to show their stuff. Both Dave Reed and Buddy Sasser, the two soph signal callers, are expected to be ready to throw some passes today. Coach Barclay announced, "We definitely plan to throw more than we did last week."

State has a sophomore backfield that is expected to prove a big boost against the Tar Heels. Besides the regular first team backfield, Coach Earle Edwards has an all-sophomore group that has looked particularly impressive. The sophs moved 80 yards against Duke

GEORGE MAY PLAY

George Stavnitski, ACC candidate at center, has been sidelined since the Oklahoma game due to a knee injury. Stav will not be able to start in today's game with State, but he will be available for use in a necessity.

to score Saturday night, after the regulars had been held scoreless all night.

That backfield has Tom Katich at quarterback, Dick Christy and Dick Hunter at halfbacks, and Tony Guerrieri providing the power.

Both teams have a set of speedy backs. Carolina prides halfbacks Ken Keller and Ed Sutton, who can go for the big run at any time. Both boys were held in check by the big Oklahoma line, but are capable of breaking away at any time. State has George Marinkov and John Zubaty, two top speed-merchants.

The Tar Heels enter the game a slight weight advantage over the Pack. Barclay's boys have an average of 209 pounds in the line, against State's 196. The State backfield averages 185 to Carolina's 181.

Varsity Swimmers Meet

Bob Colbert, manager of the UNC swimming team, announces that there will be a meeting of all varsity swimming candidates tomorrow night at 7:15 p.m. in room 304 of Woollen Gym.

Anyone interested in swimming is requested to attend Colbert stated that previous experience is unnecessary.

PODRESHURLES WIN

Dodgers Stomp Yanks In Comeback Attempt

By TED SMITS

BROOKLYN, Sept. 30 (AP)—Johnny Podres, sweat dripping from his face, said today after his sparkling World Series victory on his 23rd birthday that his change-up pitch was the best it had been all year.

"My best pitches were my fast ball and the change-up—and the change-up was exceptional. I mixed 'em up quite a bit," he said in a low voice in the jubilant Dodger dressing room after the Yankees had been put down 8-3.

"I was a bit tired at the end, but I had enough left."

Manager Walt Aison, not smiling much more than he did after losing two games in Yankee Stadium, admitted that "We looked like we are supposed to look."

Tomorrow he will send Carl Erskine against the New York team. He declined to speculate on who might pitch Sunday, although the obvious choice would seem to be his big righthander, Don Newcombe.

Podres had not pitched a complete game since June 14, and it was obvious Aison was more than worried during the later innings. He kept his bullpen active despite the big margin.

"I was a little worried about him going all the way, since it has been such a long time since he has done it, but he went all right," said Aison.

"He came back real good against Cerv in the seventh."

That's another way of saying Podres struck out Bob Cerv for the third time in the afternoon, right after pinch hitter Andy Carey had tripled.

Aison confessed that Erskine,

Guard Bill Koman and end Will Frye lead the Tar Heel line-men. Both were praised in the leading state newspapers for their play against Oklahoma. Other Carolina starters are end Buddy Payne, tackles Jack Maultsby and John Billich, guard Hap Setzer, center Jim Jones, and fullback Don Lear.

Plenty of sophomores are again in the starting eleven. Sasser, Jones, Setzer, and Payne are all second-year men. Others expected to see a lot of action are fullback Giles Gaca, halfbacks Howard Williams and Larry McMullen, quarterback Dave Reed, end Charles Robinson, tackles Tom Maultsby and captain Roland Perdue, guard Jack Lineberger, and center Leonard Rhyne.

Important Matches Set This Weekend In College Football

For at least a couple of hours today the World Series will have to share the attention of sports fans with the kind of football games that will be hogging the headlines from now until December.

College football, which has virtually eliminated early-season warmup games, goes into the first Saturday in October with a schedule packed with important conference and intersectional games. A lot of the big teams have to win today to stay in contention for sectional or national titles.

Perhaps in deference to baseball, two of the big ones were set up so they wouldn't conflict with the fourth Series clash. The all-important meeting between Maryland and Baylor is a night game, while the late-starting Ohio State-Stanford is the national televised game of the week.

Maryland, the nation's No. 1 team in the weekly Associated Press poll following its victory over UCLA, can't afford a letdown against George Sauer's pass-minded Baylor Bears. Neither can Ohio State's Rose Bowl champions, rated eighth after a close one against Nebraska.

Although the program is loaded with intersectional games that may have a bearing on the national ranking, decisive games are scheduled in several of the major conferences.

For instance, Michigan, the Big Ten favorite, takes on always-dangerous Michigan State, Wisconsin and Iowa, two of the top contenders in that powerful loop, come together; and Purdue tackles Minnesota. Michigan is ranked second in this week's nation poll. Colorado and Kansas meet in an important Big Seven Conference game and in the Southwest Conference favored Texas Christian invades Fayetteville, Ark., to play defending champion Arkansas.

UCLA, which dropped to seventh in the ratings, is a strong favorite over badly beaten Washington State but needs the conference victory. In the South, the Auburn-Florida and William and Mary-Virginia Tech games may have some bearing on title races. The big Southern games are third-ranked Georgia Tech's clash with Southern Methodist and the interconference duel between Duke and Tennessee.

Notre Dame, up in fourth place after a smashing victory over SMU, bumps into Indiana. Oklahoma, the No. 5 team, takes on an Eastern toughie, Pittsburgh, and injury-shattered Army No. 6 faces another of the East's top teams' Penn State.

Some of the other interesting intersectional games are South Carolina-Navy, Tulane-Northwestern, Rice-Louisiana State, Kentucky-Villanova, Missouri-Utah, Marquette-Tulsa, Arizona-Idaho and California-Pennsylvania.
