

FIRST ONE'S TONIGHT

Petites Musicales To Offer Informality And Good Music

The accent of Petites Musicales is "on comfortable listening in pleasant surroundings," according to Chairman John Ludwig, who's in charge of presenting the free concerts.

The first Musicale will be held this evening at 8 o'clock in the main lounge of Graham Memorial.

John Parker, UNC student from Chapel Hill, and Miss Margaret (Mike) Underwood, a UNC graduate, will offer ballads. Parker will accompany on the guitar.

Currently a sophomore, Parker is well-versed in English ballads and has done considerable research in preparing an anthology of 50 old English works.

Last summer, Parker entertained students and townspeople at the annual summer session Watermelon Festival. He is working in dramatics here—both acting and singing.

Paul Green, Chapel Hill author and playwright who is known for his "Lost Colony," commented that "Parker's greatest talent is his ability to make the people in his folk songs come alive."

MISS UNDERWOOD

Miss Underwood was graduated from the University last spring. Working under Dr. A. P. Hudson of the English Dept., she has appeared on radio and television and has given concerts for the North Carolina Folklore Society and the North Carolina Folk Festival of 1954. Last spring she was a contestant on a Horace Heidt talent show in Raleigh.

Dr. Hudson applauds her ability to present her ballads naturally, as well as the warmth of her voice. There is no lack of communication between her and the audience, he says.

The Musicales series will include music from both the old masters as well as current composers, according to Ludwig. Musicians from all over the state will participate in the one-hour weekly performances, he said, and the keynote is "informality."

Robert Wallenborn, pianist, will be next Sunday's guest, announced Ludwig. After spending several years in North Africa in the armed forces, Wallenborn has toured Denmark, Sweden and Norway, giving annual concerts.

Wallenborn is the personal friend of several Chapel Hillians, said Ludwig.

JOYNER, ALEXANDER & WINSTON:

Three Dorms Join Up To Form Social Group

The JAW Club, an organization consisting of students from Joyner, Alexander and Winston Dormitories, was created at a special meeting last week.

Officers elected by the 30 attending members are Butch Tomlinson, president; Gary Lopp, vice-president, and Jim Erwin, secretary. A social committee was set up, with Hamp Leflier, chairman. Billy Menshew and Mike Weaver were appointed to the committee.

The main project of the committee is to engage in exchange parties with Woman's College. The JAW Club is sponsored by the YMCA and is a branch of the YMCA Freshman Fellowship. It is designed to promote dormitory discussions and social activities. A discussion is planned on fraternnities for the next meeting. All students from the participating dormitories have been invited to attend the club's meetings and to take an active part in its organization. The meetings are held every Tuesday night at 9:30 in the social room of Winston.

crowd passing through to the Duke-William & Mary game, though, he said.

A waitress at a downtown alehouse said one customer was drinking beer at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Several busloads of students from North Carolina high schools were visiting the campus, but even they were walking slowly, their heads down in the light rain that fell all over town yesterday.

Graham Memorial's lounge claimed a few students, reading newspapers or just sitting back and resting.

It was a mighty dreary day.

FOR OLD BOOK ADVENTURERS

Many of our customers feel that there is nothing that is more fun to read, and more fun to collect, than good old books of adventure and exploration. They'll take you back to the days when travel to the far corners was really rugged—and they'll lend a distinction to your bookshelves that no modern book can equal. More often than not, they actually cost less than commonplace modern book club editions!

For example, in our Old Book Corner right now, there's a group of leather-bound National Geographic, circa 1920, at only $2.50 each. There's a copy of Glazier's account of his trip from Boston to California on horseback in 1876, priced at $2.00. There's a first edition of Theodore Roosevelt's "African Game Trails" that can be yours for only $3.50.

Pal, if your bookshelf is looking dull, and if you can spare as much as 48c, now's the time to start your collection!

HILL POINTS TO FAMILY BREAKDOWN

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 8—The "breakdown" of the American family may well be "nothing more serious than growing pains — normal symptoms of readjustment to a new and baffling industrial urban society," Dr. Reuben Hill of the University of North Carolina said here this weekend.

Dr. Hill, who is professor of sociology and research professor in the Institute for Research in Social Science, told the Oklahoma Home Economics Assn. "qualitatively the marriages of today are happier and better integrated than ever before in history."

Refuting the approach of the "experts" that the family is breaking down based on "the high divorce rate, the changes in our sex morality, the declining birth rate and juvenile delinquency," Dr. Hill said that family sociologists take a brighter view.

Dr. Hill also spoke this weekend to the College Clubs section of the Home Economics Assn. on "Ways of Preparing for Marriage," saying that "preparation for marriage begins early in life as an 'apprenticeship' and can be continuous beyond the wedding itself."

Dr. Hill told the home economists that the family, while trimming off some former services, "is now a more specialized agency,
