

WEATHER

cloudy and continued cool through today with an high of 65.

LVII NO. 30

Complete (A) Wire Service

CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1955

Offices In Graham Memorial

FOUR PAGES THIS ISSUE

The Daily Tar Heel

FOWLER

Don Fowler has a chance for leadership. What is it? See page 2.

Though Tar Heels Didn't Slow Down Terrapins, Displays Did

Although the University's Tar Heels didn't stop the University of Maryland Terrapins last Saturday, some of UNC's homecoming displays did. Winners in the display contest, sponsored by the University Club, were (top, left) Cobb dormitory, (right) Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity, (bottom, left) Pi Beta Phi Sorority and Smith Dormitory. (Henley Photos.)

Shepard Jones Talk On Middle East

Shepard Jones of the Political Science Dept. will present a lecture at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow in the room of the library. His topic will be "A Public Affairs in the Middle East: Perspectives, Possibilities." The talk will be sponsored by the Alpha, honorary political fraternity. All students and general public have been invited. Refreshments will follow.

Jones is the 1955-56 Burton Visiting Professor of Jurisprudence in the Dept. of Political Science. This visiting professorship was established by the late Honorable Craig, father-in-law of President G. D. Jones. Jones acquired a Ph.D. at the University of Chicago in 1936. Shortly after, he published his first book, "The Scattered States in the League of Nations." He then served for several years as the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Harvard and as the World Peace Foundation from 1938-1942. During the past 13 years he has been with the Dept. of State under the direction of James Byrnes, Dean Acheson, Marshall, and Foster Dulles. He was at the chief of the Division of Studies. He also participated in the Allied Mission to observe the 1945-46 elections in China. (See JONES, Page 4.)

YACK PICTURES

THURSDAY: Juniors, all day students, dental faculty, faculty, nursing faculty, German Club and Dance Committee.

MEN: Dark coats, ties.

WOMEN: Dark roundneck sweaters—no buttons.

GERMAN CLUB and DANCE

COMMITTEE: tuxedo.

MORE THAN 6,000 CONTRIBUTIONS:

Nine Foundations Gave Carolina More Than $221,000 Last Year

By PETE IVEY

Director, UNC News Bureau

More than 6,000 contributions, totalling $221,034.99, were given to the University during 1954-55 through nine foundations organized to give extra and special aid to teaching, research and other programs at Chapel Hill. It was announced in a report issued by Chancellor Robert B. House.

Most of the 6,221 gifts were earmarked for specific purposes, in special programs for development of the economic, health, professional and educational programs at Chapel Hill and throughout the state. Other gifts were "unrestricted," enabling administrators to channel funds to needed areas, sometimes in emergencies, for deserving recipients. Donors include individuals, corporations and associations.

ALUMNI ASSN.

In addition to the more than $220,000 raised during the year ending June 30, there were 9,000 alumni listed as dues-paying members of the Alumni Assn.

Chancellor House said "I look with particular pride on the record that has been compiled in 1954-55. In many ways the University has enjoyed its most meaningful year of support. The University congratulates each of you upon your thoughtful and enthusiastic response and renews the challenge for an even greater record in the future. The result can only mean a more comprehensive program of service and an institution which will continue to rank among the greatest state universities."

The $221,034.99 represents contributions to the Business Foundation, Dental Foundation, Medical Foundation, Alumni Annual Giving Campaign, Educational Foundation, Journalism Foundation, Pharmaceutical Research Foundation, Friends of the Library and the Law School Foundation.

Total contributions by alumni in the annual giving campaign (regular donations for unrestricted use by alma mater) amounted to $50,278.07—by 3,558 alumni. The funds made research projects possible for 26 faculty members on subjects ranging from cosmic radiation to a study in English periodicals. Nine students with serious financial problems also got help.

BUSINESS FOUNDATION

The N. C. Business Foundation granted $26,600 to the University's School of Business Administration. Grants included several faculty supplements, a directorship for graduate studies and research, the establishment of three endowed professorships — (1) Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. Chair of Banking, (2) R. J. Reynolds Chair of Human Relations and (3) Burlington Industries Chair of Business Administration.

Corporate fellowships and scholarships totalled $28,184, and the companies initiating them included Vick Chemical, E. I. DuPont Co., General Motors, Enka, American Cyanamid, General Electric, Pilot Freight Carriers, Virginia-Carolina Chemical Corp., Sears Roebuck and Jefferson Standard. The Tobacco Industry Research Committee awarded a fellowship for research.

A number of basic medical projects and student scholarships and loans in medicine were supported by the contributions of 288 medical alumni of Carolina, the gifts to

(See GRANTS, Page 4.)

Air ROTC Sponsors Named For Year

Shown above are the coeds who have been named Air ROTC sponsors for the year. They are (left to right, seated on floor) Misses Anne Wrenn, Callie Mitchell, Carolyn Cole and Jackie Van Hook, all former sponsors. Left to right, second row, are Misses Mary Bat-Standing, left to right, are Misses Isabel Madry, Sylvia McArthur, Isabel Holbrook, Barbara Miles, Winifred Rouse, Susan Walker, Libba James, Meredith Stringfield, Edith Moore, Kay Browne and Mimi Morris. Not shown are Misses Grace Boney, Margie Cook, Barbara Love and Ann Norman. (Henley Photo.)

Student Traffic Committee Says It Hasn't Considered Limiting Undergrads' Cars

Problem Is In Space —McCurdy

The Student Traffic Committee has not considered limiting the undergraduate use of automobiles, said committee Chairman Layton McCurdy yesterday.

McCurdy said that even though some faculty members have been pressing for the limitation of autos, students can retain their car rights by registering with Assistant Director of Student Affairs Ray Jeffries.

The main problem, according to McCurdy, is finding enough parking space for the students. "We have looked into the possibility of increasing the parking area on the campus," he said, "but we could not find any reasonable places for parking area."

McCurdy said he hopes "the students will accept this registration. It's not much trouble to walk up to the Dean of Student Affairs Office and register their car."

The system of registration, he also said, was like that of the state registration of license plates. Automobiles are registered so that the Dean of Student Affairs Office can know that students have their cars registered in their name instead of in their parents' name.

Registration of autos, a long process, was not through yesterday. Assistant Director of Student Affairs Jeffries said he planned to have the total figured up some time today.

The student car problem came to the fore last week, when state representative and trustee John Umstead, a Chapel Hillian, declared the University hasn't done "anything" to solve the problem.

Umstead asked the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Merchants Assn. to appoint a committee to "investigate" the student car problem.

Later in the week, Consolidated University Secretary William Friday said the University was doing something to correct the problem.

Dean of Student Affairs Fred Weaver also pointed to a memorandum he sent to Chancellor Robert House last spring. The memo said the administration had compiled with a Visiting Committee of the Board of Trustees recommendation that the "administration attempt to improve the regulation of the use of cars" and "that the administration consider seriously the question of the possession of cars by undergraduates."

'TAKE UP BILLIARDS,' SAYS EXPERT CHARLES PETERSON and billiards, he says, are not pool

HE'S IN GM BILLIARD ROOM:

Billiard Expert Has Cue Washington Used

By BUNNY KLENKE

"Come play billiards," says Charles Peterson, fancy shot world billiard champion. "You'll be fascinated, and it's good for you."

This message of the "father of intercollegiate billiards" goes to all college students—and especially to UNC students and coeds this week, "billiard week" at Carolina.

Peterson said tonight will be "coed night" in Graham Memorial's Billiard room.

Just coeds will be admitted for the billiard expert's program of instruction and exhibition.

"I have a standing date with all Carolina students every day this week in the Graham Memorial Billiard Room," Peterson says. "I'm giving exhibitions and instructions all day through Saturday, so come on down."

CRUSADER

A dynamo crusader for his game, Peterson tours about 100 colleges annually demonstrating, lecturing and urging students to "take up billiards." Under the sponsorship of the Assn. of College Unions, he has been selling the game of pocket billiards to everyone he sees for the past 25 years. He toured U. S. army camps during the war giving exhibitions and instructions.

"President Eisenhower should play billiards instead of golf," the champion says. "Golf is too strenuous a game for a man his age; billiards would give him just the right kind of exercise."

"The greatest of all participant sports," Peterson said, "pocket billiards exercises shoulder and arm muscles and keeps eye muscles strong, besides keeping its player active on his feet." This and the fact that it is a mental challenge, a scientific procedure, are the reasons for its becoming a favorite sport and one of the most popular college games in the U. S., he said.

COEDS PROMINENT

Coeds are becoming prominent in the college billiard picture, entering the national tournament from 11 different schools last year. Ohio State University has 20 tables (10 of which are usually always occupied by girls) and gives credit for the game. Michigan State and Washington University have the next largest number of college players and the best facilities. Billiard-playing schools in the North and West are ahead of those in the South, he said.

Peterson deplores the misnomer, "pool," that is sometimes applied to pocket billiards. "Calling it pool has done real harm to a good game in the past," George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and many other famous leaders played billiards frequently. "In fact, I have Washington's billiard cue," Peterson said.

GEORGE'S CUE

"I was lecturing to GIs at Fort Baldwin in Maine during the war. A 92 year-old couple in the audience came up after the program and offered to give me Washington's cue. He was supposed to have used it playing with Lafayette at Moorestown, N. J.

(See BILLIARD, Page 4.)

Student Party Hears Fowler On Activities

By BENNIE BAUCOM

"Too many people have joined organizations with the idea of 'what it will do for me,' said Don Fowler, president of the student body, in a meeting of the Student Party Tuesday night.

Fowler said, concerning UNC's school spirit, "The only way you can feel that you are getting something out of it is to put all you have into it."

Fowler thanked the SP for its support this year and added, "My being an independent has its disadvantages as well as advantages. It is very important to work together to achieve the goals which we are striving for this year."

During the business session John Brooks, a freshman from Steele Dormitory was elected over Bob Smith to fill a legislative vacancy in Dorm Men's V.

The final action of the meeting was nomination of legislative candidates for the fall election. Nominations were as follows:

Dorm Men's I: Jack Angel, Andy Burnham and Wade Rhodes.

Dorm Men's II: John Howes, Frank Shaw, John Black, Chris Doughty and Bob Harrington.

Dorm Men's III: Bill Roberts, G. C. Pridgen and Ray Long.

Dorm Men's IV: Norris Bell, John Curtis, Larkin Kirkman, Jim Dixon, Dale Doss, Herman Stone, Joe Sturdivant and Gardner Foley.

Dorm Men's V: Dan Souther-

(See STUDENT, Page 4.)

Paul Butler Set To Speak At YDC Meet

Paul Butler, National Democratic Party chairman, will speak here Nov. 11 at a banquet sponsored by the Young Democrats Club.

Bob Roberts, campus ticket chairman for the event, announced yesterday that only 20 tickets for the event are still available. "We will hold these for Carolina students during the next week," he said, "before meeting requests from the state organization." The banquet will be held in Lenoir Hall at 7 p.m., on the eve of the Notre Dame football game. Tickets go on sale today.

Tomorrow night, a campus-wide meeting of the organization will be held in the Roland Parker lounge of Graham Memorial at 7:30. Membership will again be opened to all students who wish to join.

The official fall membership drive will open Nov. 2, and will include a square-dance and barbecue at the end of the month.

According to Henry Whitesides, chairman of dance arrangements, YDC clubs at Woman's College and other colleges have been invited to this final event.

George Miller, who is in charge of the drive, says the UNC club, already the largest campus YDC in the nation, hopes to double its membership in the next month.

Librarian

The Daily Tar Heel needs a librarian.

The job, according to Managing Editor Fred Powledge, will include "about two hours each day of clipping and filing and in general getting the newspaper's files in good order." The librarian would have to work each publication day, he said.

Payment will be made in the form of "satisfaction," said Powledge, since the newspaper's budget does not allow for a librarian. Applicants may see Powledge in the newspaper's Graham Memorial office between 2 and 3 p.m. today, and between 10 a.m. and noon tomorrow.