CHANGES IN PAST, PLANS FOR FUTURE:

The Gray Report: Athletics To Art

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of two installments dealing with President Gordon Gray's annual report to the University trustees. The last installment in the analysis will follow tomorrow.

By FRED POWLEDGE

Consolidated University President Gordon Gray, in his report to the trustees and the state this week, ran the academic gamut.

His report included information about changes in the past, plans for the future, a statement about himself and his "situation" and summary of the University's condition as of July 15, 1955.

Here is an analysis of the President's Report: "During the past five years," wrote President Gray, "a number of significant changes have been made—in the consolidated office and in each of the three units—for the purpose of strengthening positions and procedures for the better discharge of the academic jobs of the University."

THREE FOLD

Those changes, he said, include the creation of new jobs and procedures. The reason was "three-fold: to confirm control of academic affairs in the hands of academic people; to insure that administrative facilities exist for the successful exercise of this control; and, as the ultimate object, to develop renewed and increased morale and excellence in instruction, research and in attention to students."

Gray said "conscious attempts have been made to strengthen the position of the chancellors." Policy, he said, "has been to provide the chancellors with maximum freedom in administering the affairs of their respective institutions, consistent with the stated responsibilities of the president."

Two concrete powers the separate universities have, he said, are: "The business managers have been made responsible directly to the chancellors; and, the chancellors, have been given unequivocal authority over athletics."

At the University here, he said, the dean of the College of Arts and Sciences has been given "drastically increased authority" and "responsibility for a more successful and dynamic undergraduate instructional program in liberal arts."

LONG RANGE

The next step in the University's development, said President Gray, is a "long range program of personnel encouragement, promotion and recruitment."

"The University is faced with a period of faculty expansion to meet enrollments, and, unevenly, of replacing a relatively large number of faculty people approaching retirement. It is absolutely essential that imagination, hard work and planning be brought to bear immediately on the discovery and recruitment of younger men and women," he wrote.

President Gray termed the need for "new machine methods" of accounting procedures as "perhaps the most important current need in our administrative arrangements."

Such machines, he said, would provide income and expenses data and "a closer scrutiny of each dollar spent and more effective evaluation of the total cost of each unit of activity." The machines, though they would cost "some money initially," would save money in the long run, he said.

FISCAL CONTROL

President Gray referred to the fiscal control of the University by the Bureau of the Budget, writing: "... all of us in the University must understand that if we are to have more flexibility in the use of funds, it is properly incumbent upon us to demonstrate that we can handle these funds wisely and well, and economically."

Gray cited construction now underway at the campuses of the three Universities, pointing out that "with a few exceptions, the post-war building programs at each of the three institutions have been completed."

As for the relation of climbing enrollment with physical plant, Gray said: "We are confronted with the prospect of greatly increased enrollments. We must move, therefore, to a maximum effectiveness in the use of our present plant."

"Among other measures, we will have to consider seriously two departures from present practice. "One is the question of scheduling more classes in the afternoon, so as to use classroom space to better advantage; the other is the question of giving regular instruction on a 12-month basis."

'PRESSING'

Among "some of our needs" that are "quite pressing," Gray mentioned a new building for the School of Pharmacy and improved quarters for the School of Journalism.

Also, he said, "there is the problem of dormitory facilities, for both unmarried and married students. At present, despite the construction of new dormitories in recent years, we are overcrowded, with three students in many rooms designed for two at State College and Chapel Hill, and there are long waiting lists."

He pointed out "one remedy" for the crowded housing situation is the building of dormitories at Chapel Hill and Greensboro with government loans, to be paid by the students in increased dormitory rents.

The second installment of the analysis of President Gray's report to the trustees will follow in tomorrow's Daily Tar Heel.

PRESIDENT GRAY . . . His Report Covers A Lot

Consolidated University Group Suggests Trustees Reassess Auto Situation

After Discussion Of What Has Been Done

By CLARKE JONES

The All-University Council on Student Affairs, a Consolidated University organization, met yesterday afternoon to discuss the problem of student automobiles.

Present at the meeting were Miss Burns, Mrs. Clarke and Miss Reiser from Woman's College in Greensboro, Deans Stewart, Shirley and Talley, along with Prof. Mann, and Deans Weaver and Spull from the University in Chapel Hill, according to Council Chairman William Friday.

Deans Weaver, Stewart, and Talley gave reports on the actions which have been taken at State and UNC in view of the recommendations made by the Visiting Committee of the Board of Trustees in their 1954-55 report to improve the management of campus traffic, said Friday.

The Council, after a lengthy discussion, voted to "suggest to Acting President J. Harris Purks that the respective sub-committees of the visiting committees during their fall visits here reassess the situation in the light of the action taken at the respective institutions," said Friday.

At a luncheon-meeting in Lenior Hall yesterday, the Council on Student Affairs met with the Executive Council of Student Government and also discussed the auto problem.

At the meeting, storage lot for student automobiles was discussed, according to a spokesman from the Executive Council.

Solons Give Money To Stacy Dorm And Yack

By NEIL BASS

The student Legislature passed in an abbreviated session last night a bill which will put dormitory scholastic averages on a competitive basis.

The bill, introduced by Student Party legislator Larry McElroy, provides that individual dormitory scholastic averages be computed at the end of each semester and highest placing dormitories selected.

This bill and a bill appropriating the Yackety Yack an additional $2,334.44 to cover increased enrollment expenses met no opposition from the representatives. The controversial measure of the meeting was a bill calling for the Legislature to give Stacy Dormitory $50 to help pay for a new television set.

Stacy representative Charlie Dunn, dorm president, spoke to the body on behalf of the measure. Dunn said the reason his dormitory asked the Legislature to give it money was that it did not receive an initial appropriation from student government in 1952. It was at this time that student government bought and paid for television sets for 12 of the dormitories.

John Zollicoffer, University Party, contested Dunn's statement by saying that Stacy got $68 in 1952 and some additional gifts. The bill's fate apparently had been decided negatively when Jim Monteith made an emotional speech on behalf of the measure. The vote was immediately called after Monteith's talk, and Stacy's appropriation slipped by narrowly.

New measures introduced at the meeting included: (1) A bill calling for the instigation of a non-partisan selection board for naming Daily Tar Heel editor candidates.

(2) A bill calling for the institution of a liaison men inspect local AFROTC group.

The Air Force ROTC will be visited today and tomorrow by two members of the AFROTC Liaison Team, according to Claude Pope, cadet major.

Col. Robert F. Hardy and Col. William G. Dolan will confer with AFROTC instructors and University officials, visit classes and inspect the facilities and operations of the unit here during their visit, according to Pope.

The two represent Commandant of AFROTC Maj. Gen. M. K. Deichelmann.

DEBATE AND WAKE FOREST:

Debaters To Attend Meets This Weekend

UNC Debate Squad is departing for forces and attending two meets this weekend, going to the University of Virginia and Wake Forest College.

The first annual conference of debaters at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville is intended as a broad outlook on the question this year—"Re-orientation of the non-agricultural areas of the United States to guarantee their employees a living wage." The all-day conference will consist of three sessions aimed at presenting five possible solutions to the present question. These five solutions will then be presented at a session for either approval or rejection.

During the legislative session, composed of T.D. du Cuccinolo, representative of the CIO and Charles Gregory, ex-convict, and a representative from the labor law from West Virginia will discuss the merits of the proposed resolutions.

Members of the UNC squad attending this conference are Miss Beckman, Miss Donna Ashland, Andy Oglesby, Dave Lieberman and Beverly Webb. They are accompanied by Elmer Oettinger of the Speech Department. This afternoon, eight new members of the UNC squad will go to the annual Novice Debate Tournament at Wake Forest College. This tournament is designed to allow novice intercollegiate debaters to meet together, develop a knowledge of the topics and procedure. Those representing the UNC squad are Joe Major, Richard Eisenberg, Luke Carbett, Ted Shouts, Jess Stribling, John Brooks, Bob Mangum and Bill Pruet. Dr. N.W. Mattis of the English Dept. will accompany the team as coach and judge.

Dean Elected UNC Group's SSL Delegate

Charles Dean was elected chairman of the UNC State Student Legislature delegation during the group's first meeting this week.

Other officers elected are David Reid and Manning Muntzing, senators; Bob Harrington, house floor leader; David Reid, senate floor leader; Jim Armstrong, treasurer; Milton Cook, social chairman, and Miss Shirley Pierce, clerk.

Hobbs Explains UNC's Actions On Parking

One of the main reasons the University is cramped for parking space is it has had to take over grounds that previously were used as parking areas but now are replaced by buildings.

That's what Dean R. J. M. Hobbs of the School of Business Adm. told Delta Sigma Pi, professional BA fraternity, Wednesday night.

Dean Hobbs, chairman of the grounds and planning committee, spoke on the past and present development of the University and the grounds.

The speaker told the business fraternity the University now has a beautiful campus because of careful architectural planning. The planning and building of several men has helped to make the University one of the most beautiful schools in the United States, he said.

Dean Hobbs also spoke of the problem of parking, telling the business fraternity the University could not solve the problem by putting small parking lots all over the campus. The development of large areas for parking would help remedy the situation, he said.

In the future the grounds committee has a plan of placing buildings with their respective fields instead of having them spread over the campus, said Dean Hobbs. There are plans for new dorms, a student union, a YMCA and a new armory, he concluded.
