Athletes Here On Aids From UNC Alumni, Friends

BILL CORPENING

Carroll, chairman of the Scholarship Committee, announced that 76 athletes attending the University are receiving scholarships.

Scholarships, according to Admissions Roy Armstrong, are awarded by a special committee of the University and are known as "Grants-in-Aid" to the University. Funds for the scholarships are provided completely by the friends of the University.

These are included by the University. Misses said Armstrong and friends of the University. They are football, basketball, baseball, tennis, track and field, and swimming. Misses said Armstrong, is a football and basketball player. No official tabulation of the number of scholarships for each sport could be obtained yesterday.

Misses declined to reveal the number of the scholarship holders this year. He said it is the University Scholarship Committee not to publish the names of the University holders of University scholarships. He added that a part of this policy is to promote a "bad feeling" among students who do not receive scholarships.

Misses of the scholarships, said Armstrong, range from partial coverage ($500-$1000) to full coverage ($1000). A National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (NCAA) regulation that no athletic scholarship cover more than the college expenses. The amount of each scholarship, said Dr. Carroll, depends upon the need of the recipient.

Misses pointed out that contributions by alumni to athletic scholarships is a "good thing" for the University. He said as a University is free to accept or refuse scholastic scholarships. Misses pointed out particularly that University athletes were far from possessive of their scholarships. He estimated 80 percent of the athletes graduated, as contrasted with 90 percent of the regular body. He remarked that the high scholastic standing of the athletes was due to more stringent scholastic requirements than those of other colleges. Every athlete must pass 24 hours with a grade of C or better in half his subjects to be eligible to participate in sports, said Armstrong. The athletic scholarship will be awarded unless the applicant meets the requirements, according to Dr. Carroll and Armstrong.

Every applicant must have the necessary for the University. Every applicant must be a high school senior expected to fulfill his obligations under the Honor Code.

(3) Applicants must be recommended by the University coach of their prospected sport. After applicants have been approved by the Grant-in-Aid Committee, final selections are made by the University Scholarship Committee. Although most scholarships are awarded only for one year, some are renewable for four full years, according to Armstrong. This marks the 17th consecutive year that athletic scholarships have been awarded at the University.

Independent Women Set Dinner Party Thursday

The Independent Women's Council will sponsor a buffet dinner in the basement of Cobb Dormitory Thursday night.

All independent women on campus are invited, and approximately 150 men students have been invited, according to Miss Martha Stogner, IWC president.

Any male student wishing to attend the dinner may obtain a ticket from dormitory Interdormitory Council representatives, and independent women may obtain tickets from dormitory IWC representatives. Admission will be by ticket only.

All candidates running for office in the Nov. 15 elections are invited to the dinner, said Miss Stogner.

The members of the IWC are the following: Misses Jeanine

Thompson, Betty Stacyk, Elaine Burns and Linda Mann, Alderman; Misses Libby Whitfield, Martha Stogner, Susie Roberts, Nancy Wilson and Barbara Bennett, Carr;

Misses Lynn Zimmerman, Shirley Hollis, Jackie Ferrel, Jean Crawford, Melvior, Misses Ancy Hoover, Carol Jones, Jean Marr and Margaret Ann Quillen, Smith; Misses Dare Peace, Jane Turkett, Gloria Rothman, Carolyn Welsh, Spencer;

Misses Ellen Brauer, Barbara Wright and Betsy Fowler, Town Girls' Assn., and Misses Betty Ann Eames, Shirley Guenther, Nurses' Residence.

Officers of the council, in addition to Miss Stogner, are Misses Ellen Brauer, vice-president, and Barbara Bright, secretary-treasurer.

Beat Dook Plans Are Underway

Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity will sponsor its annual Beat Dook float parade this year.

"The purpose of the parade," said Dan Clark, chairman of the event, "is to promote the school spirit and arouse interest in the game between Carolina and Duke."

According to Clark, the parade will precede a pep rally on the evening of Dec. 1.

There will be trophies for the best floats in the parade, with the winners chosen on basis of originality and aptness of theme, said Clark. He said floats should pertain to the theme of "Beat Dook" and must be identified with the name of the organization entering it.

The queen and her court will be chosen during the week preceding the UNC-Duke game by the PIKAs.

There is no entry fee or limits as to the cost of floats, said Clark, except those specified by the Panhellenic Council.

Among the organizations already engaged for the annual affair, according to Clark, are the drill teams of both the Air Force and Naval ROTC units, the University Band, the cheerleaders, along with the Monogram Club and several high school bands in the area.

LEGISLATIVE ROUNDUP:

Was There A Quorum At Thursday Meeting?

By NEIL BASS

Not only were 15 members of the student Legislature absent from the session Thursday night, but 11 representatives left before the meeting was concluded.

That meant the Legislature was transacting business with three members less than an official quorum. Speaker Jack Stevens, after Jim Holmes, (Student Party), had suggested the lack of sufficient representatives to decide legally on measures, counted the members and declared that there was a quorum present.

University Party legislators absent were:

Jim Beatty, Charlie Covell, Kit Malloy, Bill Morgan, Mebane

Pritchett, Larry Walker, John Zollicoffer, Bill Burress, Misses Ann Wrenn and Sylvia Tarantino.

Student Party legislators absent were:

Miss Susan Fink, Ted Kemp, Ray Long, Lewis Brumfield and Miss Gwen Lemley.

During the course of discussion on a bill introduced out of Ways and Means Committee calling for the establishment of a Constitutional Revisional Committee to rewrite the student Constitution, several facts were brought up that seemed to interest the legislators.

The first was brought up after Jim Holmes (SP) questioned the legality of setting up such a committee. He pointed out it might be in conflict with the amendment stipulation in the old Constitution. Larry McElroy, SP floorleader, apparently solved this by amending the bill to strike out the word "rewrite" and add the words "suggest amendments" to the present document.

John Curtis (SP) then said that since the old Constitution had never been officially approved by the Board of Trustees, there was no need to worry about taking action that would be opposed to its stipulations.

Tar Heels, Gamecocks Meet In Oyster Bowl

By WAYNE BISHOP

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 4.—North Carolina holds the spotlight in the center of the Oyster Bowl Saturday When Coach George Barclay's fired-up and enthusiastic Tar Heels take on a highly-improved gang of South Carolina Gamecocks.

The Gamecocks enter the game a slight six-point favorite over the Tar Heels on the basis of their comparative records. Neither team has the kind of record that you write home about, but both squads have come up with some fine football on occasions this year.

The spectacle of the annual Oyster Bowl game seems to have built a fire under both squads, as they are ready to go all out to improve their records.

Both squads are in top-notch physical condition with all the starters on both teams in best form. Only Buddy Payne, Carolina's sophomore end from Norfolk, was on the doubtful list, but he came through rough workouts all right Wednesday and Thursday and will be back at his old end post.

Sophomore speedster Jim Varum may gain a starting nod for the Tar Heels in this contest. The shifty halfback was handicapped (See BOTH COACHES, page 3.)

S. INDIANS TO PUBLISH CQ STORY

"Suttee," a short story by Robin White, will be translated into Tamil, a South Indian Dialect, and will appear in a collection of stories published by the Christian Literature Committee, Diocese of Madurai and Ramnad, India, according to Bill Scarborough, editor of the Carolina Quarterly.

Permission for translation and publication was granted this week, said Scarborough.

Appearing as an original work in the 1955 winter issue of the Carolina Quarterly, "Suttee" draws its title from the Hindu custom, outlawed by the English, in which the wife throws herself on her husband's funeral pyre.

In the story, Joseph, a young boy whose mother is dead, is strongly devoted to Mangalam, a Hindu woman.

When Mangalam's husband is run over and killed by a "capitalist warmonger," a group of radical villagers force Mangalam to commit suttee in protest. Most of the villagers are led to believe that Mangalam wants to commit suttee.

Joseph, however, discovers the truth and tries to get help. His efforts are thwarted by his reputation for telling tall tales and the indifference of the police to his pleas.

Realizing that rescue is hopeless, Joseph fights his way through the mob to the pyre, and just as it is being lighted, he climbs up beside Mangalam.

"Defiantly he stood astride the crest of the pyre, facing out over the hostile world that seemed bent on coming between him and the Mangalam that he loved, the world that he had at last foiled." With Joseph's moment of triumph, the story ends.

Robin White, the author, was born and reared in South India. He received his education at Yale where he was awarded The Curtis Prize Essay Award.

Willsey, Norfolk, Va., and Jo Carpenter, freshman from Thomasville. Another majorette is to be chosen soon, according to Scotty Hester, band president. (Henley Photo)

Parties Set For Dorm's Social Room

Several parties will be held in the near future in Cobb Dormitory social rooms, including a buffet dinner, a dorm dance, a reception and a dorm party.

The social rooms were built and furnished at a cost of $33,000 to the state and University, and included a TV room, game room, women's bathroom facilities and the main social room. Plans for a juke box and pool table installation are now being considered by the Interdormitory Council for the basement.

Lewis Brumfield, IDC president, said the IDC is well pleased with the success of the recent reception held after the Tennessee game, and also said two more are planned for the weekends of the Notre Dame and Virginia games. Music will be informal: coats and ties will be a requisite for men, he said.

Local Theaters Announce Vote On '55 Movies

Chapel Hill theater managers are making plans for their patrons to vote for their own "best" actor, actress, performance and production of the year.

Co-chairmen of the project E.C. Smith and Andy Gutierrez, managers of the Carolina and Varsity Theaters respectively, announced balloting will be held Nov. 17 through Nov. 27.

Reports from theater managers throughout the country determine the nominees. Space will be provided on the ballot for "write-in" nominations, they said.

Results of balloting in Chapel Hill will be entered in a national compilation to determine winners of the "audience awards," the first to be based on popular vote of movie-goers. "Audience Awards" will parallel Academy Awards selected by professionals in the movie industry.

The Chapel Hill ballots will be counted by Orville Campbell, Bill Sloan and Bob Cox, all local merchants.
