Receives Honor

Dr. Harold Hotelling, UNC professor of mathematics, has been awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree by the University of Chicago for his contributions to "quantitative methods to the social sciences" and the advancement of "understanding of fundamental problems in economics and statistics." He is also director of the UNC Institute of Statistics.

Hallford Head Of IDC Group

Sonny Hallford has been made chairman of the Social Committee of the Interdormitory Council with Ivey Rogers as publicity chairman.

Also for the coming year, Tom Smoot, Whit Whitfield, Ivey Rogers, Jim Hickmon, Bill Hummel and Dick Frazier have been appointed to the Advisory Committee. The dorms have been broken up into groups with an overall social chairman who will assist the group in planning their social functions.

Group 1 consists of Winston, Connor, Cobb, Alexander and Joyner, and is under the leadership of Bob Butler, assistant social chairman.

Group 2 takes in Lewis, Everett, Stacy, Aycock and Graham. It is under the leadership of Benny Thomas, assistant social chairman. The third group consists of Grimes, Manly, Mangum and Ruffin and is headed by Jos Studriven, assistant social chairman.

Group 4, under Willis Riddick, is made up of Old West, Old East, BVP and Whitehead.

Magill Asks SP For 'Needed' Leadership

By CLARKE JONES

"The task of political parties here," said Director of Student Affairs Sam Magill to the Student Party Monday night, "is to give the University the kind of leadership that is needed so much."

Speaking on "The Relevance of Political Parties to Student Government," Magill first offered three suppositions concerning student political parties.

"First," he said, "they are here to stay but not so long ago they were ineffective and almost non-existent. Second, in the future of the University, political parties are going to exercise a more significant role, and third, political parties are in the center of modern student government as we know it today."

Defining the political party's role in government, Magill said "the political party is responsible for framing the question and defining the issue before the student body and it must seek to do this clearly."

Magill, in listing some of the basic issues which are of concern to the student body today, said "one of the key issues is the judicial system. This is an issue which is serious and merits the concern of student leaders." He also listed the problems of the campus code interpretation which he said "to many students does not include conduct off the campus; segregation and integration, and the automobile and parking situation."

He went on to say "the most crying need in student government today is courageous, capable and confident leadership."

"It is up to the political parties to find out who the best leaders are and to develop that kind of leadership." The University, along with the faculty and the students, "must look to the parties for mature, capable leadership," he said.

Analysis Of 3 Trends Shows Why

Administration of student justice may soon be in the hands of the faculty—if student courts don't demonstrate more initiative.

Although no official announcement of this has been made, it has become clear that such action can—and probably will—occur, if student courts don't begin showing a spark of initiative.

The trend toward more faculty action and less student action has already developed in two concrete ways:

1. Several departments in the University have lost confidence in the processing of Honor System and Campus Code cases by students.

2. Most cases before student courts at present have been initiated by faculty or staff members of the University—not students.

Growing concern in the Faculty Executive Committee, which hears appeals from student courts, has been evidenced recently.

Dean of Student Affairs Fred H. Weaver, in an unofficial meeting with student leaders Monday, pointed to the lack of student initiative; however, he made it clear that he was "not making an indictment of student government."

Other sources have pointed to the trend in faculty circles away from confidence in student courts, although Weaver said there was "no crisis" at this time.

Student initiative, as such, does not just mean that students aren't turning Honor System and Campus Code offenders over to the courts, but that the courts themselves have lost their traditional watchdog function by neglect, according to one highly-placed observer.

Evidence of the decline of the student court watchdog function is seen in the numerous cases that student jurors pick up from local Recorder's Court, after offenders have been tried for civil offense.

In the past, student courts intervened, taking over civil cases from local authorities—not waiting until after they have been tried.

Another increasing problem is that of jurisdiction. Since there is a virtual galaxy of student courts, there is confusion about which court handles a case—and where initiative lies.

Still another concern is the increasing lack of communication between the courts and students.

Turkeys Were Selling Yesterday

Turkeys were selling yesterday at local foodstores as Chapel Hill residents prepared for Thanksgiving. Some students, like Paul and Sara Lovingood above, are married and will be eating turkey while others go home to "study" and sleep. Sam Taylor and Jake Leath, meat-man at a local store, are also eyeing the bird. (Henley Photo.)

Last Paper

This is the last issue of the Daily Tar Heel for six days.

The newspaper will start publication again with next Tuesday morning's edition.

Deadline for outside news in next Tuesday's paper will be same as always—3 p.m. Monday afternoon.

The editors and staff wish you a happy Thanksgiving holiday, and remind you that exams are only 57 days away.

Trustees Meet With N.C.S. Government

The Visiting Committee of the Consolidated University's Board of Trustees met Monday at State College in Raleigh for conferences with State College faculty and student groups.

William P. Saunders of Southern Fines, committee chairman, presided over the sessions. Reports were heard from three sub-committees which had visited the three branches of the Consolidated University: the University here, Woman's College in Greensboro and State College.

Town Girls Sponsor Friday Night Dance

The Town Girl's Assn. will sponsor a Harvest Dance Friday at 8 p.m. in the Rendezvous Room of Graham Memorial for those students remaining over the holidays.

The party will be strictly informal and may be attended by either stage or dates.

ROUGHLY 1500 VOTE

Yates Defeats Alphin; One H.C. Race Invalid

By NEIL BASS

Tucker Yates, University Party, snatched the freshman class presidency from Oliver "Al" Alphin, Independent, in yesterday's runoff election by a vote of 333 to 244.

In races for Men's Honor Council seats, Dave Connor defeated Marion Griffin, 523 to 434, for the junior class post; Ned Meekins nabbed the sophomore seat from Charles Ashford, 512 to 474; while the race for the freshman class post between Nicky Hester and Jim Long was ruled invalid by the present Men's Council.

The invalidation was ruled, according to the Council's chairman, because the two freshman candidates in the run-off election did not have a clear-cut majority and, the Council decided, Jeff Hare should have been included in the run-off. A second run-off will probably be held, according to Election's Board Chairman Bill McLean, on Tuesday, Dec. 6.

In the Women's Honor Council contest, Martha Barber with 181 votes, Martha Richardson with 149 and Pat McQueen, 139, were picked over Nancy McFadden, 133, Nancy Ford, 111, and Jo Ruffin, 107, for the three vacant seats.

Panel Discusses Peaceful Products Of Atom Machines

The use of "peaceful" products of nuclear reactors, especially the employment of radioactive isotopes in medical diagnosis and treatment, was discussed at a special panel session last night, by the Chapel Hill branch of the American Assn. of University Women.

Dr. J. Harris Purks, acting president of the Consolidated University, was moderator for the discussion of the atom's peaceful uses, which was presented by Congressman Carl Durham of Chapel Hill, Dr. Clifford Beck of N.C. State College in Raleigh and Dr. Colin Thomas of the UNC Medical School, Chapel Hill.

Dr. Beck explained the operation of a nuclear reactor and the types of research carried out in its operation. He is director of the N.C.

State reactor as well as chairman of the Dept. of Physics.

Dr. Beck said that while radiation is "dangerous, damaging and destructive" it can also perform a vital function in producing radioactive isotopes for research.

Dr. Thomas, who is currently engaged in research with isotopes, discussed this research tool's uses in both the physical and biological sciences.

Durham reported on the Conference on the Peaceful Uses of Atomic energy held in Geneva last August, which he attended as a member of the U.S. delegation. Also a member of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, Durham reported on applications for reactors received from throughout the country.

UP Listens To Speech By Chairman Sanders

"You are members of a victorious party," Chairman Bill Sanders told the University Party last night.

Sanders lauded the UP campaign Publicity Committee and Finance Committee "for doing such a fine job" and commended all the UP candidates who won offices in the election. "It was a well deserved victory," he said.

Sander's "victory speech" was delivered at an extremely short party session, the last until Monday night, Dec. 5.

After laureling the winning candidates, he went on to say:

"I further commend those who did not win but worked hard. Finally," he said, "All of you members are to be commended for the work you did to make the party a successful one. I have never worked with a more unified, intelligent group of people."

Sanders then touched on "responsibilities to the student body," a desire for harmonious "work with the president of the student body," and willingness "to work with the Student Party," to round out his talk.

Regarding the student body he said:

"The University Party has been given a place of campus leadership by the students—our responsibility is to represent them well and maintain their respect."

Concerning the executive branch of student government he said:

"I know that I speak on behalf of the University Party when I say we will continue to work in harmony with the president of the student body—he has our respect and best wishes."

Concerning the Student Party he said:

"It is our sincere desire to work with them in increasing the effectiveness of student government."

Holidays Start

Students will begin their Thanksgiving holidays this afternoon at 1 o'clock.

Classes are scheduled to resume next Monday morning.

Three weeks of classwork will come between Thanksgiving holidays and Christmas vacation, which is scheduled to begin Dec. 17. The fall semester ends with examinations on Jan. 19-27.

VIRGINIA WINS

A team of law students from the University of Virginia were judged winners of the regional round of the National Moot Court competition held here last weekend. The Virginians defeated Wake Forest in a contest judged by State Supreme Court Justice Emory Denny, Irving Carlyle and D. B. Hudson. The teams argued an anti-trust case which tested a federal statute concerning absorption of one corporation by another with lessening of competition.

PLANETARIUM SHOW

A special Thanksgiving Day presentation of "Star Patterns" will be shown at 3 p.m. tomorrow at the Morehead Planetarium. The demonstration will be repeated at 8:30 p.m.

BEAUTY CONTEST

Contestants may still be entered in the "All-New Dorm Beauty Contest," according to Interdormitory Council Social Chairman Ivey Rogers. Contestants are limited to four per dormitory, and each entry will be judged by her picture alone, he said. Deadline for entries will be Nov. 29, and the deadline for pictures will be Dec. 6. Dormitories wishing to enter beauties may notify Whit Whitfield, 114 Everett, or Sonny Hallford, 314 Everett.

OPEN HOUSE

The Community Church of Chapel Hill will hold open house Thanksgiving afternoon from 4 to 6 p.m. The open house will be at Hillel House on W. Cameron Ave., and all members and friends of the church have been invited.

AFTOTC MEETING

AFTOTC sponsors will meet on Monday at 5:40 p.m. in Cadet Headquarters in full dress.
