

HOP'S BUNK

By Wayne Bishop

George Stavnitski of Carolina or Jim Nelson of Duke top this afternoon at 2 o'clock for the kickoff in the annual game between the two schools, the fuse will be set off for a game to provide plenty of sparkling fireworks. In the past Carolina contest has been the "big game" throughout the year with squads looking forward to winning this one game more than through the year.

The Tar Heels have had their bad times—the Dukes have, went into a slump without their able quarterback, Sonny directing the attack. They dropped contests to Pittsburgh Tech, but bounced back by tying the Navy 7-7. Since then they have regained their touch and move into this game with top form.

The Heels went into a slump after two fine performances at Alabama and State. At the halftime of the State game the 19-6; from there they started to slip. Injuries, a rough and tough breaks caused the football picture to sink somewhat then Coach George Barclay fired his club into coming out football ladder. A win over South Carolina, a brilliant win against Notre Dame, then a relatively easy win over Virginia, Heels were certainly on their way back—looking for this at Duke.

From the Hill still remember the five straight defeats taken Durham Club, and they, as well as the boys dressed in blue are more than ready to see something done about that.

The team has the best chance of stopping the Duke string in any team of the past three years. Coach Barclay has a long and one that can produce when it is fired-up. All of the strong and anxious, and the big forward wall is at peak of course, all this can be said of the Devils, too, which is this game another terrific one in the classic series. A young man that boots that opening kickoff will set-off plenty of excitement. Whether that entertainment will prove very interesting the Chapel Hill folks remains to be seen. The odds will be in favor of the Tar Heels, but spirit and desire have been known to make a difference on many occasions. Will it happen today? . . . We can only pray.

ALSO PLAY TONIGHT:
The treat on the full-scale activities tonight will be the match between Clemson and the Tar Heels in Woollen Gym. Hank McGuire's squad kicked the lid off the season Thursday by downing the McCrary Eagles 91-72. The Tigers plan to offer more competition than the independent stars did. The frosh from Atlantic Fleet team at 6:15. McGuire's varsity cagers looked comparatively good for this season. The personable Carolina mentor has not had a loss in his squad against top competition, except for the McCrary. McGuire says, "You can't tell what kind of team you have against the reserves. In years past we have been down by three or four pre-season practice games, but this year we were ruled out. It will take quite a while for our boys to get into top performances, so we expect to improve with every game."

The Tigers have an improved squad with guard Bill Yarborough leading the way. Yarborough averaged 28.8 points per game last season. The Heels hope to counter Yarborough's scoring with a well-timed versatile attack from veterans Lennie Rosenbluth, Jerry Ed Bob Young and sophomores Pete Brennan, Joe Quigg, Earns, and Bob Cunningham.

Captain Jesse Birchfield will lead 12 Duke seniors into their final college gridiron performance.

The Tar Heels will face one of the strongest Duke teams since the post-war period. Sonny Jurgensen leads the Blue Devil attack with such backs as Bob Pascal, Bryant Aldridge, Oliver Rudy and Bernie Blaney to do the mail-toting. Jurgensen is a highly adept passer with Sonny Sorrell as his chief receiver.

The Tar Heels depend on their rugged ground attack with Ed Sutton leading the way. Sutton has gained 345 yards for a 6.9 average this year. Ken Keller and Don Lear are the power men in the Tar Heel attack, which will be directed by able Buddy Sasser. Sasser, the split-T magician, will alternate his post some with David Reed, who is also a sophomore.

Coach George Barclay has praised Sasser and Reed for their pass in this week in practice, and may employ more of an overhead attack than has been used for the most part of the year.

The game will be telecast coast to coast by NBC, marking the first time a game from this area has been by picture to all parts of the land.

Four Year Vet, Ken Keller, Meets Duke For Last Time

By BILLY JOHNSON

Today's tradition-laden encounter with Duke closes out the Tar Heel season for 1955, and with it the colorful career of one of Carolina's finest running halfbacks, Ken Keller.

Since the beginning of his varsity career back in 1952, Ken has accounted for more than 2,000 yards on the football field. This is an admirable feat for one whose career has been shortened considerably by numerous and lasting injuries. Under Carl Snavely, in 1952, he had landed a starting position by mid-season only to miss the remainder of the season because of an injury sustained against Notre Dame. The following year he led the team in almost all departments and gained due recognition by achieving All-State honors. At this time he was heralded by many as an up-and-coming star. But before the 1954 season even got under way he was back on the injured list resulting from a scrimmage game with Fort Eustis. He was not at top form during the remainder of the season.

This year Ken has turned in many fine performances, his best perhaps coming against Notre Dame when it appeared he might break away for touchdowns on three separate occasions. After this particular game he was singled out and highly praised by Notre Dame Coach Terry Brennan for his all-around play. He is the team's leading scorer thus far with 21 points.

Statistics show that Ken has rushed the ball 241 times for 988 yards and an average of 4.1 yards per carry. With 36 kick-off returns and 777 yards to his credit, he also has caught 19 passes for 252 yards. In the way of punt returns he has 9 for 131 yards, and he comes into today's game with 103 points to his credit.
