THE GIFT HORSE

My column is about Christmas gift suggestions, and I think you think I'll begin by suggesting Philip Morris. Well, I've got you. I'll do no such thing. Why should I? Anyone who wants to knock together knows that Philip Morris is an absolutely smashing Christmas gift. Only a poor soul with atrophied taste buds needs to be told about the Philip Morris; its bracing flavor; its freshness, lightness, gentleness; its truth, its beauty, its brotherliness in a discordant world of ours. So why should I waste time telling you what you already know?

us, instead, turn to less obvious gift suggestions. Here's one you never thought of: Christmas is the best time of year, but it is also the beginning. How about a gift that reminds one that though winter is here, spring is not far behind? I refer, of course, to Easter eggs. (Similarly, on Easter one can give Christmas chicks.) Next, we take up the problem, common to all undergraduates, of buying gifts when you have no money. To this dilemma I say: "Faugh! It is not the price of the gift that counts; it is the thought behind it."

For example, the case of Outerbridge Sigafos. Outerbridge, a sophomore, finding himself without funds last Christmas gave his girl a bottle of good clear water and a nice smooth attaching this touching message to the gift:

Here's some water
And here's a rock,
I love you, daughter,
Around the clock.

and the whole delightful gift cost Outerbridge less than a penny! I am compelled to report, however, that Outerbridge's girl did not receive these offerings in the spirit in which they were intended. In fact, she flew into a fit of pique, smashed the bottle of water and stabbed Outerbridge with the jagged edge. But experience was not without value for Outerbridge. First, he discovered that the girl was not his type at all. Second, he learned how to make a tourniquet.

But I digress. Let's examine now a common complaint of Christmas shoppers: "What do you get for someone who has everything?" To this I reply, "Does he?" Does he, for instance, have a sled dog? A serf? A burroose? A hairball? A burster? (The bung starter, incidentally, was invented by two formerly talented men, Fred Bung and Otho Starter. The bung starter thrived from the very start, and there is no telling what heights they might have risen had they not split up over a silly argument. It seems that Bung was a firm believer in reincarnation; Starter was just as firm a disbeliever. Bung died so violently on the truth of reincarnation and Starter died so positively that they finally decided to get their separate burials. Singly, alas, the two fared badly. Starter gave up business, joined the army, and was killed at San Juan Hill in 1898. He is today buried in Arlington National Cemetery. Bung left from job to job until he died of breakbone fever in Elizabeth, N. J., in 1902. He is today a llama in Uruguay.

Makers of Philip Morris, sponsors of this column, beg leave to make one more gift suggestion - MAX SHULMAN'S GUIDED TOUR OF CAMPUS HUMOR, a collection of the funniest stuff ever written about campus - now on sale at your bookstore.

Sizzling Harvey Salz continued his early season scoring spree last night as he poured in 33 points through the hoop to lead Carolina's freshman basketballers to a thumping 112-72 win over the High Point College Jayvees in a game played in High Point.

It was the third straight win for Coach Freeman's yearlings and also the third consecutive time that Salz, a 6-1 guard from Brooklyn has topped the scoring column. In the Tar Babies opening win over Edwards Military Institute, Salz was the scoring leader with 25 points, and in Saturday night's victory over the U. S. Atlantic Fleet Service Force, he duplicated his earlier performance by ripping the cords for 25 more points.

The Tar Babies were in complete command right from the opening whistle last night, never easing the pressure from start to finish although Coach Freeman substituted freely in an effort to hold the score down. Salz and company rolled up a commanding 55-27 halftime lead and added 57 more in the last half for a total of 112. The High Pointers showed some improvement in the second stanza as they pumped in 45 points, although much of this total was scored against the Carolina subs.

Forward Danny Lotz was runner-up to Salz in the scoring column with 19 points, while guard Stan Groll and forward Gehrmann Holland tallied 14 and 10 points respectively. Big Bill Hathaway, the Tar Babies 6-11 center collected only 4 points, but proved his value in other ways by dominating the backboards and shining on defense. Swigert and Watson were the scoring leaders for High Point with 21 and 18 respectively.

The next and perhaps the biggest test for the Tar Babies comes on Saturday night when they play host to the Baby Deacons from Wake Forest in a 6:15 preliminary to the varsity scrap with the South Carolina Gamecocks.

Tribble Says He Opposed Resignations

Winston-Salem, Dec. 7.—Dr. Harold Tribble, President of Wake Forest College, said here today he opposed the resignations of Athletic Director Pat Preston and football coach Tom Rogers in order "to avoid just such a controversy at this."

He referred to the furor among some students and alumni over the resignations and added that it was his opinion that the whole athletic setup should have been retained to "facilitate the move to Winston-Salem."

The college will occupy its new $19,500,000 campus here next June. The president reiterated that he had no connection with either resignation.

"I have given no indication of a desire to fire anybody in the department," he said. "I want us to go along with the present program and strengthen it."

Dr. Tribble also emphasized that action on the resignations rests with the college board of trustees, which meets in Winston-Salem December 22.
