Victory Village Children Celebrate The Season

'QUITE A NUMBER . . . LEAVING THE HILL TODAY'

Years Ago, Exams Nixed Campus Christmas Plans

By SUE QUINN

Pre-Christmas activities are in full swing here this week, and the chief complaint among students is that they're much too busy going to orphan parties, buying gifts for needy families and trimming trees to study for the inevitable quizzes.

Judging from old issues of The Daily Tar Heel and The Chapel Hill Weekly the overwhelming concern with the holiday season hasn't always dominated the University community at this season. Back in "the good old days" of the quarter system, pre-Christmas exams overshadowed holiday gaiety.

"By 1910, there was a little more Christmas activity. One story read, 'The King's Daughters will give a charity bazaar Friday afternoon. Come and get your sweetheart a Christmas present.' Another item stated that seniors at St. Mary's were getting out a Christmas edition of their publication. The Muse, and 'The Business Manager will be perfectly charmed to receive subscriptions from the University boys.' The final pre-holiday edition of that ear, however, noted only that 'Quite a number of students are leaving the Hill today.'

In 1923, The Chapel Hill Weekly appeared, giving still more attention to seasonal events. The Dec. 20 issue described a banquet given for employees of the University Laundry as follows: "G. H. Paulson had the menus written out on starched collars—just the plain article of commerce. It was a fine blow-out!"

And the same paper announced that Frederick H. Koch, "chieftan" of the Carolina Playmakers had presented a reading of "The Christmas Carol." The story stated that "A candle was on the table beside the reader, to make the spirit of Dickens seem more at home."

A community Christmas festival was also held that year. In "Chapel Hill Chaff," editor Louis Graves commented on certain of the "cherubs" who presented a pageant at the festival. "If they grow up to be as charming as they are now," he said, "they will endanger the equilibrium of the community." Graves also described a local family reunion, at which 13 were present for dinner. "This is reputed to bring on bad luck," he commented, "but it didn't spoil the Pendergrast's appetites."

In 1924 the University's 28 voice a capella choir presented a program of Christmas music. (See CHRISTMAS, page 10.)

Chest Drive Totals $457 From Groups

More than $475 has been contributed to the Campus Chest by UNC organizations, according to Chairman Curtiss Daughtry.

Daughtry said, however, all reports of solicitors are not in yet, but a final report should be available by tomorrow afternoon. All solicitors were requested to get their reports in as soon as possible to enable a tabulation of final reports.

Trophies will be awarded some time after Christmas to the fraternity, sorority, women's and men's dorms contributing the highest average amount per member, Daughtry said.

Minister Assn. Gives Support To WF Head

WINSTON-SALEM Dec. 12, (AP)—Ministers of the Pilot Mountain Baptist Assn. gave their support in a resolution today to Dr. Harold W. Tribble, President of Wake Forest College.

ing committee is at work on a report to be made to the trustees of the college on Dec. 22.

The resolution stated: "Be it resolved that we, the pastors of the Pilot Mountain Assn. do hereby express our complete confidence in Dr. Harold W. Tribble, President of the Wake Forest College, and do offer him our moral support and prayers as he leads in the great undertaking in connection with the removal of Wake Forest College to Winston-Salem." The Pilot Mountain Assn. includes churches in Forsyth and Stokes counties.

Fowler To Look Symposium Bill Over Before Vetoing; Forum Funds May Be Used

Would Find Out More About New Group

By NEIL BASS

President Don Fowler said yesterday he didn't plan to veto a recently-passed bill giving $1,000 to the Carolina Symposium until he talks to the Symposium Finance Committee Chairman Bev Webb.

Fowler said he plans to ask Webb for a "detailed" budget, listing the organization's financial needs, before taking any action on the measure.

"I like the idea, and think it would be an intellectual asset to the campus," Fowler said, "but I want to find out more about" its monetary needs before approving or rejecting the appropriation bill.

Regarding a rumor that Fowler planned to veto the bill because of personal difference between his office and Symposium Chairman Manning Muntzing, he said, "There is none on my part."

David Reid, Carolina Forum vice-chmn., told a reporter he favored transferring a part of the Forum's appropriation to the Symposium and nullifying the $1,000 bill because both organizations "serve the same purpose."

Reid said he'd favor a reduced "appropriation" from the legislature to cover the Symposium's expenses, but thought part of the Forum's funds should be given it.

The Forum's expenses could be cut without damaging its program, Reid said, "by reducing the number invited to the banquet" held prior to the speaker's address.

Asked if he thought the Forum would agree to such a cut, Reid said he favored it and Jim Monteth liked the idea. These are two of the Forum's five officials. Another member will be appointed by President Fowler within the next few weeks.

If the new appointee likes the transfer idea, Reid said, it will go into effect.

Tom Lambeth, Forum Chairman, told a reporter he was "sorry" Reid hadn't talked to him about the idea.

Establishes Grant

Aubrey Lee Brooks, above, has established a million-dollar scholarship fund for high school students attending the University. Eleven scholarships a year, valued at $500 each, will be offered to needy students who will attend UNC, N. C. State or the Woman's College.

Decision Won't Affect Finley Course's Rules

The Supreme Court's new ruling forbidding race discrimination in public parks and golf courses won't affect the 18-hole Finley Golf Course here, according to C. P. Erickson, University director of athletics.

Questioned on the matter, Erickson pointed out that Finley Course, while owned by the Athletic Assn., is not actually a public golf course. It was constructed and is operated specifically for UNC students, faculty, alumni and their guests, he said.

NUMEROUS CHRISTMAS PARTIES HELD:

Fraternities And Sororities Aid The Underprivileged

By JAMES NICHOLS

Many of the sororities and fraternities on campus have either given or are planning to give Christmas parties for orphans and underprivileged children of the area before the holidays start.

In fact, there is such a demand for the children by various organizations, that many were unable to get any child groups for a party this Christmas.

Kappa Delta Sorority and Delta Sigma Pi commercial fraternity teamed up and spent from $150 to $175 for a big party Friday for about 60 children from Oxford Orphanage. There was a decorated Christmas tree, and the children, from 5 to 9 years old, were given gifts by Santa Claus. They were served with punch and had candy, fruits and nuts.

Lambda Chi Alpha gave a party Saturday for some orphans of Methodist Orphanage. The children were taken to the Raleigh-Durham Airport to see Santa Claus fly in. Later, Santa Claus visited the children at the fraternity house and they saw a movie.

Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity is giving a party tomorrow evening for some 30 Negro first-grade students of the elementary school in Carrboro. Santa Claus will be there to give out toys, candy, fruit and nuts. There will be a wrapping party tonight to prepare the gifts for the children.

Tonight Chi Psi Fraternity will entertain approximately 30 children in the 2 to 12 age group from Wright Refuge in Durham. The children will get stockings of fruits, candies and nuts and Santa Claus will pass out toys. They will also be shown movies.

Thursday afternoon, Beta Theta Pi Fraternity will give a party for 30 Negro children of the first grade of Northside Elementary School in Carrboro. Santa Claus will give the children toys, ice cream and cake. There will be movies and games.

On Dec. 2, Zeta Psi Fraternity and Alpha Delta Pi Sorority from Duke gave a party and supper for 22 Methodist Orphanage children. Santa Claus was there with gifts for the youngsters.

The Chi Omegas and Phi Gamma Deltas will give their annual party for 9 to 11-year-olds from Methodist Orphanage Thursday. The children will be given a dinner and Santa Claus will give out gifts.

The Delta Delta Delta Sorority and Kappa Alpha Fraternity joined for their annual children's party. They invited 61 underprivileged children last Tuesday for a party from 4 to 6 p. m. Dean Fred Weaver and his family, Charles Bernard, Ray Jefferies and Sam McGill were also present at the party. The children received gifts from Santa Claus and they had games, singing and refreshments.

Delta Kappa Epsilon will give their annual Christmas party Friday for 50 Oxford Orphanage children. The 9 to 12-year-olds will be served dinner and see some movies. Santa Claus will give out gifts.

The Chi Phis gave a party Sunday afternoon for some orphans (See PARTIES, page 10.)
