WINTER GERMANS

German Club Sponsors

Les Brown Will Play Here Today For Winter Germans

Les Brown, who will play for the annual Winter Germans concert and dance today, is considered one of the finest musical arrangers and song writers as well as one of the nation's top band leaders.

Among his many compositions and his greatest, is the famous "Sentimental Journey."

Before organizing the "Band of Renown" in 1940, Brown did both stock arrangements for publishers and "specials" for such band leaders as Isham Jones, Red Nichols, Ruby Newman, and Jimmy Dorsey.

Les Brown is no stranger to these parts. He graduated from Duke University.

At Duke, he played tenor sax with the Duke Blue Devils and became leader of this band in his senior year. In 1936, he took the Blue Devil Band to Budd Lake, N. J., for the summer and through this engagement the band recorded for Decca and made world transcriptions.

Since its organization, the "Band of Renown" has been consistently popular through the years. In 1955, the Les Brown band won first place in five polls—Downbeat, Metronome, Orchestra World, National Ballroom Operator, and Billboard.

Sponsored by the German Club, Brown and his orchestra will play at the concert from 3 to 5 p.m. this afternoon in Memorial Hall. The formal dance will be tonight from 9 to midnight in Woollen Gymnasium.

The German Club is composed of 13 social fraternities on the campus. It is headed by President Tom Moore of Winston-Salem, member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Vice-President Pat Patteson, Wilson, Phi Delta Theta; Secretary Noel Sullivan of Chapel Hill, Alpha Tau Omega, and Treasurer Bob Mason of Charlotte, Delta Kappa Epsilon.

Rodman Plans To File Suit Against NAACP

RALEIGH—(AP)—Atty. Gen. W. B. Rodman said today he will insist to the courts that the NAACP is liable for failing to register in North Carolina and should be penalized $500 as provided under the law.

Rodman told newsmen that in his opinion the reason the NAACP does not want to register in this state is because it is "raising stupendous amounts of money" in North Carolina and doesn't want to reveal the amount and for what it was spent.

His comments followed a petition filed yesterday in Wake Superior Court by the NAACP, which seeks a judgment saying that it is not subject to two North Carolina laws.

The laws require: (1) out of state corporations operating in North Carolina to register with the secretary of state, and (2) the registration of all agencies which seek to influence public opinion or legislation.

Of the NAACP, Rodman commented: "without them going in and stirring up the people, our problems would be greatly simplified."

The attorney general told newsmen he was getting ready to prepare a suit against the NAACP when it filed its petition here.

Rodman said, "my present thought is to file a demurer to the action—to have the part of the suit relating to the lobbying activities dismissed, leaving for consideration and determination by the court their responsibility and liability under the corporation act. The application of the lobbying statute cannot be determined in this proceeding. Its application will have to be determined at another time."

Norman Draper Elected New President Of Cobb

The residents of Conner Dormitory have chosen their officers for the spring semester.

In an election Thursday night, the students voted Norman R. Draper their new president.

Draper, of Southampton, England, is a graduate student in statistics.

The vice-president of the dormitory is Herman Schneider, of Chicago, Ill.

Bob Cooper, of Raleigh, was elected secretary-treasurer.

The IDC representative is Bob Pittman, from Gates.

Philosophy Depts. Set Discussion

The UNC and Duke Departments of Philosophy will sponsor a lecture by Prof. William Frankena Monday at 3 p.m. in the faculty lounge of the Morehead Planetarium Building.

The topic of the lecture will be "Obligation and Motivation in Recent Moral Philosophy."

Professor Frankena is chairman of the Dept. of Philosophy of the University of Michigan. He is well known in philosophical circles in this country and in England.

This lecture will begin a series of addresses to the joint seminar conducted by the two departments in the present semester. Official registration is not necessary for admission.

SAYS POLICE CAPT. W. D. BLAKE:

UNC Doesn't Cause Much Trouble

By W. A. VAN TREUREN
Last spring's party raids in which nine UNC students were arrested are the only incidents Capt. W. D. Blake of the Chapel Hill Police Dept. could bring to mind when asked if students caused much trouble.

"Student trouble is only minor considering the number of students here," Blake said. Those arrested in the party raids were fined $50 and costs. Some asked for and are awaiting jury trial in Hillsboro Superior Court.

There are 16 men on the Chapel Hill Police Dept. Also with the department are two part-time Negro officers and Mrs. Fred Howdy, traffic clerk.

Three sergeants are on the force, each with three men under them who rotate on eight-hour shifts. There are as many men as appropriations provide for, but Capt. Blake said the department's still undermanned in relation to population and existing conditions.

Capt. Blake said Friday and Saturday are the busiest days for the force, and consequently no one is off. During the rest of the week, one man from each shift is given one day off a week. All but one on the force are married and have at least one child.

Capt. Blake started with the University campus police in 1938 and went to the Chapel Hill force in 1941. Chief of Police W. T. Sloan resigned as sheriff of Orange County in 1935 to take his present job.

Blake said campus police are sworn in as town peace officers and are paid by the University.

New Acting Provost

Texas-Born Whyburn Is Tar Heel Now

By CLARKE JONES

Dr. William M. Whyburn, recently-elected Acting Provost of the Consolidated University, is a Texan by birth but admits he "is a full-fledged Tar Heel now."

Especially is he a Chapel Hillian. "There's no finer place in which to live," he said in reference to how he liked it here.

Whyburn, chairman of the Mathematics Dept. here at UNC, was elected to his new position by the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees last Monday at the Trustee meeting in Raleigh.

About his new job, Whyburn says "On matters having to do with academic affairs of the University, I will study material made available to me and will undertake to be accessible to interested personnel on all campuses (Woman's College, N. C. State, and North Carolina). From these careful considerations I hope I can advise the president on any action needed at the level of his office."

"I consider the office of very high importance in the University and it was this consideration that led me to undertake the assignments when Mr. Bill Friday (Acting President of the Consolidated University) and the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees invited me to do so."

About Whyburn, Friday says "He will serve as the chief academic officer of the Consolidated office. In this capacity, he will coordinate the academic programs of the three institutions."

Whyburn, according to a biographical report, has had widespread experience in the academic field having fulfilled 16 years of service at UCLA and four years as president of Texas Technological Institute, a state-supported institution.

A year ago, Whyburn obtained a leave of absence from the academie year 1954-55 under provisions of a grant from the Office of Scientific Research, U. S. Air Force.

"In this connection," he says, "I spent the summer of 1955 at universities in France, Italy, Germany and England."

"My present research activity," he explained further, "is in the field of non-linear differential equations and their applications. It is being sponsored by the office of Scientific Research, U. S. Air Force, and U. S. Navy."

Whyburn cited one incident that may explain why he likes it here a great deal. "On the day after I was elected as Acting Provost," he said, "my newsboy wrote 'congratulations' beside the news of my new position."

"Here was a newsboy who was in a hurry to finish his route but yet took the time to write something like that," he said. "Its things like that that you remember."

Whyburn, who lives at 4 Mt. Bolus Dr. in Chapel Hill, is married to the former Marie Barfield and has two children, Mrs. Robert W. Bussard whose husband is a physicist engineer in the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory, and a son, Clifton, a sophomore majoring Physics at the Univ. of Alabama. He also has a 4-year-old granddaughter.

Legislature Roundup

Legislators Uncertain About Traffic Measure

By NEIL BASS

Student lawmakers seem to be a little in the dark about the bill to punish "excessive" violators of traffic regulations.

John Curtis, Student Party floorleader and introducer of the bill, says he thinks the bill applies only to violations incurred on the campus. While others have said the measure can put the heat on students for breaking regulations in the town of Chapel Hill too.

As the bill is written it states: "... to discipline excessive student violators of the traffic regulations of the University campus and of Chapel Hill."

Thus it would seem that students may be prosecuted by the Traffic Committee for "flagrant" violations of both campus rules and Chapel Hill regulations.

The Traffic Committee thus has been empowered with authority to take away student cars from "flagrant" regulation breakers.

President Don Fowler appointed the Committee some time ago, but it "floundered" around without official sanction to execute any proposal affecting the campus as a whole.

Now the group can tighten-down on students who they think are completely disregarding and taking lightly the business of getting tickets.

Layton McCurdy chairs the Committee. Other members are: Chuck Flack, Jim Monteith, Eric Jonas, Bob Mason, Gordon Folley and Jim Dockery.

Fowler said he thinks the bill "is the way to keep cars." A few "flagrant" violators have been the "cause" of the "movement" to limit cars, he said. "The storage lot," he concluded, "is the last resort."

The legislators, some think, took an admirable step when they passed a bill shortening the time limit for turning-in excuses for missed sessions. Some legislators have, on occasion, been absent for two consecutive meetings. Now they have put a little pressure on themselves which should make attendance better.

Planetarium Show Is One Of Best Yet

New color, electrical, and sound effects have so impressed viewers that they are acclaiming the current "Color in the Sky" as one of the Morehead Planetarium's best demonstrations.

Patrons are lavish in their praise of the Planetarium's reproduction of the sunrise and sunset during which the chamber is bathed in a multitude of beautiful colors, and of the fascinating discharge tube in which 20,000 volts of electricity are shot to demonstrate what scientists believe is the cause of the Aurora lights.

To explain the aurora lights, a vacuum is created in a four-foot glass tube. Into it is poured 20,000 volts of electricity, and the light of the electrical charge changes gradually in color from blue to orange.

Many viewers of the show say that never before did they appreciate the color in the heavens or understand why objects and phenomena in the skies emit or reflect light in the colors that they do.

ACC Head Probes Fracas

Atlantic Coast Conference Commissioner Jim Weaver spent the day at Chapel Hill and Wake Forest today investigating the free-for-all which followed the North Carolina-Wake Forest basketball game in Chapel Hill on Wednesday night.

Weaver talked with coaches and officials at Carolina early this afternoon and then went to Wake Forest where he discussed the matter with school officials and coaches as well as meeting with the Deacon basketball squad.

He returned to Chapel Hill to talk with the Carolina basketball squad at 8 p.m.

Following Carolina's 77-73 victory in an exciting and well-played ball game players and students of the two schools became involved in a fistfight on the court.

Weaver, due to return home late tonight, had no comments on the progress of his investigation, which also included reports from the game officials, Dallas Shirley and Phil Fox, both of Washington, D. C.

Sound & Fury Makes Plans For Spring

Sound and Fury, student drama group, held its first organizational meeting this week in Graham Memorial.

Positions that have been filled include producer, Blake Hunter; lighting designer, Miss June Eschweiler; choreography, Miss Blynn Durning, and property master, Bill Wood.

Also, publicity director, Chas Schley; business manager, Jay Zimmerman; costume designer, Miss Bo Bernardin; stage manager, Lew Sherman; master electrician, John Ludwig, and construction and stage crew chief, Bill Wearmouth.

Anyone wishing to work behind the scenes of the spring performance of Sound and Fury may contact Blake Hunter in 30 Old West, according to an announcement from the group.

UP's Fourth Letter Out

The fourth issue of the University Party newsletter came out yesterday.

The newsletter is published by the UP Publicity Committee. The committee is headed by Mike Weinman and other members are Jackie Cooper, Miss Nan Brown, Al Goldsmith, Miss Pat Oliver and Miss Marsha McCord.

The newsletter is sent out each week to party members giving information concerning meetings, committee meetings and current campus affairs.

In this fourth issue, a stress was put on the importance of beginning work early for the spring elections. "Success in the coming election cannot be achieved by two frantic weeks of work before the election," it said.

An "Old Grads' Banquet" is being planned by the party for alumni who are former members of the party, according to the newsletter.

IN THE INFIRMARY

Students included in the infirmary yesterday included: Miss Mary G. Clarke, Miss Peggy L. Slate, Miss Carolyn E. Miller, Miss Jean Leach, Thomas R. Grimes, Dawson E. Scarborough, Andrew J. Pollard, Jerry H. Morris, Roger W. Dalehite, Dewey E. Johnson Jr., William T. Reece, Craig M. White, Donald E. Huntington Jr., Robert Dannenbaum, F. David Small, Christopher G. Crowson, Melvin L.
