LES BROWN'S ORCHESTRA

Pretty Gals Arrive For Festivities

German Club members and their dates listened and danced to the music of Les Brown yesterday.

The occasion was Winter Germans, a traditional concert-and-dance affair for Carolina fraternity men. Bandmaster Brown and his men provided a Memorial Hall concert yesterday afternoon, and couples danced to the music last night at Woolfen Gymnasium.

The town was flooded with pretty girls. Observers at the bus station reported seeing dozens of pretty girls from Woman's College in Greensboro arriving yesterday afternoon, and the eating places were full of fluffy crinolines and neatly-pressed suits.

The concert and the dance are sponsored three times a year by the Carolina German Club, an organization made up of fraternity members. Last fall, Bandleader Stan Kenton got his wires crossed with the German Club and didn't make it for the afternoon concert but played for the dance.

Sponsors for Winter Germans were Miss Mary Lee LaFar of Gastonia, with President Tom Moore; Miss Margaret Edmundson of Wilson, with Vice-president Patten; Miss Ann Gobel of Chapel Hill, with Secretary Noel Sullivan, and Miss Esten Bohannon of Charlotte, with Treasurer Bob Mason.

7:30 AT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH:

Students Observe World Prayer Day

Carolina Students will join their friends all over the world today in celebrating the Universal day of prayer.

The observance, promoted through the World Student Christian Federation, will be held on the UNC campus this evening at 7:30 in the sanctuary of the Presbyterian Church.

More church news will be found on Page 4, under CHAPEL HILL CHURCHES.

Miss Sally Folger, Will Spong and Clay Stalnaker, leaders in three of the student Christian organizations here, will take part in the program this evening.

Rev. F. N. Cox, a minister of the Protestant Episcopal Church, will come from Greensboro to deliver the meditation to students representing local Protestant student groups, as well as campus and community at large.

Most student church groups on the campus will take part in the Day of Prayer observances. Officials said individual church groups will hold their usual Sunday evening meetings, then gather at the Presbyterian Church for the consolidated meeting.

Miss Folger, from Millgeville, Ga. is president of the Carolina YWCA and chairman of the regional YWCA Council, which includes representatives from 10 Southern states. A member of Westminster Fellowship, she is majoring in sociology, and is a member of the Student Party.

Will Spong, of Charlotte, is president of the Canterbury Club and senior vestry man in the Episcopal Student Congregation. Majoring in European history, he plans to enter the Episcopal Theological School of Virginia as a guest of the Episcopal priesthood.

Clay Stalnaker, zoology major from Spindale, serves as vice-president and chairman of the enrollment committee of the Baptist Student Union. In the statewide BSU he is a representative to the General Board of the Baptist State Convention. He also represents the Baptist student organization on the student affairs committee of the local church.

Two more men have been added to the list of prominent speakers at next month's Carolina Symposium on Public Affairs.

They, along with six others, will make up the "once in a college generation" symposium, according to Chairman Manning Muntzing. The three other speakers will be announced later this week, Muntzing said.

Previously named speakers are James B. (Scotty) Reston of The New York Times; Carlos P. Romulo, ambassador to the United States from the Philippines; Dr. Ralph Bunche of the United Nations; Maj. L. More recently he has aided in the organization of the Southern School News, a monthly publication which tells the story, factually and objectively, of what happens in education as a result of the Supreme Court's opinion . . . that segregation in the public schools is unconstitutional.

AVERAGES 100 PERCENT BETTER:

Reading Program Increases Speed

By W. A. VAN TREUREN

Are you one of those students who is having trouble reading all that is assigned in classes? If so, the University has a remedy.

The "reading program," under the direction of Paul Irvine, is again underway to improve reading ability and study skills.

Irvine said "most of the students' work will be accomplished with reading manuals such as Norman Lewis' 'How to Read Better and Faster.'" Dozens of different manuals and books of exercises are assigned to students on the basis of what type of work they need.

The "reading program" is a remedial laboratory in one sense of the word. The results gained have astounded many participants. Improvement varies with the individual.

Irvine said average improvement runs about 100 percent in reading speed and somewhat less in comprehension. This means that if your reading speed is now 300 words per minute, you might hope to be reading 600 words per minute after a full semester of the program.

The program is free for the asking. Demand for the program has exceeded the number who have been able to take advantage of it. Irvine, who got his masters in education here, is the only full-time employee. He has five graduate students who work with the students part-time.

Irvine said "instruction will be, to a great extent, set up on an individual basis." It is expected that each class will con-
