Editorial Writers Conference Will Be Held Here May 18-19

Two North Carolina daily newspaper editors will speak at the Saturday night dinner session of the Editorial Writers Conference, to be held here May 18-19.

These speakers are Pete McKnight of The Charlotte Observer and Mark Ethridge Jr. of the Raleigh Times. Both of these editors have recently taken over the direction of their newspapers.

The conference will begin Friday night at 8:30 in Carroll Hall with a panel discussion on "The Revenue Structure of North Carolina." Brandon Hodges, Chairman of the Commission for the Study of the Revenue Structure of the State, will be the moderator.

Panelists will be Eugene Shaw, N. C. Commissioner of Revenue; Arthur Kirkman, state senator from Guilford County; and David McConnell, Charlotte attorney.

Saturday morning Harold Sugg, associate editor of the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot, will criticize the editorial pages of this State. After he has presented his report, the editors criticized will be given the opportunity to reply, as will the other editors and editorial writers attending the session.

Sugg, a native of Greenville, is a graduate of Davidson and a journalism alumnus of Carolina. He has contributed to Harper's and other national publications. During the time he has been in Virginia he has come to be recognized as one of the sharpest observers in that state.

Following a luncheon in the Morehead Planetarium, Governor Luther Hodges and Tom Pearsall will speak in the Pearsall Committee's report and the Governor's school plans. A question and answer period will follow.

Following the discussion a business session will be held. The conference will end at the Saturday night dinner session, at which McKnight and Ethridge will speak.

A Campus-to-Career Case History

Dick Walsh (right) discussing carrier equipment which will provide many additional long distance circuits out of Philadelphia.

"There's opportunity in a growing company"

As an Engineer in the Transmission Section of Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania, Richard M. Walsh plans for the future.

"Our group's responsibility," says Dick, "is to see that we have sufficient facilities to handle present and future needs. Telephone usage is growing every year, and we keep up with this growth by keeping ahead of it."

"For instance, to meet the increasing demand for communication circuits in our area, we're adding 70,000 new channel miles this year alone, at a cost of $3,500,000. Laying new cable will give us 40,000 of those channel miles, and we'll get the other 30,000 through use of carrier equipment, which lets us send a number of long distance calls on each pair of wires simultaneously.

"Thus, though a cable might have only 300 pairs of wires, we can, with carrier, make it carry over 3000 telephone calls at one time. Using carrier equipment to get extra circuits out of cable—which is expensive to make and lay—is an example of how we engineer to give high-grade service at the lowest possible cost."

"Before I graduated from college I had interviews with twenty-eight companies. Out of all these I chose the telephone company because it had the most to offer in the way of interesting work, training and opportunity. This certainly turned out to be true. In a growing business your opportunities grow, too."

Dick Walsh graduated in 1953 from the University of Delaware with a B.S. in Mechanical Engineering. There are many interesting career opportunities in other Bell Telephone Companies, and in Bell Telephone Laboratories, Western Electric and Sandia Corporation. Your placement officer can give you more information about all Bell System Companies.
