on, will be denied right to keep a car on campus unless they maintain a "C" average.

The report also recommends a $2.50 registration fee assessment to car owners. Such a fee would be used for the construction of additional parking lots on campus, and for enforcement of traffic regulations.

Here is the complete report:

First, the Commission wishes to go on record as opposing any limitation of student cars on the grounds of principle. Secondly, the Commission is not convinced that limitation of student cars will, in the long range view, completely solve the problem. Chapel Hill, like every other town of our acquaintance, has a parking problem: In a real sense, the student body has become the scapegoat of the issue. And, while most students do not pay taxes in Chapel Hill and thus are not altogether on a firm footing to voice their wishes in the town councils, we are mindful, and we feel that the merchants of the town are mindful, of the great economic contribution by members of the student body to the town at large. In short, we feel that restriction efforts are directed at students largely because they are the most convenient target.

Third, we are making several general recommendations concerning automobile limitation solely as the result of being able to find no other solution, realizing that this is not the complete answer. However, quite apart from any principle whatever, we are forced to make some recommendations which involve restriction of student cars. We do this, not because we are persuaded that there is a direct correlation between car ownership and academic performance, but simply because we feel that of the many car-owning groups in Chapel Hill, i.e. merchants, faculty members, etc., the students are the only ones upon whom the restriction can be enforced and the group that has the least demanding claim upon car use. We are hopeful that this decision will be interpreted as a demonstration of good will on the part of the students in doing their share in solving the problem, and we hope it will elicit cooperation from all other parties in the way of providing more parking space in the near future.

The Commission recommends

1. Freshmen entering the University in the fall of 1956 and thereafter be restricted from having an automobile during his first academic year at the University.

2. This restriction shall also be applied to all sophomores in the academic year 1957-58 and thereafter who shall not attain to a "C" average during their freshman

3. Commuters, veterans and physically handicapped students shall be excepted from this rule when so designated by the office of student affairs.
