Watermelon Queen Contestants Receive Instructions

Planetarium To Have Open House Tuesday

By BILLY BARNES

Summer School students will have an unusual opportunity to tour the upper rooms of the Morehead Planetarium at an open house to be held especially for the students at the Planetarium Tuesday from 2 to 5 p.m.

The showing of these rooms will supplement the Planetarium's regular summer program featuring "Mars, Planet of Mysteries."

The three rooms not often seen by students are the Dining Room, the Faculty Lounge and the University Room. These are available only for faculty and staff functions, special meetings of Consolidated University organizations and other group functions approved by the Planetarium staff.

Planetarium manager Tony Jenzano explains the purpose of the rooms this way: "The rooms in themselves, are nothing but rooms. But they are useful when a group needs an aesthetic atmosphere."

The Dining Room, situated directly beneath the building's dome, is an oval chamber panelled in rich walnut. A large chandelier of Czechoslovakian cut-crystal hangs over the massive dining table.

Portraits of four outstanding members of the Morehead family are to be seen here. They are John Motley Morehead, donor of the Planetarium; the donor's father, Major J. T. Morehead, in the grey and gold uniform of the Confederate Army; and John Motley Morehead, grandfather of the donor and Governor of North Carolina, 1840-44.

Among the outstanding events in this room are the buffet luncheons held for visiting alumni after each home football game.

The southwest wing of the Planetarium's second floor houses the University Room. Two glass-doored bookcases here are filled with books printed by the University of North Carolina Press.

Next Free Movie To Be Here Next Friday

A free movie, "The High and the Mighty," starring John Wayne, Claire Trevor and Laraine Day, will be shown July 5, at 8 p.m. in Carroll Hall.

This movie is the story of how co-pilot Dan Roman, who has used up his nine lives, starts on his tenth as a Trans-Orient Pacific airliner takes off from Honolulu with a bizarre group of people thrown together by fate. The production, described as the most suspenseful, hair-raising flight ever filmed, comes to a climax after an amazing interplay of human emotions under stress.

"Jane Eyre," starring Joan Fontaine, Orson Welles and Margaret O'Brien will be shown July 12.

Musical Team To Perform Here Tuesday

The Musical Portraits, attempting to combine opera, concert and musical comedy, will be presented Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Hill Hall.

The group will consist of Dolores Baldyga, a soprano who sings with the Boston Symphony; Dana Lordly, a pianist and arranger who started the group; and Jay Wentland, a baritone who was a student of Frederick Jagel.

The members of the group met in the New England Conservatory in Boston. There they discovered the suppressed boredom that so often accompanies the formal recital approach. With this in mind, they conceived a program idea that would incorporate their serious musical and dramatic training into various scenes and skits.

Breaking from the tradition of using the established dialogue of musical comedy scenes, the trio preferred to set their arrangements into situations that everyone would recognize, such as a scene in a living room or a museum, or a husband and wife disputing over a television set.

Featured in the program will be anniversary tributes to both opera and musical comedy, which include scenes from "The Marriage of Figaro," in celebration of Mozart, and an adaptation of "The Wizard of Oz."

Watermelon Fete Here Wednesday

By MARIAN HOBECK

With July 4 less than a week away, plans for the Watermelon Festival are in their final stage.

The Watermelon Festival is the big event of the season. Towns people as well as students have been invited. Over 3,000 turned out for this event last year and the Festival committee is expecting an even larger turnout this year.

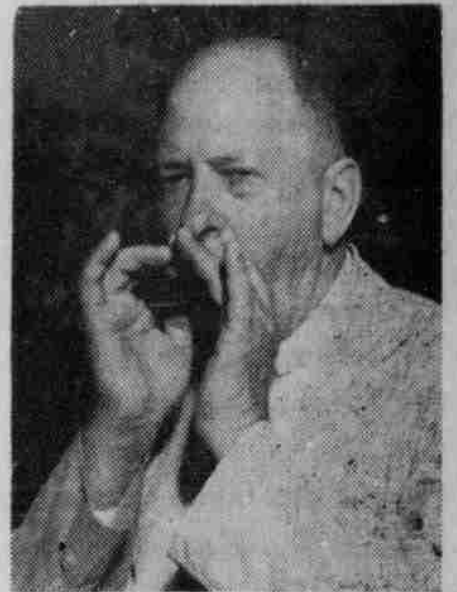

The Festival will begin at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday in McCorkle Place, near Davie Poplar.

Voting for a queen for the festival began in Y court this week and will end at 3 p.m. Wednesday. Results of the voting will not be announced until Chancellor House crowns the queen.

Contestants and their sponsors in this contest are: Misses Barbara Johnson, Carr; Sally Pullen, Stacy; Annette Niven, Smith; Gayle Hussman, Alderman; Sally Robertson, Pi Beta Phi; Ann Norman, Chi Omega; Marian Dickens, Phi Kappa Sigma; Sylvia Crumpler, Spencer; Nancy McFadden, Tri Delta; Joanne Aldridge, Kenan; Kit Lee Singleton, McIver; and Dottie Wood, the Y.

The coronation of the king, who will be a faculty member, and the queen will take place at 9 p.m. during an intermission of the dance, which will be held after a variety show. All of the contestants will form a figure on the steps of South Building where the coronation will take place.

During the variety show there will be a watermelon-eating contest. A faculty team will oppose a student team in this relay. The teams will consist of eight members. Jim Tatum is expected to be a member of the faculty team unless he is out of town. This contest should prove quite humorous.

Also as part of the variety show there will be a faculty combo featuring Chancellor House and his harmonica.

Miss Marie Woody, queen of last year's festival, and Miss Joy Lambert, Miss Raleigh of 1956, will be guests of honor at the Festival. Several other guests have been asked but have not yet replied.

The dance will be held immediately following the variety show in the parking lot adjacent to Y Court. The dance will last until 11 p.m.

Bob Morrow, chairman of the Festival Committee, has urged everyone to come to the Festival to help UNC celebrate the Fourth of July and to make this Festival one to be remembered.

Perform Here Tuesday
