Today's Activities Include Game, Reception And Dance; 1,000 WC Girls Are Coming

Approximately 1,000 girls from Woman's College and many students from State College will arrive here today for the Carolina-State football game and Consolidated University Day.

Activities of CU Day, sponsored by the Consolidated University Student Council, will include a reception at Graham Memorial following the game, a dance in Woolen Gym and the crowning of the CU Queen.

This is the first of three CU Days to be held this year. One each is held annually on the campuses of UNC, State and WC.

The reception, also sponsored by the CUSC, will be for all students from the three sister institutions of the University. Punch and cookies will be served.

GRAIL DANCE

The dance, sponsored by the Order of the Holy Grail, will be held from 8-11 p.m. Bill Langley and his Stardreamers, a 12-piece band, will play.

Tickets will cost $1 each, stag or drag. The dance will be informal, according to Grail dance chairman Don Miller.

Boys have been requested to wear coats and ties.

The dance will be the biggest of the year here as these will be no Coed Ball, said one member of the Grail. The organization, which holds the dance concession here, will turn the proceeds over to the Grail scholarship fund or to charity.

The Consolidated University Queen will be announced during intermission at the dance. She will be chosen from among nine contestants, three each from UNC, State and WC. The nine contestants will be presented at halftime during the game today.

Representing UNC will be Misses Lucinda Holderness of Spencer dormitory, Jane Welch of Chi Omega sorority and Jane Little of Pi Beta Phi.

Three Girls From Each School In Queen Race

Three students of Woman's College in Greensboro and three girls representing State College in Raleigh will participate in today's Consolidated University Queen contest along with three contestants chosen from Carolina.

WC's representatives chosen in a recent campus-wide election will be Misses Ann Fitzhugh, a senior; Pat Mane, a junior; and Nancy Morrison, also a junior.

Representing State College will be: Miss Pat Ponder of Raleigh, a freshman at State; Miss Beverly Little of Jefferson, a freshman nuclear engineering major attending State College on a Lockheed scholarship; and Miss Ursula Swisgood of Raleigh, a sophomore in General Studies at State.

State's contestants in the contest were chosen by a 15-man Consoldated University State College Committee, and were selected from a group of thirteen nominees. A beauty contest was staged at State to determine which of the girls would represent the college.

Carolina's contestants will be Miss Lucinda Holderness, of Spencer Dormitory; Miss Jane Welch representing the Chi Omega Sorority; and Miss Jane Little, representing the Pi Beta Phi Sorority.

Representatives from all dorms and sorority houses participated in the contest this week to select Carolina's coed contestants. Those participating were Misses Dickey Pickerrill, Kappa Delta; Phil Kraftt, Melver; Pat Dillin, Alderman; Ann Smith, Alpha Gamma Delta; Barbara Johnson, Carr; and Marion Dickens, Smith.

The contestants from the three campuses of the Consolidated University will be presented at the halftime of today's game, and the winner will be crowned at tonight's dance in Woolen Gym, to be sponsored by the Order of the Holy Grail.

Forum Bringing Dr. K. Tong To Speak Here

Dr. Hollington K. Tong, ambassador of the Chinese Republic to the United States, will give a public address here Thursday night.

Dr. Tong's appearance is being sponsored by the Carolina Forum, non-partisan student organization which brings to the campus from time to time prominent speakers "who reflect varying shades of political and economic thought."

"The Success of the New Tactics of the Chinese Communists" is the tentative topic for Dr. Tong's speech, to be given at 8 p.m. in Hill Hall.

Forum chairman James H. Holmes announced that Dr. Tong will be honored at a private banquet preceding his address, and at a public reception following in Graham Memorial.

Dr. Tong became Ambassador to the United States in May, 1956, after serving as the first postwar Chinese Ambassador to Japan. A former journalist, he was editor or managing editor of a number of North China newspapers before World War II.

Chairman Holmes, a junior from Washington, D. C., said that announcements will be made soon of five other prominent speakers who will visit the campus under Forum sponsorship.

news in brief

LONDON (AP)—The Suez Canal Users' Assn. has come into being—at least on paper. A majority of the 18 nations at the second conference here have supported the organization. The pact was cooled by refusal of the French to go along at this time.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said he was very satisfied with the outcome.

In PARIS, the French Cabinet will hold a special meeting today to consider results of the London conference and hear a report from Foreign Minister Pineau. He said last night the users' plan is too hazy on canal tolls.

In CAIRO, the Middle East News Agency announced the Big Three of the Arab nations will hold another meeting next week. Attending will be President Nasser of Egypt, President Kuwatly of Syria and King Saud of Saudi Arabia.

In WASHINGTON the State Dept. approved passports for seven Americans who want to work as pilots on the Suez Canal.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Politics continued here. President Eisenhower returned to the Capitol after a two-day visit to Iowa. Democratic candidate Adlai Stevenson talked labor matters and party finance with organized labor leaders.

In MINNEAPOLIS, Vice President Richard Nixon continued his defense of the administration farm program. It is working, and will restore prosperity to agriculture, he said.

Pep Rally Held Here Last Night

The Student Body staged a most enthusiastic "Beat State" pep rally last night.

Preliminary "firing up" events included a daring fire-blazing baton twirling demonstration by Jo Carpenter, head majorette, and spontaneous singing of "Dixie" and "Hark the Sound."

The parade, going up Raleigh Road to Columbia St. to East Cameron and down Raleigh back to the gym, was led by the majorettes, the band, and a motorcade of cheerleaders, with the students joining en masse.

The enthusiasm of the crowd grew so intense once with so much toilet tissue streaming through the air, the batons cracking some heads, that a slight melee almost occurred between students and majorettes, but this was quickly broken up by Head Cheerleader Jim Bynum.

The pep rally ended with a large crowd, gathered around a huge—and hot—bonfire on the Intramural Field, cheering the team on to victory today.

Playmakers To Begin Tryouts

The Carolina Playmakers will hold tryouts for their first production of the season, the recent Broadway success, "Anastasia", on Monday at 4 and 7:30 p.m. in the Playmakers Theatre.

The play will be directed by Samuel Selden, chairman of the Dept. of Dramatic Art and Director of the Playmakers, and will appear at the theatre October 17 through 21.

"Anastasia" is a suspenseful drama of a girl involved in a plot to claim as the heir to the Russian dynasty. The play has thirteen characters. Copies of the play are available at the reserve desk in the library. Tryouts are open to everyone, according to Selden.

A-Positive Blood Needed For Youth At Hospital

Wayne Brown, 12-year-old mummy in southern Chatham, is battling a rare hemophilic (internal bleeding) condition at Memorial Hospital and is greatly in need of donations of "A-Positive" type blood. His condition, inherited from his mother's family, was brought on by a cerebral hemorrhage last week. The lad's uncle is also in Memorial Hospital with a hemophilic condition.

Averett Girls Will Visit Here Tomorrow

One hundred and fifty girls who are freshman and sophomores at Averett College in Danville, Virginia will be on campus tomorrow afternoon.

They will attend a show at The Morehead Planetarium and a reception following in Graham Memorial.

All freshmen have been urged to attend the reception at Graham Memorial at 4 p.m.

A return trip for Carolina men will be held in Danville on September 27. This will be an annual dance, sponsored by the Freshmen Fellowship group of the YMCA.

Bus transportation will be provided to Danville, which is 55 miles from Chapel Hill.

Rameses VII Will Be On Hand Today

Rameses VII, who was christened at the Carolina-Oklahoma game last year, will be back today before kick-off time of the Carolina State game.

Although the Carolina mascot will be down on the field, his guardian for the 1955 season, Glenn Hogan, has retired. Replacing Hogan after 28 years of service, is his nephew, Robert C. Hogan, who will have the responsibility of caring for and protecting Rameses. Both Hogans live on the Hogan farm on Rt. 2 where Rameses lives when not on duty.

Thirty months old and 50 pounds heavier, Rameses is an authentic ram with a black face and horns and is sire for 50 sheep on the Hogan farm. The present mascot is a direct descendant of Rameses V, a gift from a Carolina alumni in Texas.

Yesterday, an extra heavy guard was placed on the ram in the hopes of preventing the recurrence of an abduction by State students such as has happened in past years.

Rameses will enter with the Carolina students and proceed down the aisle through the Carolina cheering section to the field. His arrival is set for 1 p.m.

The mascot, with his bearded game attendant, Bushy Cook, will come to all home games and will probably be at the Wake Forest game and possibly the Virginia contest.

In 1924 Vic Huggins, head cheerleader, started the tradition of having a ram as mascot. "State had their wolf, Army its mule, Navy its goat, and Georgia its bulldog," Vic Huggins said. Carolina took the ram.

Rameses I was introduced at the Carolina-VMI game. Carolina took VMI three to nothing to break a two game losing streak. Rameses I was accepted as a symbol of good fortune. Rameses is the continuation of a 34 year tradition.

Wolfpack Is 7 Point Underdog Against UNC

By LARRY CHEEK
Daily Tar Heel Sports Editor

Coach Jim Tatum's ambitious but untested Carolina Tar Heels will receive their baptism under fire here this afternoon in Kenan Stadium when they play host to the dangerous N. C. State Wolfpack.

The game, expected to draw a throng of more than 30,000, is slated to get underway at 2 p.m. under crisp cloudless skies.

Carolina has been made a 7-point favorite by the oddsmakers, but most observers rate the contest a tossup. Both squads are figured to be improved over last season when the Tar Heels took a 25-18 decision. Each has a potent offensive punch, while both Tatum and State Coach Earle Edwards have been moaning about inadequate defenses.

SECRET DRILLS
Tatum has been putting his squad through secret drills all week long in an effort to shore up his sagging defensive fences, but still is uncertain as to what may happen this afternoon when Edwards turns loose his speedy crop of racehorse backs and his potent passing attack.

"We have no way of knowing what our boys will do under game conditions," he said yesterday. "Our defense is untested and inexperienced, so we don't know what to expect," he went on to say.

The Tar Heel offense should be able to take care of itself, from all indications. Tatum has a flock of fine backs headed by veteran halfbacks Ed Sutton and Larry McMullen. Hard running junior Giles Gacs should capably handle the line plunging chores. Backing the three up will be Buddy Sasser and Daley Goff at the second string halves, and Wally Vale, the team's leading punter, at the number fullback slot.

Johnston urged that members of the schools and classes turn up early in their scheduled times to facilitate the photographing and for their own convenience.

Seniors will have until Friday, September 28, to be photographed for this year's annual. The schedule for other classes and schools is as follows:

Oct. 1-5 — Freshmen and Nursing School (except Senior nurses).
Oct. 8-12 — Sophomores, Pharmacy School, Dental School, and Dental Hygiene students.
Oct. 15-19 — Juniors, Medical School, Law School, and Graduate School.

Johnson expressed the hope that more fraternity men would turn out this year to be photographed. He pointed out that the Yackety-Yack is one of the best means of publicity for fraternities because of its large circulation among high schools and prep schools.

Individual annual photographs are being made this year by Smith Studios of Raleigh.

Up front, veteran ends Buddy Payne, a rangy junior, and Larry Muschup will handle the pass receiving duties. Paul Pulley and Vince Olen, a pair of promising juniors, will spell the two starters.

The remainder of the Tar Heel line finds Stuart Pell and Phil Blazer at tackles. Don Lear and Hap Setzer at guards, and co-captain George Stavinski at center.

STEADY BACKS
State will trot out a fast, tricky starting backfield and a multiple offense which could spell trouble for the Tar Heel defense. Dick Hunter and Dick Christy, two juniors with a year of experience under their belts, will open at the halves, diminutive Tony Guerrieri at fullback, and youthful Tom Katich at quarterback. Guerrieri and Katich are also juniors.

In addition to the four boys above, Coach Earle Edwards has a trio of high steppers who are just about as good. George (Wagon-Wheels) Marinkov, the game captain for the Pack, is considered to be the squad's most dangerous runner, although he is weak on defense. Billy Franklin is an experienced signal caller, and shifty Hike Miller is always a threat at halfback.

John Lowe and John Collar will start at end for the Wolfpack; John Suchan and Dick DeAngelis will be at tackles; Julius Compton and Francis Tokar are set at guards; and Jim Oddo will be at center.

WEIGHT ADVANTAGE
The Tar Heels will outweigh State by an average of 15 pounds. State by an average of 15 pounds. (See FOOTBALL, Page 3)

"Mars, Planet of Mystery" will close at the Morehead Planetarium here on Monday night after a specially arranged football weekend schedule of performances.

So that N. C. State and University football fans may view the current demonstration, performances will be given at 11 a.m. and immediately following the game today, in addition to the regular 8:30 o'clock nightly demonstrations. Tomorrow's schedule of matinees at 2, 3, and 4 p.m. will remain unchanged, and the final offering of the Mars show will be Monday at 8:30 p.m.

An entirely new demonstration, titled "Our Sun" will open on Tuesday night, September 25.

Yack Photo Taking Is Going Slow

A mid-afternoon check yesterday showed that very few seniors had appeared for their Yackety-Yack photographs in the second day of scheduled picture taking.

Twenty members of a class of approximately 800 had shown up at 3:30 yesterday, according to Editor Tommy Johnson.

"We hope to have an unprecedented number of class pictures in the annual this year," Johnson stated, "but it cannot be done unless classes cooperate by using their scheduled time to the greatest advantage."

Johnston urged that members of the schools and classes turn up early in their scheduled times to facilitate the photographing and for their own convenience.
