Acting President Friday Refuses Comment On Permanent Prexy

By CLARKE JONES

Consolidated University Acting President William C. Friday yesterday would make no comment concerning the permanent presidency of the University.

Friday, who has frequently been mentioned as the successor to former President Gordon Gray, avoided committing himself on the subject by saying only four words—"I have no comment."

At a press conference yesterday, Friday was questioned on this and the chancellorships here and at WC, the problem of the University losing many faculty members, the shortage of housing facilities, the increased enrollment and the integration begun at Woman's College this year.

CHANCELLORS

Concerning the positions of chancellor at UNC and WC, Friday said the two committees set up to recommend candidates are now at work.

UNC Chancellor Robert B. House retires this summer. The position at WC was left vacant last spring when Edward K. Graham resigned. W. W. Pierson, on leave from his position as head of the UNC Graduate School, has served as acting chancellor since that time.

"The committee of 17 people made up of faculty representatives, alumni and members of the Board of Trustees who were appointed," he said, referring to House's replacement, "have had an organizational meeting and will meet in November. They have been asked to submit three names to the president."

About the WC job, Friday said the 15-man committee, appointed during the summer, "has had two meetings." This body, "made up of faculty members, alumni and trustees has also been asked to submit three names for consideration," he said.

Friday reported last spring to the Board of Trustees the problem of the University losing many faculty members, mainly because of salary.

He said yesterday "The University administration is doing everything possible to improve the salary situation and is asking for a special sum of money to be used in making salary adjustments to help prevent further losses in our faculty."

He said in the last 18 months "we have lost over 200 faculty members in the three institutions (See FRIDAY, Page 3)

2 Days Left To Pick Up Rushing Bids

Men students have two days remaining in which to pick up their rushing bids.

The bids may be picked up today between 9 a.m. and noon and Friday between 10 a.m. and noon at the YMCA Building if it is raining, or Gerrard Hall if the weather is clear. Students unable to collect their bids will receive them in their rooms. No one will get any more than one envelope, containing from one to 24 bids.

Approximately 10,000 bids have been sent out by fraternities. Fifteen hundred individuals received bids, according to Ray Jefferies. There is no master list which names the individuals and the fraternities from which they received bids. Any student who loses his bids and forgets the houses he must attend, have been asked to contact Ray Jefferies.

Each person receiving a bid from any house must, according to regulations, within the first two days of rush attend that house. Although a student is usually not required to present his invitation at each house, a record of attendance is kept. If a student fails to attend a fraternity, he will be ineligible for rushing until next year. There is no way a man can skip formal rush and still pledge a fraternity this year.

An IFC member, in speaking of tonight's talks about rush, said, "This discussion will let a boy know what to expect, and, also, give him a good, clear picture of rush."

Egyptians Take Stand In Di Favoring Nasser

Four Egyptian graduate students at the Dialectic Senate Tuesday evening took a stand in favor of Nasser and the Egyptian government in the debate over the Suez Canal issue.

Y. M. Dessouky, first of the Egyptian guests to speak, emphasized there is no reason to expect Nasser to ever close the Canal to the present shipping traffic. He said that such action could only make enemies of Egypt's most valuable allies, allies which he felt Nasser cannot afford to lose.

Several times in the course of debate Nasser was likened to Hitler. Tawfik Hassan violently challenged this and pointed out that Nasser was chosen president by 99 per cent of the ballots in a free popular election last June. He also attempted to convince the Senate that Nasser's sympathies were not with the Communists; that he had only attempted to get economic aid from Russia, aid which he could find no place else.

Neither Dessouky nor Hassen went to the rostrum until they had heard all of the debate, pro and con, of the senators.

The bill of the evening, which was introduced by Jim Holmes, called for continued international holding of the canal by peaceful methods if possible, but by force if necessary. The bill was defeated 21-3.

Senator Holmes blamed the entire crisis on President Nasser and said that the Western World must prove that it will not accept such violation of international law.

Senator David Mundy argued that if the bill of the evening were carried out it would only turn the Arab nations against the West and leave them open to communism.

An invitation was extended for the four Egyptian guests to become members of the Senate. Three of the students are in this country on Egyptian government grants; the other is sent by the World Health Organization of the United Nations.

news in brief

UN APPROVES SUEZ TALKS
NEW YORK (AP) — The UN Security Council has approved holding a debate on the Suez Canal crisis beginning next week. At least five foreign ministers plan to take part personally in the discussions.

IN PARIS, British and French leaders have begun secret talks on the Suez Canal. The British and French are reported to feel the United States has been too soft on Egypt.

ADLAI CRITICIZES IKE
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Adlai Stevenson said last night President Eisenhower had rejected the positive responsibilities of leadership throughout his administration.

Vice President Nixon, also in Kansas City, declared Stevenson is not in the same league with President Eisenhower when it comes to qualifications for leading the United States internationally.

Young Republicans Plan Strategy Tonight

Campus Young Republicans will get together tonight to plan their strategy for the November national elections.

President Keith Snyder said refreshments will be served at the get-acquainted session, to be held in GM's Roland Parker Lounges 1 and 2 at 7 p.m.

Last year's Young Republican Club members will welcome the newcomers, Snyder said.

Approximately 50 of last year's members are here this year. The club's officials, after soliciting new members during registration, estimate their present strength at 300.

Med School Man Completes Study

Dr. J. Logan Irvin, associate professor of biochemistry at the University School of Medicine, has recently completed nine months of research at the National Institute of Health at Bethesda, Maryland.

His research on the biosynthesis of proteins and nucleic acids of normal liver and of liver tumors was supported by a fellowship from the Guggenheim Memorial Foundation.

Brecht, Hammeress Will Be Honored Today

Dr. E. A. Brecht, dean of the University School of Pharmacy, and Dr. F. C. Hammeress, faculty member, will be inducted into the North Carolina Academy of Pharmacy at Charlotte today. Membership in the academy is considered one of the highest honors that can come to a pharmacist.

Carolina Forum, History Club Present Speakers Here Tonight

Widely Differing Subjects To Be Aired By Speakers

University students, faculty and townspeople will have a choice of two prominent speakers on two widely-differing subjects tonight when the Chinese Republic's ambassador to the United States and a pre-eminent authority on the American Civil War will give public addresses on the campus.

Dr. Hollington K. Tong, Chinese ambassador since last May, will appear at 8:15 p.m. in Hill Hall under sponsorship of the Carolina Forum. He is expected to speak on "The Success of the New Tactics of the Chinese Communists."

The second speaker will be Prof. Bell I. Wiley, professor of American history at Emory University and past president of the Southern Historical Association. His address on "A Time of Greatness," set for 8 p.m. in Carroll Hall, will sum up his years of research into the role of the common soldier of the Confederacy and his views of the conflict between the states.

Both programs will be open to the public. Professor Wiley will be the first of three speakers who will be presented this year by the Graduate History Club, Phi Alpha Theta history fraternity and the Graham Memorial Student Union.

The Carolina Forum, an official, non-partisan student body agency which sponsors speakers of various political and economic thought, will honor Dr. Tong at a private banquet at the Carolina Inn tonight before his main address. A public reception will be held afterward in Graham Memorial.

Born in Chekiang Province, Dr. Tong studied in the United States at Park College in Missouri, the University of Missouri, and Columbia University, where he was a member of the first class of the Pulitzer School of Journalism. As a pioneer in modern journalism in China, Tong served as editor or managing editor of a number of North China newspapers before World War II. After wartime duty as a high-level information officer, he resumed his journalism work. In 1950 he was named managing director of the Broadcasting Corporation of China and chairman of the Board of Directors of the Central Daily News, both in Taipei, Formosa.

Dr. Tong was the first postwar ambassador from his country to Japan, holding that post from 1952 to 1956.

Author of several noted books on the Civil War days, Dr. Wiley formerly taught at the University of Mississippi and Louisiana State University. He is currently a member of the editorial board

'Flossy' Heads To Va. Coast; 16 Are Dead

CAPE HATTERAS, N. C. (AP) — Tropical storm Flossy, a weakened killer that showed signs of possibly regaining hurricane force swirled toward the Virginia coast last night.

In her wake were at least 16 deaths, perhaps that many missing persons, and millions of dollars in property damage, principally on the Gulf Coast.

Flossy had picked up speed slightly, to 20 miles an hour, and was about 20 miles north of Wilmington at 11 a.m. EST. She was moving east-northeast with offshore squalls of 45 to 50 miles an hour, and winds of 35 miles an hour 250 miles to the north and east.

The Weather Bureau warned that the storm might intensify as it moved up the coast.

Tides two to three feet higher than normal were predicted from Cape Hatteras on North Carolina's Outer Banks to northern New Jersey.

The tides and torrential inland rains, in some places up to six inches within a 12-hour period brought a threat of localized floods.

Much of the interior of Georgia South Carolina and North Carolina which got the most rain, had been suffering from drought. This was expected to minimize the flood threat. There was slight prospect for a repeat of last year's disastrous floods, which resulted from a succession of hurricanes that taxed runoff and reservoir capacity to the breaking point.

CIVIL WAR SCHOLAR BELL I. WILEY

will speak on the common confederate soldier of the Civil War Book Club. Among his writings are "Southern Negroes, 1861-1865," which won the Mrs. Simon Baruch Prize, "The Plain People of the Confederacy," "The Life of Johnny Reb," and "The Life of Billy Yank."

Students May Suggest New Chancellor

University students may now make suggestions as to a successor for Chancellor Robert House, according to student body President Bob Young.

The suggestions are to be made to a three-man committee appointed for the purpose by President Young. They will be forwarded to President Young and then to the principal selections committee headed by R. Mayne Albright, Raleigh attorney.

Members of President Young's committee are Tom Lambeth, Sonny Evans, chairman, and Miss Martha Barber.

The committee was established, according to Young, upon request of Chairman Albright.

House is retiring at the end of the present academic year. Albright's letter to Young suggesting that the student's voice be heard in his selections matter reads, in part:

"I write especially to let you know that our committee for the selection of a chancellor welcomes student suggestions and participation in the choice.

"We will be pleased to have you appear briefly before our committee at its proposed meeting on Oct. 27, if you have some report to bring in at that time."

Young's answer, in part, reads: "I am quite sure that all students realize that we can never find anyone to replace Chancellor House... Your suggestion for getting student sentiment will be used."

WUNC Asks New Students To Meeting

The University's radio station, WUNC, has announced that a meeting will be held tomorrow at 4:15 p.m. in Swain Hall for all new and transfer students interested in participating in any phase of the broadcasting.

The Frequency Modulation station is operated on professional standards by students in the University who participate on a voluntary basis. There are no salaried positions for students.

Dave Setzer, assistant manager of the station, said there were a limited number of vacancies still open in all departments.

Any interested students have been urged to attend Friday's meeting.

Well-Known Musicians Will Give Show Here

Two internationally-known artists, Yella Pessl, harpsichordist and Mischa Mischakoff, violinist, will play a concert here in Hill Music Hall Tuesday at 8 p.m. to open the Tuesday Evening Series for the fall semester.

The University Music Dept., headed by Dr. Glen Haydon, sponsors the musical series which is open to students and others without charge.

Tuesday's concert, co-sponsored by Graham Memorial Student Union, will mark the dedication of the Music Dept. new Maendler Schram harpsichord, made according to the department's specifications by Maendler of Munich, Germany.

This concert model two-manual harpsichord is similar to the fine Maendler harpsichord belonging to Miss Pessl.

She is one of the best known of American harpsichordists. Born in Vienna, she was a graduate in Key-
