Tar Heels Tangle With Nation's Top Team In Headliner Game

Fats Domino, Billy May Band Scheduled For Fall Germans; Sam Donahue To Appear Also

A twin bill of Fats Domino and the Billy May Band, led by Sam Donahue, will be featured at the 1956 Fall Germans next month.

The concert, from 3 to 5:30 p.m., and the dance, from 9 to 1 a.m., will be held Friday, Oct. 26, according to George Ragsdale of the German Club. This will be the Friday before the Wake Forest football game, he said.

Both bands will play at both the concert and the dance.

Fats Domino, known throughout the South as "The Little Fat Man from New Orleans," will be a treat for all the "rock 'n' roll" fans on campus. Many students have attended his shows throughout the state.

Fats began singing in New Orleans in his early teens. Soon becoming a favorite around southern Louisiana, he was signed and cut a session for Imperial Records.

His first record, "Goin' Home," immediately rose to popularity among "rhythm and blues" fans. His following records, including "Where Did You Stay," "Rosemary" and "I'm Gonna Pack My Suitcase" were also popular in this field.

His biggest break, however, came with his recording of "Ain't That a Shame," which after climbing to the top spot on the R & B popularity charts moved over into the Popular record listings. The "Rock 'n' roll" conscious American listening audiences rode this tune, (written by Domino himself), to sixth spot in the nationwide popularity song charts, and it remained there for several weeks.

SAM DONAHUE
...heads Billy May Band

Since then he has kept at least one of his songs on one of the nations' hit parades. Juke boxes all over the country, including many on the UNC campus, carry his records. Some of his latest releases are: "I'm In Love Again," "My Blue Heaven," "When My Dreamboat Comes Home," and "Blueberry Hill."

Sam Donahue began his musical career, as did Domino, while still in high school. In his senior year he organized a dance band. Some of the members of this band are still with him.

After graduation and a summer of professional work he decided that in order to gain national recognition he would have to play as a side man with some of the more famous bands. During this stint in his career he played with such leaders as Benny Goodman, Gene Krupa and Harry James.

SAX MAN

By this time he was becoming recognized as one of the outstanding tenor sax men in the country.

Feeling that he had gained the necessary experience, Sam rejoined his own band, which had remained almost entirely intact during his absence, and opened at the Roseland Ballroom in 1941. One night stands and an opening at the Glen Island Casino followed. Donahue seemed set for a long and successful stay there until the Navy called him to service and he was forced to disband.

In the service, Sam had his own band and played on service programs and United Kingdom broadcasts.

After his discharge, Donahue went back to playing in ballrooms and theaters until his career was again interrupted by the Korean War. After about six months, an old back injury began to act up and once more Sam got an honorable discharge.

Sam planned to rejoin his own band but an offer from Tommy Dorsey as an assistant leader couldn't be refused.

It was, as a result of this diversified experience, that Billy May chose Sam Donahue to go out with his already popular band when May elected to stay in Los Angeles with Capitol Records.

Debbie Brown will be featured as vocalist with the band at the concert and dance here.

Total University Enrollment Is Now 6,971

By BILLY BARNES

A near-record total of 6,971 students registered for UNC's fall semester, according to a report issued this week by the Central Records Office.

This is the highest enrollment of students since 1949, when 7,419 students were here.

The total this year is an increase of 396 over last fall's enrollment.

Seventy-nine per cent of the students are North Carolinians. List 1,377 out-of-state students list home addresses that include all but four of the forty-eight states. Virginians make up the largest group of out-of-staters, followed by New Yorkers and South Carolinians, respectively.

Foreign students number 89 and hail from such far-off lands as Pakistan, Lebanon, Viet Nam and Korea. A seven-member Costa Rica and delegation leads the group, followed closely by six Canadians and six Chinese.

Women students at UNC number 1,215, supporting a male-female ratio of five to one. The College

YDC President Warns About Seriousness Of Ike's Health

By HIL GOLDMAN

"The American people should be aware of the situation concerning the seriousness of President Eisenhower's condition when they go to the polls in November."

This warning was given Thursday night by George Miller, president of the UNC Young Democratic Club, during the organization's first meeting of the year.

He stressed the possibility of Richard Nixon succeeding to the presidency in case of illness befalling the chief executive, adding, "We hope nothing will."

Speaking on Stevenson's chances, Miller said that since the 1952 election there has been a definite trend away from the incumbent Eisenhower and that all indications point to a Democratic victory in the coming election.

Big Sooners Favored Over UNC By 27 Points; Game Begins At 3

By LARRY CHEEK
Daily Tar Heel Sports Editor

NORMAN, Okla. Sept. 29—Upset-minded North Carolina will be trying to bounce back from an opening game loss to N. C. State here this afternoon when they tangle with the national champion Oklahoma Sooners in college football's game of the day.

The intersectional headliner will kick off at 3 p.m. (EST) in Oklahoma's Owen Stadium before a throng of 60,000. The game will be telecast locally by station WKY-TV, Oklahoma City, and will be broadcast nationally by Harry Wismer over the Mutual Broadcasting System. Ray Reeve and the Tobacco Sports Network will pipe the game back to North Carolina.

The Tar Heels, rated 27 point underdogs by the experts, landed in Oklahoma City yesterday after a smooth and uneventful plane ride out. Coach Tatum, as is his custom, did not take his boys onto the practice field yesterday. Oklahoma ran through a brief warm-up drill.

WEATHER MAY HELP

The weather is one factor that may play a vital role in the Tar Heel performance tomorrow. The temperature is expected to climb into the 90's by game time, and the humidity makes the atmosphere sticky and muggy.

Carolina worked out all week long in rain from Hurricane Flossy and cool fall temperatures. Just how the stifling heat here may affect them remains to be seen.

Tatum has announced four changes in the lineup that started last week's opener against the Wolfpack. Don Lear, who played his first game at guard last week, has been shifted back to his old fullback slot and will start in place of Giles Gaca. Jim Varnum replaces Larry McMullen at one halfback post. Varnum turned in several spectacular runs against the pack.

JUNIORS START

Juniors Dick Smith and Jimmy Jones have moved into first string guard spots replacing Lear and Hap Setzer, who is reportedly bothered by a charley horse.

Pacing the Tar Heel attack will be wheelhorse halfback Ed Sutton, star of last week's tilt with the Wolfpack. Sutton, a powerful runner with speed to spare, rushed for a total of 90 yards in 10 carries last week.

The quarterback starting assignment is still uncertain, but it looks like soph Curt Hathaway will get the nod for the second straight week. Doug Farmer will alternate with Hathaway.

Team Telegram Needs Signing By 10 A.M.

Students who desire to sign the telegram being sent to the Carolina football team in Norman, Okla., have been asked to do so before 10 a.m. today.

The message can be signed at the Y, Graham Memorial, and the downtown stores.

The telegram, which is being sponsored by the Chapel Hill Athletic Club, will be delivered to the team this afternoon in the field house before they take the field against Oklahoma.

The message reads: "The sooner you get under the Sooner's goal post the sooner you'll bring us a win. We know you won't let Coach Tatum down."

on defense against State, plan no special tactics to stop the Sooners. Coach Tatum is confident his boys will have less trouble against a straight split-T offense such as Oklahoma uses than against a State style multiple offense.

A long string of Oklahoma victories will be at stake this afternoon. The amazing Sooners have won 30 in a row since a 7-7 tie with Pitt in the second 1953 game.

Last year, the Tar Heels scared the daylight out of Oklahoma before bowing, 13-6, in the seasons opening game at Chapel Hill. In the only other meeting of the two clubs, the Sooners stopped Charlie Justice and Co. in the 1949 Sugar Bowl.

EQUAL IN WEIGHT

The two clubs are just about equal in the average weights column. Bulwarking the Tar Heel line will be giant Stewart Pell, 230 pounds of muscle at tackle.

Other starters up front for The Big Blue are Buddy Payne and Larry Muschamp at ends; Phil Blazer at the remaining tackle post; Smith and Jones at guards; and

YRC Seeks Democrats Help In Taking Preference Vote

Campus Young Republicans straw vote on the presidential Thursday night unanimously adopted a resolution challenging the Young Democrats Club to cooperate in prompting a campus-wide preference of UNC students.

President Keith Snyder commented that officials of the YDC had repeatedly been approached concerning the project, but that they made no comment.

"The Republicans," Snyder said, "are on the upswing in North Carolina. The YDC is obviously afraid that Ike would beat Adlai worse this year than he did in 1952, when Ike won the campus-wide straw vote by 3 to 1 over Stevenson."

The club worked out campaign strategy at Thursday's meeting, and formulated plans for a dance and an election-night victory celebration.

UNC Reading Course Applications Begin

Students interested in taking the Testing Service's reading course should apply at 108 Peabody Monday through Friday of next week, according to Paul Irvine Jr. of the Testing Service.

Applications will be received only from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on those days. Applying takes only 30 minutes, Irvine said.

The reading classes will meet three hours a week. No credit is given for the course, which is designed to help students improve their reading and studying efficiency.

Dance Is Tonight

Deadline Is Extended For Trip To Averett

The deadline to make reservations for a dance tonight at Averett College, Danville, Va., has been extended to noon today by the YMCA, which is handling arrangements.

Approximately 100 people have signed up to leave here at 6:15 p.m. today, according to John Riebel, Associate Secretary of the YMCA.

Riebel said he would like to have as many more people who are interested to sign up by noon. Upperclassmen as well as freshmen are invited, he said.

Buses will be chartered for the 55-mile trip, and a fee of $2 is being charged each person to cover the cost. There will be no other charges. Some students will go up in cars.

The girls at Averett are putting on this dance solely for Carolina. The nine-piece band of Bob Cleveland, regarded as the best in southern Virginia, will furnish the music, and refreshments and a snack supper at midnight will be furnished free.

Plans are to have the dance start at 8:30 p.m. and end at midnight. The buses will leave Danville for the return trip about 12:45 or later if the men want to leave later.

Riebel said all who are going should eat before leaving Chapel Hill.

Arrangements are being coordinated by Bob Leonard of the YMCA, Riebel said.

The Carolina men will be returning a visit which about 130 of the Averett girls made to the UNC campus this past Sunday. They attended the Planetarium show and a reception in Graham Memorial and were guests of the various night church groups.

Chapel Hill Scenes Go On Exhibit

A new exhibit, entitled "Chapel Hill Scenes by Sam Boone," was put up this week in the University Library, in five cases on the main floor.

The exhibit of 36 photographs, which will be on view through October, represents a selection of Sam Boone's best photographs of University buildings, campus scenes, local churches and flowering trees. Included, also, are a few studio portraits of individual flowers in close-ups.

Boone, a native of Gates, served with the U. S. Army Signal Corps in North Africa and Italy from 1942 to 1945. He graduated from the University in 1949 with an A. B. in Journalism. From 1950 to 1952 Boone worked as a photographer in the University's Central Photo Laboratory, and since 1952 he has been head of the Library's Photoreproduction Service.
