Chapel Hill Man Fined For Assault On Prof

By WALLY KURALT

A Chapel Hill man was fined yesterday for assaulting a University psychology instructor.

Ernest Taylor, owner of an Old Fraternity Row rooming house, was found guilty of assault and battery in recorder's court. He was fined $50 and costs, and appealed his case to Orange Superior Court.

The psychology instructor, Al Krebs, was unavailable for comment after court yesterday.

Mrs. Krebs gave this account of the incident:

Due to the recently imposed parking ban, Krebs could not find a parking place Friday morning, and finally parked his car at 8 a.m. in front of Taylor's rooming house. When she and Krebs returned at 1 p.m., Taylor walked up to them and pointed out they had parked on private property, disregarding his "No Parking" sign.

Krebs replied he thought it was public property.

A car had parked behind Krebs car, blocking the alley, and Taylor refused to tell whose car it was. Krebs then left to get Officer Graham Creele, who reportedly could not leave his post.

Krebs called the police, told them his story, and was told the car would be moved, Mrs. Krebs said.

Krebs returned to his car. Taylor invited Krebs to call proper authorities and ascertain whether the alley was public or private.

Krebs said if he found the alley were public, he intended to park there every day, Mrs. Krebs said.

Taylor hit Krebs in the mouth. Krebs and his wife then walked to the police station and swore out a warrant for Taylor's arrest.

Taylor, reached at his home yesterday, had this to say: "My car was parked right up out by going forward. He (Krebs) out b going forward. He (Krebs) parked his car within 13 inches in back of mine, blocking me in, locked his car, and had his wheels turned so I couldn't push it back. He had plenty of room farther back. There was a space of about 30 feet behind him. His car was parked one foot in front of my steps."

A Coffee Shop worker drove up, said someone had taken his parking place farther down the alley, and asked permission to park his car behind Krebs' car. Taylor said it was "all right with me; I'm blocked in anyway." The worker could not get his car in the space, so he left it blocking the alley.

Krebs came back to his car and "said he didn't care about the no parking sign," said Taylor. "Said he'd park here any time he wanted. He was mad. He said, 'I'm going to park it here Saturday and six days next week.'"

Both Taylor's and Krebs' cars were then blocked in by the third automobile.

"I told him I was blocked in for four hours, and I didn't care if he stayed there until tomorrow morning. Then he went to get the police."

"I told the police whose car it was, but I wouldn't tell him," Taylor said. "He was real mad."

"My deed calls for a 19 foot drive. That alley is the only access to my place."

Taylor said he could, but is not going to pay the $50 and costs. He has appealed to Superior Court plans to hire a lawyer, swear out a warrant against Krebs for trespassing and leave it up to the lawyer.

"I'm not through fighting," said Taylor.

Second Round Of Frat Rush Set Tonight

Freshmen and unpledged upper classmen will continue in the second round of rush parties tonight from 7 to 9:30.

Parties will continue tomorrow night and Friday is scheduled as shake-up day.

Formal bids will go out Monday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. in Gerrard Hall, at which time men pledging will sign pledge cards and pay fees.

Rushing began Sunday afternoon and Monday, when men were required to visit all fraternity houses from which they had received invitations.

In the second round of parties, which continues tonight, men are permitted to visit houses of their preference.

Albanese To Open SEC Card

Licia Albanese, Metropolitan Opera soprano, will be the first of five top performers who are to appear on the student entertainment program this year, beginning Nov. 1.

Other artists who will perform for Carolina students during the coming year include Mantovani, master of the cascading strings; the General Platoff Don Cossack Chorus, Actor Henry Hull and Jose Limon and Dance Company.

Students are admitted free to these SEC programs on presentation of ID cards.

Mantovani and his orchestra of 45, will feature his "New Music" on Dec. 6. This Venetian-born Londoner, who began the era of new music with his first album for London Records, "Waltzing With Mantovani," has currently made many records including "Cara Mia," which was written for David Whitfield.

A versatile concert figure, Mantovani has music for everybody, be it the 300-year-old "Greensleeves," a serenade by Tchaikowsky, or the strains of "Charmaine," which has come to be his theme song.

COSSACK CHORUS

Also internationally famous is the Gen. Platoff Don Cossack Chorus, directed by Nicholas Kostroff, appearing here in its 18th transcontinental tour on Feb. 12, 1957.

The booming Cossacks have performed in 2,100 concerts in the USA and appeared in 65 countries on six continents. The Chorus is composed of the best vocal and dancing talent of the White Russian emigres, who have fought communism in Russia.

Henry Hull, noted for his performance as Mark Twain, will be presented by the SEC on March 26, 1957. Through his four decades in the theatre he has also distinguished himself in such roles as Malvolio in "Twelfth Night," Jester Leester in "Tobacco Road," and Edgar Allan Poe in "Plumes in the Dust," along with such plays as "Mr. Roberts," "The Trail of Joan of Arc," and many others. He has also played in "Great Expectations," "Objective Burma," "Lifeboat," and many other movies.

Jose Limon and Dance Company will perform on April 11, 1957. Limon and his dancers recently swept South America, not with native rhythms, but with modern dance selections.

The members of the SEC are: John Kerr, chairman, Joel Carter, Don Freeman, George Hamilton, Kai Jersenson, Olin Mouzon, Jimmy Wallace, and Misses Martha Barber and Shiralee and Barbaree Prestwood.

Members of the committee, however, seemed a little doubtful about putting it in Graham Memorial—named for Dr. Edward Kidder Graham, another former University president. It would be a slight upon the latter Graham, they felt.

And that's how it stands today. The South Building source, however, said it will be moved, that it is there only temporarily.

Rushees

Ed Hudgins, president of the IFC, said last night that no fraternity had been convicted of dirty rushing, and that no fraternity has been barred from rushing or pledging, as has been rumored.

Playmakers Show Of 'Anastasia' Will Be Presented In Two Weeks

The Carolina Playmakers will open their current theater season two weeks from tonight with five performances of "Anastasia," recent Broadway success about exiled Russian nobility, at the Playmakers Theatre, UNC campus.

Adapted from the French of Marcelle Maurette by Guy Bolton the story is set in Berlin early in 1926. The action is based on a rumor that one of the Czar's children, Princess Anastasia, then 17, escaped the massacre of the Royal family by the Bolsheviks in 1918 and fled into Germany.

Prince Bouinine, exiled Russian nobleman, finds a destitute girl, Anya, and builds up the story that she is the Princess Anastasia who, because of wounds and privations, has lost her memory. The attempt to convince those who knew the princess reveals a series of surprises about the unusual Anya.

Rusti Rothrock, Aniston, Ala., is cast in the title role. Mrs. Rothrock, wife of a UNC graduate assistant, has acted with several community theatres, at Cherokee in "Unto These Hills" and at the University of Arkansas. She is now a speech therapist for Durham County.

Marion Fitz-Simons, Chapel Hill, portrays the formidable Dowager Empress, grandmother of Anastasia, who presents the strongest challenge to the plan of Bouinine. Mrs. Fitz-Simons, wife of a UNC professor, has appeared in a long list of Playmaker productions, including "Macbeth," "Medea," "Arsenic and Old Lace," "Dark of the Moon," "Lysistrata," and last year's "Blood Wedding."

Morgan Jackson, freshman from Charlotte, plays Prince Bouinine. A Korean War veteran, Jackson has acted with the Paris American Theatre Group in Paris, the Weisbaden Theatre Guild in Germany, The University of Alabama Theatre, and "Unto These Hills". Joe Whiteaker, Pine Bluff, Ark., appears as Prince Paul, childhood sweetheart of Anastasia. A Navy veteran, Mr. Whiteaker was active with the University Theatre at the U. of Arkansas, where he received an acting award last spring. The Rev. W. Robert Insko, Chaplain to Episcopal students at UNC, takes the role of Dr. Serensky, who knows the pretender, Anya, in another identity from that of a princess.

Others in the cast are: Russell Bank, Jamaica, N. Y., as Cheraov; Gene Duke, Oxford, as Petrovich; Peter O'Sullivan, Valhalla, N. Y., as Counsellor Drivinitz; Betty Jinnette, Goldsboro, as the Charwoman; Hope Sparger, Scarsdale, N. Y., as Varya; Frank Rinaldi, Waterbury, Conn., as Sergei; John Sneed, Tenafly, N. J., as the Sleigh Driver; and Eve Janzan, of Chapel Hill, as Baroness Livenbaum.

Graham Portrait Likely Will Stay In Morehead

By CLARKE JONES

The portrait of Dr. Frank Graham is still in the Morehead Building faculty lounge.

And the painting of the former University president is likely to remain in its "temporary" home for some time, according to an informed South Building source.

The reason for its staying there for awhile, said the source, is because some persons have been so up in the air as to where it should be hung permanently.

Chancellor Robert B. House, who will determine its permanent site, has apparently for that reason decided to let things settle down before deciding where to put it.

CONTROVERSY

The story behind the controversy goes like this: Last spring, toward the end of the school year, the portrait was unveiled in Hill Hall, then moved to the Morehead Building faculty lounge.

Protests immediately followed this action. Many persons thought since Dr. Graham was such a good friend of the students while he was here it should be placed in Graham Memorial where they could see it everyday. The faculty lounge was rarely visited by students, some said.

Members of the committee, however, seemed a little doubtful about putting it in Graham Memorial—named for Dr. Edward Kidder Graham, another former University president. It would be a slight upon the latter Graham, they felt.

And that's how it stands today. The South Building source, however, said it will be moved, that it is there only temporarily.

FIRST STEPS

The first steps toward obtaining a portrait of Dr. Frank Graham were taken by University students in 1949, the year he resigned the presidency to accept appointment to the U. S. Senate.

Many students contributed small amounts but they did not raise enough to obtain the type painting desired. Accordingly, at the request of some of the students, a committee was organized in 1955 to receive contributions from friends of Graham. The committee included such persons as Dean of Student Affairs Fred Weaver, State Board of Higher Education Chairman D. Hiden Ramsay and John Sanders, Raleigh lawyer.

Atomic Energy Exhibit Set At Planetarium

A modern age exhibit, "The Summary of Atomic Energy," which has been prepared by the American Museum of Atomic Energy at Oak Ridge, Tenn, opened yesterday at the Morehead Planetarium.

Free to the public, the exhibit will be on display through Oct. 12 only in the North Science Exhibit room of the Planetarium.

"The Summary of Atomic Energy" has been developed to familiarize the average person with the basic principles and uses of atomic energy. It includes scale models of the Oak Ridge atomic and uranium reactors and a model of an atomic power plant as well as panels explaining the parts, energy and differences of atoms, neutrons used as bullets, uranium and thorium, production of radioisotopes and their uses in industry, agriculture and medicine.

The exhibit may be viewed daily from 2 to 5 p.m. and from 7:30 to 10 p.m., Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., and Sundays from 1 to 10 p.m.

In Bryant Speech: Faculty Salaries, Preserving Academic Freedom Stressed

Provision of "adequate" faculty salaries, and preservation of academic freedom were two points stressed by Victor S. Bryant in an address yesterday afternoon before the UNC Faculty Club.

Geology Dept. Seeks Facts On Earthquake

The UNC Dept. of Geology has requested that any persons who were in the region of eastern Tennessee and western North Carolina during the earthquake shocks which occurred Sept. 7 and felt the resulting tremors contact the UNC Dept. of Geology and Geography or Gerald R. MacCarthy, professor of Geology and Geophysics at UNC.

MacCarthy states that the Dept. of Geology wishes to know the exact locations at which the quake was felt, and additional information as to the number of shocks felt and the sensations produced. The shocks were recorded on the seismograph at UNC, MacCarthy says, but geologists have been unable so far to pin down the exact location of the quake. The shocks are known to have been felt throughout much of western North Carolina and adjacent areas, he states.

English Dept. Adds Staffers

Three new instructors have been added to the Dept. of English, Dr. Douglas MacMillan, chairman, announced recently.

Beginning new teaching duties with the fall semester were Richard P. Douthit, Mrs. Frances Gray Patton, and Derek Roper.

Roper received his A.B. degree from the University of Durham, England, and is a candidate for the B.Litt. degree from Oxford.

Mrs. Patton, who is teaching two sections of Freshman English, is the author of the best-selling novel, "Good Morning, Miss Dove," and a resident of Durham.

Douthit comes to UNC from Louisiana State University, where he also received his M.A. Degree. He is expecting to receive his Ph.D. Degree from LSU soon.

Dr. MacMillan also said that there are three new graduate teaching fellows on the staff of the English Dept. They are Daniel J. Gore of Fayetteville, Barbara Donnell of Honolulu, Hawaii and H. Ray McKnight of Charleston, W. Va.

Student Leaders Air Problems Facing UNC

Leaders of student government will talk with their South Building counterparts about four campus problems.

The problems, agreed at a meeting yesterday, are:

1. The parking situation, as it confronts members of the Interfraternity Council.
 2. The need for a student group to coordinate campus activities.
 3. Compulsory physical education for veterans.
 4. Allocation of men's dormitory vending machine profits.
- The meeting yesterday was attended by members of the Student Government Executive Council, headed by student body President Bob Young. The council will meet Friday with members of the administration's Council on Student Affairs.

President Young said the purpose of the joint meeting "is to familiarize the student affairs council with what we feel are the

Pi Lams Add Members

Pi Lambda Phi has added three new members to their fraternity. Dick Oresman of Providence, R. I., Stanley Greenspon of Raleigh, and Harvey Salz of Brooklyn, N. Y. became brothers last week.

Bryant, a member of the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees, discussed "The Responsibilities of Trustees of a State University," emphasizing that he was presenting "my individual views" and was not authorized to speak "either for the Board or any group of Trustees."

He outlined the trustee's responsibilities to "four distinct entities: the state, the University administration, the faculty, and the student body."

Maintaining an adequate salary schedule for both faculty and administrative officers is "peculiarly the responsibility of the trustee," Bryant said. "This schedule should be one which will enable the continual recruitment of an outstanding faculty, and at the same time enable the University to retain its present distinguished faculty."

"We must expect our faculty members to receive offers to go elsewhere, but we should be prepared through financial and other means to fight to hold them," Bryant said.

He expressed gratitude to those faculty members who have received such offers but "who have chosen to cast your future lot here with this University."

OBLIGATION
However, Bryant said, "I cannot feel that the state has any right to profit financially from such loyalty on your part. The University is under a great obligation to you."

The speaker, who heads the Trustees' committee which will recommend on the appointment of a new UNC president, predicted a glorious future immediately ahead for this University and asked the faculty members to "hold on a little longer."

Referring to important University positions now filled on an acting basis, Bryant said, "These will be filled, and I believe filled well, with all reasonable dispatch. What might have seemed stumbling blocks will be stepping stones to better days ahead."

ACADEMIC FREEDOM
Three principles of academic freedom summarized by Bryant were:

1. Full freedom in research, and the right to publish the results of his research.
 2. Absolute freedom in teaching those subjects which a faculty member has been assigned to teach, assuming that the instruction is "of a scholarly nature, and compatible with the dignity of the profession."
 3. The right to formulate and express his opinions outside the

Alumni Giving Committee Chairmen Meet Here Tomorrow

Individual chairmen from 57 towns and cities throughout North Carolina will meet here tomorrow at noon in the Carolina Inn with State Chairman William H. Ruffin of Durham to map out final plans for the advance gifts phase of the Alumni Annual Giving program this year.

The advance gifts campaign will get under way on Oct. 15 and will continue through Nov. 30.

Ruffin has appointed seven vice-chairmen to assist him. These chairmen are Marion R. Cowper, Kinston, District I; R. D. Lee Covington, Raleigh, District II; Franklin S. Clark, Fayetteville, District III; James W. Poole, Greensboro, District IV; Esley O. Anderson Jr., Charlotte, District V; Gerald Cowan, Asheville, District VI; and William E. Stevens, Jr., Lenoir, District VII.

On June 30 Alumni Annual Giving wound up its fourth year at the University. A total of 3,773 alumni contributed $57,621.89 for an average gift of $15.26.

The Alumni Annual Giving Council held its annual fall meeting here on Sept. 30 and made grants to the University in such vital areas as faculty research, faculty travel, faculty retirement, Chancellor's Emergency Fund, student welfare, etc. Archie K. Davis of Winston-Salem, chairman of the Alumni Annual Giving Council presided over this meeting.

The towns and cities in the state in which the advance gifts solic-tation will be conducted and the districts in which they are located are as follows:

District I: Elizabeth City, Greenville, Kinston, New Bern, Rocky Mount, Tarboro, Washington, Wilson, and Edenton.

District II: Raleigh, Durham, Chapel Hill, Henderson, Oxford, Roxboro, and Sanford.

District III: Fayetteville, Goldsboro, Clinton, Jacksonville, Laurinburg, Lumberton, Southern Pines, Pinehurst, Whiteville, and Wilmington.

District IV: Greensboro, Winston-Salem, High Point, Burlington, Reidsville, Mt. Airy, Leaksville, Asheboro, and Liberty.

District V: Charlotte, Gastonia, Concord, Kannapolis, Belmont, Shelby, Rockingham, Hamlet and Albemarle.

District VI: Asheville, Brevard, Canton, Hendersonville, Marion, and Waynesville.

District VII: Hickory, Lenoir, Lexington, Morganton, Salisbury, Statesville, and Thomasville.

Cardboard Membership Has Quota

The UNC Cardboard has announced that their quota of 106 members has been accepted for the 1956-57 season.

A successful campaign made it possible for old and new students to become acquainted with this organization, according to President Snyder Pate.

President Pate said, "We would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone who helped make this campaign so effective."

"Stunts at the State-UNC game were a tremendous success. Of course, as usual, a few cards of the wrong color appeared, but possibly this can be corrected in future games. The Cardboard wishes to congratulate the student body for such a fine performance."

INFIRMARY

Those in the infirmary yesterday included:
