Carolina's Homecoming Game Pits Tatum's Tar Heels With Bulldogs In Kenan Stadium This Afternoon

Game Marks 25th Playing For UNC, Ga.

By LARRY CHEEK

Carolina's Tar Heels, losers of three games in a row so far this season, will be out to snap back before the home fans here this afternoon when they tackle an old rival from the University of Georgia in their annual homecoming game.

The game, scheduled to get underway at 2 p.m. in Kenan Stadium under crisp cloudless skies, marks the silver anniversary of a southern football rivalry that goes back to 1895.

ern football rivalry that goes back to 1895. This is the rubber game of the series so far, as each school has captured 11 victories. There have been two ties. Last year, the Bulldogs handed Coach George Barclay's Tar Heels an embarrassing 28-7 lacing in Athens.

This year's contest matches two squads who seem just about ready to explode despite their poor records. Coach Jim Tatum, in the first year of his new reign at UNC, has seen his enigmatic squad go down to defeat three straight times this year. Despite their below par performances to date, Coach Tatum has confidence in his boys, and believes that this could be a key game. In his own words, "It'll be a game that could help one of us in a awful lot."

GEORGIA LOST THREE

Georgia Coach Wally Butts is in somewhat the same situation as Tatum. According to pre-season bally-hoo, the Bulldogs were headed for their best season since the days of Charley Trippi, but somehow this prediction has yet to pan out. Georgia has dropped two of its first three starts, losing to Mississippi State and Vanderbilt while stopping little Florida State on a field goal.

General consensus of opinion is that the team that was this game will be in a good spot to go on to greater things this season despite a poor start. The Bulldogs have been heating themselves in their first few games, according to Tatum, and if they can iron out the kinks, they could be trouble from here on out. The Tar Heels themselves have yet to live up to re-season expectations despite having a sound football team with few apparent weaknesses. One of these mystery squads may mature this afternoon.

LOSS TO S. C.

The Tar Heels turned in their best performance of the season so far last Saturday in their 14-0 loss to South Carolina. During the first half, Carolina outplayed their southern rivals on offense and defense, but lacked a scoring punch when they got within goalline territory. The second half was a different story, however, as the Tar Heels faltered both offensively and defensively to lose the decision.

The Carolina pass defense, traditionally weak, will get a stiff test this afternoon. Georgia, known for their potent air arm, will trot out two bulleseye pitching quarterbacks in the Zeke Bratkowski tradition, plus a pair of pass receivers deluxe. Billy Hearn is slated to get the starting nod at the signal caller's post with Joe Comfort operating as his chief understudy. Jim Orr, junior right halfback who led

UNC Cardboard Will Present Six Special Stunts At Game

"Exercises in Motion and Color" is the name of the UNC Cardboard's special six stunts which will be performed in addition to the regular program at the half time today.

The special program represents a new type of stunt. The trick will feature motion and flashes of color. The success is fully dependent on the cooperation of the student body in the Card Section, says Snyder Pate, president of the UNC Cardboard.

For performance of these displays the Cardboard gives these instructions: "Beside each number on the students' instruction card will be found the name of a color. When this number is called, the student will hold up the correct color card according to instruction on his card. The student will hold up the card until he gets further directions. Pate said.

Pate said "If those who sit in the card section are sure they get the right color each time, this experiment should be a fine success."

Dorms Have Till Monday In Contest

Dormitories have until Monday to turn in entries for the Sweetheart of UNC Dorms Contest.

At present only four or five dormitories have turned in contestants' names, according to Interdormitory Council President Sonny Halford.

Each dormitory may enter a total of four contestants, he said.

The contest winner will be presented a loving cup, roses and gifts at an IDC meeting around Nov. 1. Her picture will appear in the 1956-57 Yackety Yack.

Eight by ten glossy photographs of contestants must be forwarded to the IDC office in New East Annex by Oct. 31. The pictures are non-returnable.

Queen Will Be Crowned Today

The name of UNC's homecoming queen will be announced at half-time of today's UNC-Georgia game by President of the Alumni Association Mayne Albright of Raleigh. Bob Young, president of the student body, will present the queen with flowers, and she will be escorted off the field by NROTC men. The queen will be one of the following candidates:

Misses Mary Louise Bissell, sponsored by Chi Omega Sorority; Gail Willingham, Spencer Dormitory; Grace Boney, Pi Beta Phi; Isabel Madry, McIver Dorm; Jackie Aldridge, Alpha Gamma Delta; Nan Schaeffer, Kappa Delta; Barbara Honey, Alderman Dorm; Jean Southerland, School of Nursing; Pat Dillon, Tri-Delt; Janet Bennerman, Carr Dorm; Libby Nicholson, Alpha Delta Pi and Jane Brock, Smith Dorm.

UNIVERSITY CLUB
The University Club is sponsoring the contest. Jeff Corbin and Miss Nancy Sult are co-chairmen.

In conjunction with the beauty contest, The University Club is sponsoring a display contest. The winners of each division will be announced immediately before the game today.

There is a trophy for winners in the fraternity, men's and women's dormitory divisions and sorority division. If possible, the trophies will be awarded today, according to University Club President Joe Clapp.

Nine fraternities, six sororities, 13 men's dormitories, two women's dorms and the Nurses' Dorm will be competing.

Last year trophies went to Cobb Dorm, Smith Dorm, Pi Beta Phi Sorority and Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity. If an organization wins its division trophy three years in succession, it retires the trophy.

INSPECTION
The judges, Ed Lanier of the Student Aid Office, Miss Martha Decker, assistant director of student Affairs, and Frederick Cleveland of the political science department, will inspect displays around 10 a.m. today.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS
After the game, Young Republicans are urged to drop by the second floor of Lenoir Hall for coffee and doughnuts, according to the UNC Young Republicans Club.

IWC Holds First Meet

The Independent Woman's Council held its first meeting in Alderman Dorm Thursday at 5:30 p.m.

Elaine Burns, president, reported that the IWA is looking forward to an active coming year.

The executives of the men's Interdormitory Council were introduced to the new representatives, and plans for a dinner meeting with the IDC Wednesday were discussed.

Martha Decker, assistant to the director of student activities, talked about a project for the coming year. Committees were set up to work on projects, entertainment and the revision of the Constitution.

The IWA is made up of coeds on campus who are not members of sororities. It's membership constitutes 55 per cent of the coed population.

Town And Gown Traffic Meeting Set Next Week

By NEIL BASS

A joint meeting of the Board of Aldermen, Merchants' Association and student government Traffic Advisory Commission will be held the first of next week.

The combined group will discuss:

(1) The Columbia Street parking restriction.

(2) The general traffic situation downtown.

(3) Prices in local establishments.

HANDS OFF
President Bob Young and Traffic Commission Chairman Wilburn Davis met with the Merchants' Association yesterday morning to seek support in lifting the restriction on Columbia Street.

But, according to Young, the Association made it clear its policy was "hands off" with regard to traffic problems.

Young said he and Davis "made it clear," in turn, that students felt traffic problems were the responsibility of merchants, aldermen, University administration and students.

"No one involved should maintain a strictly 'hands off' policy," Young said.

HAIRCUT PRICES
Concerning hike in haircut prices, Young said the Merchants' Association contended that some local merchants supported the barbers' action and some didn't.

Members of the Association said they had "absolutely no control" over haircut prices, according to Young.

The Merchants' Association Public Relations Committee "welcomes" hearing student grievances concerning general attitudes or specific actions of or by local merchants, President Young said it was stated at yesterday's meeting.

APPROVAL
Five students will be appointed, in the very near future, to "study" general policies of downtown establishments toward students, according to Young.

The appointed students will then either place a sign of approval in the merchant's window or refuse to exhibit an approval sign.

Exact time and place for the joint aldermen-merchants-student meeting will be announced later, Young said.

Evans States Response To Group 'Not What We Hoped'

Response to the Student Chancellor Selection Committee "wasn't as overwhelming as we had hoped," committee chairman Sonny Evans stated "last night."

Evans said, "The committee hopes to get the opinion of many more classmates before submitting its report Nov. 3 to a Trustee Selection Committee."

The Student Chancellor Selection Committee was appointed by Student Government President Bob Young to recommend possible candidates for the position of chancellor to the trustee committee.

Evans stated that he plans to interview a large segment of the student body before the Nov. 3 meeting.

IN THE INFIRMARY

Those in the infirmary today included:

Misses Janet Thompson, Marguerite Cook, Alma Godsey, Helen Dickson, and William Jackson, Charles Gray, John Stunda, Herman Schutz, Tommy Allred, Kestel Huffman, Bruce Hight, Leonidas Betts, Tawfik Hassan, Joseph Perry, John Johnson, George Stavnitski and Kenneth Weaver.

Putting Ballot Boxes In Dormitories Was 'Political Move', Weinman Says

University Party Chairman Mike Weinman said yesterday "putting ballot boxes in each dormitory was a purely political move by the SP. Several SP leaders served notice that they intended to use the ballot boxes as a campaign issue in the next elections whether they got boxes in each dorm or not."

"So it boils down to this," he said. "If the SP lost the fight to put the boxes in the dorms then they would rant and rave about how they had tried to get back the ballot boxes for the boys in the dorms."

"If they won the fight, and they did, then they could say they got the boxes back for the boys in the dorms," he said.

"The UP had nothing to gain or lose politically by voting for or against putting boxes in each dorm. Therefore, we were in a position to vote intelligently which the SP was not."

"Many UP members felt we would be committing political suicide by voting against putting a poll in each dorm. Maybe this is so but I don't think so. It's a sad day when you have to put politics before what you know is true. We voted against putting boxes in each dorm because doing so makes an efficient, fair comprehensive election impossible," he said.

"It is impossible to get a sufficient number to poll tenders for the fantastic number of boxes which the SP voted for. Statistics prove that an increase of less than eight tenths of one percent was gained by increasing the number of ballot boxes 130 percent. These statistics are based on spring elections when all the voters are voting for one of two men. This is the only way to get creditable statistics."

"The SP really lowered itself by putting ballot boxes in each dorm. They were willing to sacrifice good clean efficient campus elections to gain a petty campaign issue," he said.

Bill McLean, former Elections Board chairman, presented the following statistics at the Legislature meeting concerning voting percentages both before and after the placing of ballot boxes

Written Exams Slated Monday For State Student Legislature

Students interested in attending the State Student Legislature must take written examinations Monday night at 9 o'clock in Carroll Hall according to Bob Harrington.

Harrington and Shirley Egeron are UNC members of the Legislature Interim Council. The Council conducts business which transpires between yearly legislative sessions.

After taking the written exam prospective representatives must be interviewed by a non-partisan selections board Wednesday through Friday in Graham Memorial.

The selections board will conduct interviews 2:30-5 each afternoon in the Woodhouse Conference Room.

Any UNC student is eligible to represent the University at the legislative convening, according to Harrington.

Village Day Care Center Open This Afternoon

The Victory Village Day Care Center will continue to remain open Saturday afternoons throughout the football season for the purpose of providing baby-sitting service for children of students, faculty members and University employees.

Time Extended For Pictures On Annual

Sophomores, pharmacy, dental and dental hygiene students, have been given an extension of time allotted for having Yackety Yack pictures made. At the cost of $1 per student pictures can be made on Mon., Tues., and Wed. in the basement of Graham Memorial from 1-6 p.m.

It has been requested that girls wear dark sweaters and pearls and the men, dark coats, ties and white shirts.

Photos of juniors, law students, medical students and graduate students will be taken Oct. 15-19.
