In Knoxville, An Even Break

One Tennessee winning string was snapped and another continued unbroken Saturday when two Tar Heel athletic teams crossed the Blue Ridge Mountains and invaded the Volunteer state.

The streak that was brought to a rude halt was the Vol cross-country team's string of four in a row. The UNC harriers took care of that situation in handy fashion, winning 26-29 over the ambitious but untested Tennessee runners.

But the all winning Vol football team kept rolling right along, taking a 20-0 decision over the game Tar Heels. It was not an impressive win for the number three team in the nation, for Coach Jim Tatum's charges put up a rugged never say die battle that might have paid off with a few breaks.

STATISTICS CLOSER THAN FINAL SCORE

The final score gave the Vols a three touchdown margin, but the final statistics were much closer. In rushing yardage the two squads were relatively close, but the difference in the final outcome comes in the passing yardage figures. The Vols gained 111 yards via the airplanes, while the Tar Heels picked up only 47.

Two of these completed passes might have meant the difference between victory and defeat for the Carolinians. The first key play came in the second quarter on the Vol's first touchdown drive. With a fourth and 7 situation on the Carolina 23, Tennessee tailback Al Carter dropped back and fired a pass to end Buddy Cruise who snared it on the Tar Heel 10 yard line to make it first and 10. This seemed to break the Tar Heel resistance, for it took the Vols only two plays to score.

The second of these all important pass plays came in the closing minutes of the third quarter. The Vols were on the Carolina 44, second down and five to go. Carter once again faded back for a pass, and spotted wingback Bill Anderson in the clear on the 30 yard line. Anderson gathered in the perfect flip, shook off several would be tacklers, and rambled down to the 4 yard line where Don Lear stopped him with a flying tackle from behind. Three plays later the score was 13-0.

The concluding touchdown was so much icing on the cake for the triumphant Vols. They had consecutive victory number six already tucked away in their hip pockets.

BOTH COACHES SATISFIED

Both rival coaches were apparently satisfied with the performances of their teams. Carolina coach Tatum called it "the best game we've played this year," while Tennessee head mentor Bowden Wyatt said he was "well pleased."

Tatum put his finger on Wally Vale's blocked quick kick early in the game as the turning point. Also the Tar Heel mentor said that the bobbled second half kickoff was another important factor.

Wyatt reserved special praise for his ends and linebackers who played such a big part in stopping the Tar Heel option plays and end sweeps cold. "North Carolina tackles as good as any team we've met this year," said the Tennessee boss. "Their quarterback, Dave Reed, did a great job, and I'd sure like to have (Ed) Sutton on my team. That (Wally) Vale's kicking was tops, too," Wyatt continued.

AN ALL OUT EFFORT IN A LOSING CAUSE

Overall, the Tar Heel performance was certainly a good one. They played a good sound football game against one of the nation's best teams, and although they came away on the losing end, the phrase "we might have won" was still in their thoughts.

Next week it's the annual caravan weekend game at Virginia, the week after faltering Notre Dame at South Bend and the concluding weekend Duke here at Chapel Hill. The season's record now stands at 1-5-1, and chances of sweeping the last three games appear slim indeed. But it could happen.

CUFF NOTES

Saturday's meet with Carolina was the big one of the year for the Tennessee harriers. The Vols are the class of the Southeastern Conference and would have been a sure bet to wind up unbeaten if they had beaten the Tar Heels.

Ed Sutton dominated individual statistics Saturday. The Cullowhee Comet gained 61 yards in 8 carries. Dave Reed picked up 40 in 16 carries while Larry McMullen got 30 in 6 trips before leaving the game with a leg injury.

When the Tar Heel's charter plane arrived at Raleigh-Durham Airport Saturday night, the Georgia Tech team was waiting to board the same plane for their homeward flight to Atlanta. During the gasping up interval, Tech and Tar Heel players swapped confidences about future opponents. Tech meets Tennessee Saturday in the country's game of the day, while Carolina closes their season against Duke, the team Tech beat over in Durham Saturday.

Harriers Go For 7th Victory At Duke Today

Carolina's once beaten cross-country squad goes after win number seven of the present campaign this afternoon in Durham when they go against the Duke University Blue Devils.

The meet will get under way at 4 p.m. in Duke Stadium, and will be run over the newly constructed Duke golf course. The finish will also be in the Stadium.

Carolina, after losing to Maryland two weeks ago, has come on rapidly in the past few meets and hit a peak last Saturday in their 26-29 win over the previously unbeaten Tennessee Volunteers. Other wins have been at the expense of Clemson, Virginia, South Carolina and N. C. State.

Duke has its strongest team in years, but still is not expected to provide a stiff test for the powerful Tar Heels of Coach Dale Ransom. The Blue Devils have also been beaten by Maryland this season. In that meet, Duke ace Bill Hotelling put on a superb showing, finishing in the top five.

Pacing the Tar Heels as always in today's meet will be ace distance man Jim Beatty. Beatty is undefeated in cross-country com-

Basketball Team Will Feel Absence Of Salz, Young

By Larry Cheek

Down in the spacious confines of Woollen Gym, the round balls are bouncing as Carolina's freshman and varsity basketball teams prepare for the long season ahead.

Workouts have been going on since the opening of practice on Oct. 15, and already some startling developments have drawn the attention of local hardwood enthusiasts. The first surprise was the announcement that Bob Young and Frank Goodwin had been dismissed from the team for disciplinary reasons.

This in itself was enough to dismay any loyal Tar Heel fan. But the real shocker came when it was disclosed that star guard Harvey Salz had been lost to the squad until next year due to "scholastic difficulties." Salz was the fair haired boy of last year's twice beaten freshman team, and seemed assured of a starting berth on this season's varsity squad.

Some called Salz the second best prospect ever brought to Carolina by genial Frank McGuire, rating him second only to Lennie Rosenbluth. McGuire himself admitted the loss of Salz would hurt. "With Salz in there, the defense couldn't have collapsed around Rosenbluth so often. Harvey could have torn a defense that concentrated on Rosenbluth to pieces with his outside shooting. We could have had a great combination in the backcourt with Salz and this kid (Stan) Groll."

The loss of Salz, Young and Goodwin leaves the Tar Heels with much less bench strength than had been anticipated. Both Salz and Young had been counted on for extensive duty this season.

Nine men now form the backbone of the squad. They are Rosenbluth, Groll, Tommy Kearns, Tony Radovich, Joe Quigg, Bob Cunningham, Peter Brennan, Danny Lotz and Bill Hathaway. Radovich, 6-2 guard who was a starter last season, will be lost to the squad for the second semester.

Nothing like a starting lineup has been decided upon by McGuire. Since the beginning of practice he has been shifting his personnel and working with different combinations on all phases of the game in an effort to mould the strongest club possible.

Individuals who have been particularly impressive in sessions so far include Hathaway, 7 foot sophomore center who is probably the most improved man on the team; Groll, a smooth ball handler and accurate shooter who seems destined for a starting role in his first season as a varsity member; and Kearns, stubby junior guard who seems to have found himself following a dismal sophomore year.

Other boys currently working with the varsity are sophomore Gehrman Holland and junior Ken Rosemond and Roy Searcy. Cross-country runner Dave Seirylock, a top performer on last year's frosh basketball squad, is occupied with the hill and dale sport now, but may join the basketballers later on.

Coach Buck Freeman has pared his freshman squad down to a working nucleus built around five scholarship boys. The five are forwards Lee Shaffer and York LaRue, center Dick Kepley, and guards Mike Stepe and John Crotty.

Minor Sports Teams Shoot For League Championships

By BILL KING

In just a matter of weeks, fall athletics at UNC will become history. In view of the fact that the football team has had its troubles against a relatively tough schedule, some may look upon the period from September 1 and December as a very poor one for Carolina athletics.

One need look no farther than the records of Carolina's so called minor sports to completely defeat this surmise. At least two of Carolina's varsity teams are in an excellent position to finish in first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference and the work of the freshman athletics in several sports gives signs of good things to come.

Coach Marvin Allen's undefeated varsity soccer squad is in a very good position to capture ACC honors, but the booters still have a tough road to travel and will have to be up for every game from here out.

The booters have a 4-0 record at present and the schedule shows

Frosh Football Squad Relaxes After Big Win

Yesterday afternoon saw the freshman gridders of UNC taking a much deserved rest after their route of Virginia, Saturday afternoon.

The squad, which smothered the Virginia yearlings 52-6, ran through limbering-up exercises and participated in light contact work.

Saturday's successful head knocking with the Cavalier frosh left the team in high spirits and the up-coming tilt with South Carolina is being looked forward to with optimism.

In the process of winning, many new stars were discovered in the Carolina ranks. Notable among these was halfback Ron Hopman who turned in a stellar performance. Hopman scored two touchdowns; one on a 25 yard pass play involving quarterback John Cummings and another on a 20 yard run, doing most of the work himself, save for a few key blocks.

Coach Fred Tullai had high praise for his team after the game, especially concerning the good spirit displayed. Tullai said that he believed the score could have run much higher if there had been a special effort to do so.

Instead, Coach Tullai chose to let some of his subs gain valuable game experience, as is pointed out in the fact that all the members of the squad played at least six minutes.

The Tar Babies are favored to win against South Carolina, but there has been no indication that preparations for the tilt have been slackened.

three conference games left to play. Duke and Virginia are the first two opponents for Coach Allen's club, then comes the really big one—Maryland. The Terp booters are also undefeated and have copped the ACC soccer title 3 straight years.

Although Maryland looms as the biggest obstacle in the path of an ACC title for the Tar Heels, Duke and Virginia will also prove a definite threat. The Blue Devils, beaten only by Maryland in conference competition will probably prove to be the tougher of the two.

Led by all america—speedster Jim Beatty, the Carolina cross-country team poses as a definite threat for the conference cross-country crown. The harriers have won six and lost only to Maryland this season and are improving with every meet. Coach Dale Ransom has expressed great enthusiasm over his team's chances to bring home the marbles in the ACC championship meet in Charlottesville, Va. November 19.

The Tar Heel harriers, unofficially won the ACC title last year but the title went to Maryland which won dual-meet honors. This season the title will be decided by the outcome of the ACC meet, not on a dual-meet basis.

The harriers only have one regularly scheduled meet left before running in the state championship in Raleigh November 12th. They meet Duke in Durham this afternoon.

The Carolina freshman football team is one of the high spots of Carolina's fall athletic teams. The Tar Babies dropped a 41-12 decision to Wake Forest in the opening game of the season but since that time have run over Maryland, 21-0.

WAA Volleyball

Results of this week's W.A.A. volleyball place Carr Dorm and Tri Delt in the finals next Thursday. Carr topped Alpha Gam 39-28; leading servers were Stu Daniels, Carr, and Barbara Murray, Alpha Gam. Tri Delt led by Diana Ashley, whipped Pi Phi, 45-26 in the quarter-finals and topped Smith dorm 32-23 in the semi-finals. In the looser's bracket, Pi Beta Phi blasted the Nurses 24-57.

Games for next week include: Tuesday, 5 p.m. Pi Phi vs. KD, 7 p.m. Alpha Gam vs. Chi Omega; the finals Carr vs. Tri Delt on Thursday.

The freshman harriers have a 3-3 record and a chance to finish with a winning season against the Duke Blue Imps this afternoon. The frosh will also compete in the state and ACC championship and should be one of the top threats for honors in these very important meets.

The freshman soccer team also is ahead in the won-lost column with a 2-1 record. The baby booters have defeated N. C. State twice for their two victories and have dropped a 2-1 decision to Duke for their only defeat.

The frosh will be trying to make it three in a row when they meet State again November 9th in Raleigh. The freshman harriers close the season against Duke November 15th.

Tar Heels Prep For Cavaliers

North Carolina's Tar Heels began preparation for their Saturday football clash with the University of Virginia yesterday on muddy Navy Field.

The Tar Heels concentrated on an offensive pattern against Virginia defenses in the two-hour drill. The team also spent some time behind the canvas enclosure, working on a defense against the Cavalier attack.

The Tar Heels reported in fine shape after their licking at the hands of Tennessee Saturday. Halfback Larry McMullen, who twisted his ankle against the Vols,

Frosh Harriers Run

The Tar Baby cross country squad, thrice victorious and thrice conquered, will be out to revenge a previous licking received by the Duke Blue Imps this afternoon when they meet the Duke yearlings in Durham.

The Duke freshmen came to Chapel Hill for their first meet of the season and spoiled Carolina's debut by defeating the Tar Heels, 24 to 37.

The Duke yearlings have gone on to greater things through the season losing only to the Maryland frosh. The Tar Babies have not quite done so well, but have steadily improved.

Carolina has had some bad breaks this past week. Cowles Lipfert, the squad's number one man, turned his ankle Friday in the meet with State and has not completely returned to top form. Also number three man, Mike Green, dropped out of school to serve his country in the Marines. His loss will be greatly felt by the squad.

Lipfert will run today but if his ankle bothers him he will probably drop out of the race. The eight man squad will consist of Lipfert, Fick Authur, Ray Bagwell, Bro Packard, Bill Porter, Frank Sirianni, Larry Withrow and a newcomer, Frank Montgomery.

Today's meet will be held at 4 this afternoon in Duke Stadium.
