Tar Heels Jubilant On Return Trip Home

By BILL KING

CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va. — It was a jubilant group of Tar Heels that boarded two chartered buses to return to the University of Va. field house here Saturday. The Tar Heels had just won their second game of the second with a fine 21-7 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over the University of Virginia.

One of the happiest of the Tar Heels was Coach Jim Tatum, a man who has been used to winning for 14 years, but has never given up on his 1956 Tar Heels in the midst of a woefully poor season.

"I've never been so proud of a team," said the Tar Heel mentor as he walked through the crowd of well-wishers—who greeted him immediately following the victory.

"There is nothing that makes you happier than to see a team come up off the floor and make such a fine comeback. It shows that they're made of the right stuff."

"It was certainly a team victory," he added, "and I sure am proud of the boys."

Tatum paused a moment to have a short chat with right tackle Stu Pell's family, then went on with his appraisal of the Tar Heels. "I thought everybody played just fine," he added.

Asked what he thought of the performance of halfback Ed Sutton who tallied all of Carolina's touchdowns, Tatum replied: "The line gave Ed lots of room to move and he ran like he knows how to run. Sutton is a great runner when he gets a good start, and that line sure gave him a good start today."

The big Tar Heel coach said that he thought the Carolina offensive looked as good in the second half as it has all season and that the defense played a heads up game of football. "The defense and offense was very sharp today," he said.

Did the Tar Heels note the fine support of the Carolina Caravan? "You bet we did," said Tatum. "That student section meant more to us today than anything else. I don't believe we would have come back like we did in the second half if it hadn't been for the way that group of students was supporting the team," he added. "It sure did make me happy."

Tatum declined to make any comparison between Virginia's hard running fullback, Jim Bakhtiar, and Bill Barnes, the key man in the Wake Forest offense last week.

"I never make comparisons between players," Tatum said. "Both are good runners with entirely different styles. Barnes runs more like a halfback," he said. "Both are very good."

Tatum laughed when he was asked about next week's game with Notre Dame. "I haven't given it a thought," he said. "This game today was the one we wanted, it was a big one. Now I'll start thinking about Notre Dame."

He added, "I definitely think this victory will give the team a boost in morale for next week, though."

At Tatum's insistence, the busses carrying the Tar Heel gridders had already left for the field house and Tatum caught a ride with a Carolina faithful who had made the trip via automobile. Smiles had been a problem this season for the Tar Heel mentor but today he was making the most of the moment as he happily walked away with a group of friends. Chances are he was thinking about a football date next Saturday in South Bend, Ind.

Basement Of House Catches Fire Here Early Saturday

The basement of a duplex belonging to Julius Anders, located at 208 Church St., was burned out by a fire started about 3 a.m. Saturday morning, believed to have been created by a defect in a floor furnace.

The fire department of Chapel Hill reported that, although the fire did not spread into the central portions of the house, considerable damage was caused be-

VIENNA — After 19 days of fighting, rebel Hungarians are still holding out against Russian artillery and footsoldiers.

Although the rebels generally are disorganized, and although they are greatly outweighed by the Soviet forces, they continue sniping and killing wherever they can, observers from Hungary report.

The pro-Moscow Hungarian government has set up courts to deal with captured rebels. The government also has turned back International Red Cross attempts to enter Hungary with food and medicine for the nation, faced with famine.

NAPLES, Italy — The first planeload of troops, part of the United Nations' police force to settle the Middle East fighting, landed near here Saturday.

MOSCOW — Russian "technicians"—believed to be jet pilots and mechanics—were reported getting ready to go to Egypt.

Just what the "volunteers" were going to do was not immediately announced, but observers felt certain they were going to help equip the Arab world's airforces.

The fire created a great deal of smoke, forcing the three families occupying the white frame house to move most of their furniture across the street in fear of the fire's spreading.

No estimate of damage caused by the fire was given by the fire department.

It Didn't Rain, But It Was Cold

CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va.—It didn't rain in Charlottesville this weekend, but the intense cold was just about as bad.

At the end of the first half, however, the sun came out and shone its blessings on the Carolina students, who by that time were probably already pretty well frost-bitten.

From the looks of the sparse crowd of spectators, on the visiting side of Scott Field, it appeared that the Carolina Caravan composed well over half of the total number of fans on the East side.

Most of the Carolina students were sitting together, one exception being the Glee Club which occupied a section of the stands at the North end of the field. The Glee Club was right in there supporting the Tar Heels, though, and there were three cheerleaders there to lead them in yells for most of the game.

Posting Signs On Mouldings Called Illegal

By GRAHAM SNYDER

A dormitory manager has recently raised the point that the stapling of election campaign posters onto the wooden moulding of bulletin boards is a violation of the housing office rules, and that, in adherence to these rules, all posters stapled onto the moulding would have to be removed.

Keith Gallimore, dorm manager of Alexander, stated that "I am not trying to produce an argument or make an issue out of this situation, but I am trying to follow the dormitory rules. These rules state that no tacks, nails, or staples may be driven into the walls, doors or woodwork."

Gallimore explained that the issue of election posters has come up in past campaigns, and that the mutilation of the mouldings of the bulletin boards has been caused by these staples and tacks.

Gallimore said that he had observed two or three people stapling campaign posters onto the moulding and had instructed them not to do so. He added that he had removed several posters and put them in the center of the bulletin board and had torn one poster off because of the number of staples in it.

J. S. Bennett, Director of Operations, concurred with Gallimore's observation. Bennett stated: "The matter is simple and direct. If any dorm manager observes the stapling of any poster onto the wood moulding, he is instructed to take it down."

Frost Shivers N. C. In First Cold Snap

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Scattered frost shivered North Carolina for the second straight day Saturday as autumn's first cold snap lingered on. But the weatherman says it will be partly cloudy and mild tomorrow.

Temperatures got down to between 22 and 30 in the mountains, and 30 to 33 elsewhere.

On Mt. Mitchell, highest peak in eastern United States, a low of 14 degrees, 18 below freezing was recorded Saturday morning.

Teams Battle Evenly During Three Periods

By LARRY CHEEK

CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va.—Speedy Ed Sutton, a human lightning bolt at right halfback, exploded for three quick third quarter touchdowns to give the Carolina Tar Heels a stunning 21-7 win over the bewildered Virginia Cavaliers here Saturday in frigid Scott Stadium before a crowd of 16,000 fans.

The Tar Heels, trailing 7-0 at halftime, turned loose a dazzling touchdown duo in Sutton and quarterback Dave Reed to score the first three times they gained possession of the ball in the third period.

Stymied by a tough Virginia line and their own costly mistakes in the opening half, the Tar Heels found the combination after intermission immediately upon receiving the second half kickoff. The Carolinians launched their first drive toward paydirt, starting on their own 25 yard line.

BORE BRUNT

Sutton, Reed and halfback Larry McMullen bore the brunt of the assault, with Reed connecting on a 12 yard flip to Sutton for the score with only 4:25 gone in the second half.

Minutes later the Carolinians had their second and game-clinching tally. This one came in spectacular fashion with Sutton bursting over left tackle and breaking into the clear for a 68-yard payoff dash.

The concluding tally, which came with only 50 seconds remaining in the fatal third period, was only so much icing on the cake, for by this time the Cavaliers were in a rather complete state of shock. Again it was a Reed to Sutton pass that turned the trick. Phil Blazer successfully converted all three extra points.

DOMINATED HALF

The first half was mostly Virginia as the Cavaliers dominated play in all departments. Coach Jim Tatum's Tar Heels were able to muster only two long drives, penetrating to the Virginia 20 on one and to the Cavalier 18 on the other.

The Cavaliers and their plunging fullback Jim Bakhtiar got their only touchdown of the day in the closing minutes of the second period. Quarterback Nelson Yarbough climaxed a 44-yard drive by sneaking over from 1 yard out with 4:35 remaining to play.

Statistically speaking, Virginia won the first half and Carolina the second. The Cavaliers led in first downs, 11 to 7, and rushing yardage, 148 to 87, at intermission, but the Tar Heels came back with a vengeance in the second half to Sutton was the day's leading ground gainer, picking up 136 rushing and 47 via pass receiving. Bakhtiar paced the Cavaliers with 99 yards rushing.

The two squads slugged it out toe to toe during the game's opening minutes with neither gaining a decided advantage until the Tar Heels launched their first drive. With Sutton, Reed and DeCantis doing most of the work, the Tar Heels moved from their own 39 down to the Virginia 20 where they had a first and 10.

IN HOLE

On the first play from this point, however, Reed was thrown for a nine-yard loss all the way back to the Cavalier 29. This put Carolina in a hole they could not recover from. Short gains by Reed and Sutton were offset by a five yard penalty for delay of the game. And fullback Wally Vale was forced to kick out on the Virginia 17.

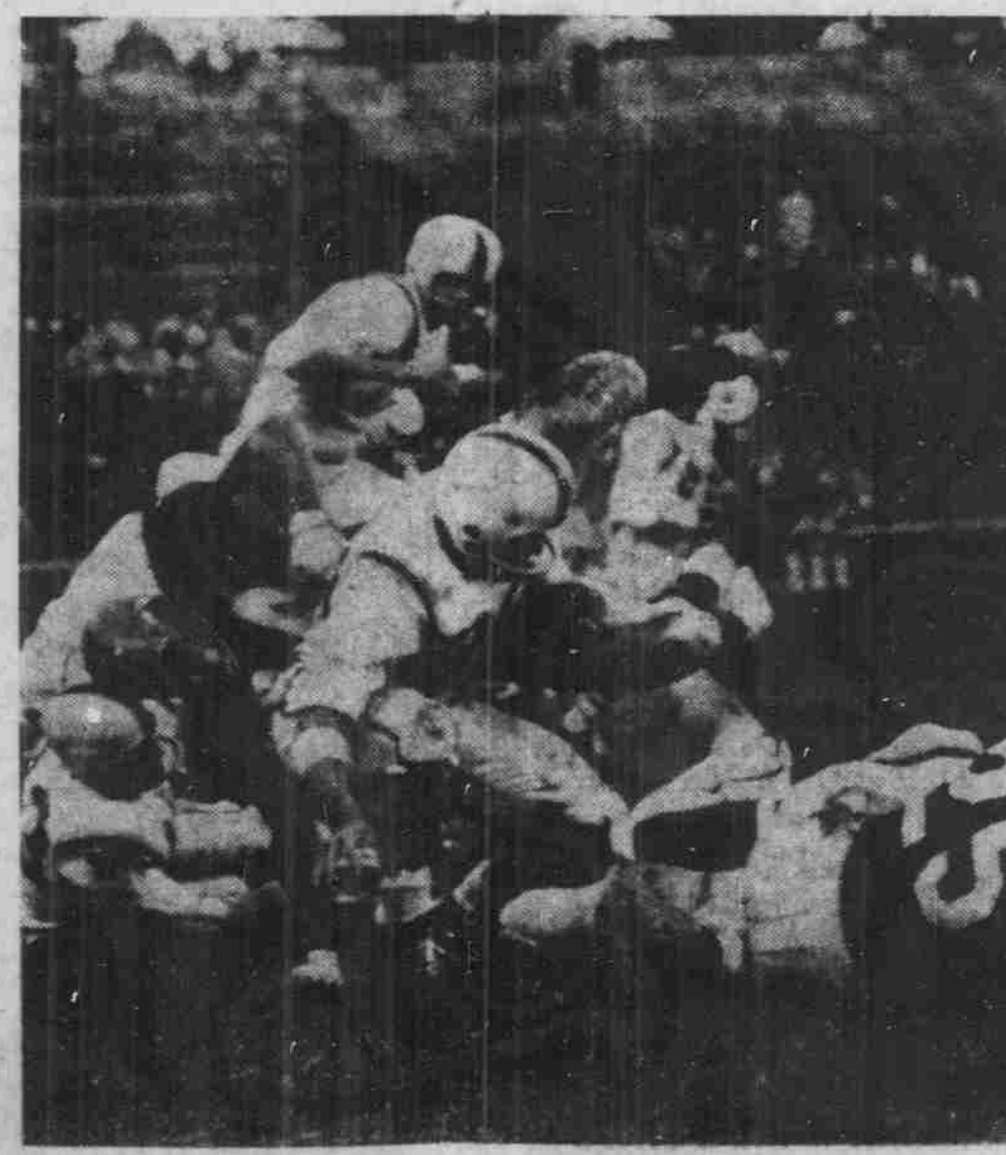

The Cavaliers started their first long but unsuccessful push toward goal-line territory from their 17. In
